BANKS' INSULL LOAN LOSS SET AT 43½ MILLION

Power of Utilities Czar Shown.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

How the big Chicago and New York banks fell victim to the financial wizardry of Samuel Insull in his era as a financial czar just as did thousands of individual investors is only now fully realized.

Disclosures of the last few days give a definite idea of the magnitude of the losses which the banks have been called upon to absorb. Insull's money raising genius was equally effective with the public and the bankers. In the latter stages of Insull's career the funds which he obtained from the banks were used to create artificial values for his stocks, which in turn enabled him to go back to the banks and get more money.

In the months preceding the debacle in April, 1932, the bankers and the public alike were playing against their own money in just as real a sense as does the poker player who lends a bankrupt opponent money in order that the game shall not end.

Hoped for a Turn for Better.

The banks, too, in the latter stage were vitally interested in maintaining the values of the Insull shares, because, in addition to millions they had advanced directly to Insull companies on such collateral, there were hundreds of other individuals interested. The banks were said to be hopeful for a time that a turn for the better would help all concerned, including individual investors.

When receivership overtook the three most ambitious of the Insull enterprises—Middle West Utilities, Corporation Securities, and Insull Utility Investments—they owed $71¼ million dollars to 11 New York and Chicago banks. The collateral behind these loans, consisting entirely of Insull securities, today has an estimated market value under 50 per cent of the face value of the loans.

The loans are distributed as follows:

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust	$31,216,247
First National, Chicago	16,305,956
Central Republic, Chicago	4,972,978
Central Hanover bank, New York	7,500,000
Bankers' Trust, New York	10,752,600
Guaranty Trust, New York	5,500,000
Chase National, New York	500,000
Commercial National, New York	1,500,000
Irving Trust, New York	5,000,000
Northern Trust company, Chicago	900,000
Harris Trust and Savings bank, Chicago	500,000

Amounts of Loans Received.

The loans were allotted among the companies as follows: Middle West Utilities, $27,610,271; Insull Utility Investments, $43,887,500, and Corporation Securities company, $15,750,000.

The collateral posted by Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities consisted largely of marketable securities, the present market value of which is equal to about half the loan values. In the case of Middle West, however, the estimated 50 per cent value is purely arbitrary and may not amount to that much. The securities posted consisted of unlisted securities of subsidiary companies, the worth of which is not readily determinable, but dependent on the future of the properties. The estimate of value at 50 per cent of face value is a generous one under present conditions.

An Estimate of Loss.

If the collateral were liquidated today—such a step is not possible—it is estimated that the banks would incur a loss of approximately 50 per cent of the face value of the loans, or about 43½ million dollars.

Part of the collateral is subject to a contingent liability hinging on the rights of the companies to pledge such stocks which supposedly were security for notes and debentures held by the public. Suits challenging the rights of the banks to part of the collateral are now pending. If they are decided in favor of the debenture holders it will materially increase the losses of the banks.

Personal Debts of Insulls.

Even these figures, however, do not give a complete picture of the bank losses arising from the Insull collapse. The personal indebtedness of the Insulls to Chicago banks has never been made public, but it is believed to have run into the millions. Martin J. Insull is estimated to have had personal obligations of more than $5,000,000 when the collapse came. Only time will tell how much the creditors will salvage on the personal property and other assets seized to satisfy these claims. Only a small fraction of the face value of these claims, however, will ever be recovered, it is said.

In addition to the direct Insull loans

Roosevelt Urges Stock Exchange Rule

CONGRESS GETS BILLS TO GIVE CONTROL TO U. S.

Proposal for Drastic Changes.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The doom of speculation in the stock markets of the country is held to be written in bills introduced simultaneously in both houses of congress today.

The bills would put the most drastic limits on margin trading, authorize the most sweeping federal control over all security exchanges, prohibit all market manipulations, and provide heavy fines and long prison sentences for all violators.

Henceforth, if the bills become law in their present form, the stock markets may be expected to become simple bartering places for the purchase and sale of securities for investment purposes.

Financial experts said tonight after reading the bills that they would spell the finish of the great speculative industries centering on Wall street and La Salle street.

Working on Grain Bill.

Companion legislation is now being drawn under which the grain and produce exchanges would be subjected to the same blanketing control of the federal government.

President Roosevelt sent a message to Capitol hill today in which he urged that federal control be applied to all exchanges, but he told newspaper men that he had not read the bills introduced and did not necessarily support all their provisions. However, it is deemed certain that the President will go as far in his support of regulation as the bills specify.

The President, in his message, and the congressional sponsors, in statements extoling the measure, were a chorus in condemning the stock markets as iniquitous centers of gambling, and they held speculation the major cause of the depression. Mr. Roosevelt declared that "naked speculation has been made far too alluring and far too easy for those who could and for those who could not afford to gamble," and he called for the elimination, so far as it may be possible, of "unnecessary, unwise, and destructive speculation."

For that matter, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the senate banking committee, who introduced the senate bill, declared in a statement that the bill is a "middle of the road" measure, and that before it is passed there would be many even more drastic curbs against gambling included.

Provisions of Bills.

As they stand the two bills would invest the federal trade commission with complete dictatorial powers over all stock exchanges. Among the most radical provisions of the bills are the following:

Requires all exchanges to be registered with the federal trade commission.

Fixes a minimum margin requirement on stocks of 60 per cent, double and triple the present requirements.

Prohibits officers, directors and principal stockholders of any corporation from speculating in shares of the corporation.

Prohibits short selling and "stop loss" orders, except as permitted by the federal trade commission.

Prohibits any manipulation of the prices of securities.

Fixes penalties of fines up to $25,000 and imprisonment up to 10 years for violators of provisions of the act or regulations of the commission, and a fine up to $500,000 for violations by any exchange.

Permits the federal trade commission to close any exchange temporarily or permanently for violations of law or regulations.

Effective Next October.

The act would become effective on Oct. 1, 1934, except that applications for registration could be received after July 1.

The effect of the proposed legislation on the stock market is expected to be felt tomorrow as the full import of the drastic measure is brought home to all market operators, brokers and the speculating public.

The President's message, which governed the release of the bills, was held up until after the market closed, but before that time the terms of the

THE JAIL DELIVERY

PREDICTS RELIEF FROM COLD SNAP THIS AFTERNOON

Relief from the severe cold which prevailed in Chicago yesterday was promised today by Forecaster W. P. Day. A low of from zero to 5 above was predicted for this morning, but a slow rise in temperature under bright skies was indicated for the afternoon. Tomorrow, it is anticipated, will be unsettled, with rain or snow in the evening.

The minimum yesterday was 2 below zero, at 8 and 9 a. m. The afternoon maximum was 9 degrees above. At midnight last night the temperature had declined to 7 degrees. Barometric pressure was exceedingly high, a mark of 30.94 inches being recorded at 7:30 a. m. The all-time high on the barometer here was 30.97, on Jan. 26, 1927.

At Benton Harbor, Mich., where the minimum was 15 degrees below, experts predicted that the 1934 peach crop would be ruined.

Shore ice extended yesterday for a mile or more out in the lake and special precautions were taken to keep children from wandering out on it. At 73d street and the lake Policemen Thomas J. Durkin and John S. Condon, with the assistance of Coast Guardsmen Richard Carlson and Jack Frankneckt, rescued a large police dog, Nellie, which had been marooned on an ice floe. The animal was turned over to the Illinois Humane society.

FARMER DIGS UP 682 COUNTERFEIT SILVER DOLLARS

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The "treasure" which Ed Goldner, 73 year old Eau Claire, Mich., farm hand, dug from beneath the roots of a 50 year old apple tree while grubbing out an old orchard reposed today in the office of Frank L. Holliday, U. S. secret service operative here.

For Goldner's treasure consisted of 682 lead dollars. He found the money while working on the farm of Lyle Michael, third generation of his family to own the farm. Michael told Holliday there was a family legend that a gang of counterfeiters operated in that vicinity many years ago, before he was born.

The coins were found to be counterfeit when Goldner, who had told no one of his sudden wealth, presented them at a Benton Harbor bank.

Liquor Speech by Lady Astor Stirs Up Row

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Lady Astor was the center of a storm in the house of commons this afternoon. During a debate on a bill to extend the hours in which hotels and restaurants may serve drinks up to midnight, she declared that certain members of the house are in the pay of the liquor interests.

LADY ASTOR.

"We have members in parliament who have been offered £2,000 [about $10,000] to come into the house and defend the liquor interests," she said. "We know of members of the house who have defended them in season and out of season, and you cannot deny it."

Appeal to Speaker.

Instantly there were shouts of "withdraw" from all corners of the house. Members appealed to the speaker. One parliamentarian suggested that Lady Astor be suspended for uttering an insult to the honor of the house.

Lady Astor stuck to her guns and said she had evidence which she would submit to the speaker, but the speaker refused to accept it. He said she must either produce the evidence before the house or withdraw her remark.

Holford Knight, Labor member of parliament, declared Lady Astor was attacking the lawyer members of commons who, as lawyers, had "perfectly legitimate citizens in the liquor trade as clients outside the house."

The speaker declared he knew nothing of what happened outside, but insisted Lady Astor had made a very grave accusation and owed it to the house to produce the evidence or withdraw.

Accuses Dead Man.

"I cannot do that honestly," she said at first. After further discussion she declared that what she said did not apply to any of the present members of the house and that the man she had in mind with regard to a specific incident is dead.

The speaker then said he was in difficulty, as apparently no accusation had been made against members of the present house. Thereupon Lady Astor repeated her assurance that this was so and the matter was allowed to drop.

Before that Dr. Alfred Salter, Laborite and prohibitionist, had created an outburst by declaring he knew many members of the house whose lives had been shortened by weakness for drink. The bill passed its second reading by a large majority.

FOUR LOSE LIVES WHEN SHIP SINKS OFF NORFOLK, VA.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Four members of the crew of the schooner Purnell T. White, including Capt. Charles Nichols, her skipper, lost their lives when that craft capsized 80 miles south by east of Norfolk tonight.

The schooner was in tow of the coast guard cutter Mendota at the time and the crew of the government craft under the most trying circumstances rescued three men.

The tragedy came with but little warning. The first indication of danger made known to the Mendota was when the schooner sent up flares. The Mendota's crew cut the hawser with which she had towed the ship from a point about 200 miles east of Cape Fear, N. C.

Red Mobs Riot in Paris; Try to Burn Churches

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—While the formation of Premier Gaston Doumergue's "national safety cabinet" today relieved the nation's worst fears the Red menace which has been hanging over Paris the last three days took more definite shape.

Communists tonight spread terror through a large part of the city. They erected street barricades in populous quarters and carried on a vicious guerrilla warfare with police and troops under the cover of a ghostly fog which overhung the capital.

Red gunmen prowled in small bands through the inky streets, firing from ambush and then melting into the darkness. The troops had orders not to return the fire, but they avenged the casualties in their ranks by cavalry charges and heavy wielding of clubs by the men on foot.

Two Reported Slain.

Two deaths were reported. Ambulances were streaking through the streets until midnight bearing the wounded to hospitals. The wounded are reported to number several hundred. About 100 Reds were arrested on charges of carrying concealed weapons or were taken prisoner in hand to hand battles around the barricades.

The Reds tried unsuccessfully to burn two churches—St. Joseph and St. Ambroise.

Meanwhile, despite a personal plea by Premier Doumergue to Leon Jouhaux, president of the trades union congress, to call off the general strike called for Monday, labor leaders were organizing their forces to make the strike as complete as possible. Government technicians hope to keep the most important public services running. Unless there is sabotage it is believed gas, electricity, and possibly railroads will continue to function. Telephone, telegraph, and postal services and street cars and buses, however, probably will not.

Newspapers doubt whether they will be able to publish. Prudent housekeepers are laying in food to last the day, as nearly all shops will be closed. The price of candles has gone up through fear that saboteurs may cut the power lines.

District in State of Siege.

The communists had announced their intention to hold a massmeeting in the Place de la Republique. The authorities feared the meeting would end in a march on the Opera district and a renewal of the pillage of Wednesday night. The meeting, therefore, was forbidden and the Place de la Republique filled with police, infantry, mounted gardes republicaines, and gardes mobiles armed with carbines. A virtual state of siege was set up in this quarter. Armed patrols scoured the streets within a half mile radius, while imposing forces of infantry and cavalry lined the Grands Boulevards.

Early in the evening several columns of 1,000 or more Reds charged the lines at the Place de la Republique, but were beaten back and dispersed by the cavalry. Then scattered but vicious fighting broke out over a wide area.

The dense fog hampered police operations. Strains of the "Internationale," the Red anthem, would rise like a weird chant from some dark side street, then pistol shots and cries of the wounded.

Shoot from Windows.

The Reds entrenched themselves behind blazing barricades and fought off the police with stones and rifles. In several slum streets the communists fired on police patrols from windows of houses.

As the bands were driven farther away from the Place de la Republique, a fierce clash took place in front of the Gare de l'Est [East railway sta-

PRESIDENT VOIDS CONTRACTS WITH ALL AIR LINES

Charges Fraud and Collusion.

Fight for Contracts

Air line officials in New York last night were reported to be planning a fight to retain the mail contracts. One air line chief wired the President asking a hearing. Details on Page 2.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and Postmaster General James A. Farley today canceled the contracts of all air lines carrying United States air mail on the grounds that there were fraud and collusion behind the agreements.

Having scrapped the contracts of all domestic air mail routes, President Roosevelt ordered the army to carry the mails until further notice.

In an executive order issued after Postmaster General Farley had canceled all private contracts with air lines flying inside the United States the President set up a board of three cabinet members, Mr. Farley, Secretary of War Dern, and Secretary of Commerce Roper, to see that air mail service is continued.

Army Will Fly Mail.

The order instructed the army to place at the disposal of Postmaster General Farley all planes, pilots, and fields necessary for the carrying of domestic mails. Secretary Dern said tonight that he was confident his department could meet the emergency, although no detailed plans were yet complete.

Cancellation of the contracts climaxed a long series of revelations before a senate committee investigating the awarding of air mail routes, and came at the close of a day of conferences between the President, Mr. Farley, and Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. Evidence uncovered by the senate committee was the ground upon which Mr. Farley and the President acted today.

Meanwhile William P. MacCracken Jr., assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics under President Hoover, who was to be tried today by the senate because he allowed letters to be removed from his files while under subpœna to appear before the air mail investigating committee, was defying the senate.

Scheduled to appear before the bar of the senate at noon today and be tried for contempt of the senate, MacCracken failed to appear and sent a letter to Vice President Garner challenging the senate's right to try him. His arrest was immediately ordered by a senate resolution and tonight he was a "fugitive from justice."

Cancellation Effective Feb. 19.

In scrapping the private air mail contracts Postmaster General Farley prescribed that the cancellation shall be effective on Feb. 19, ten days hence. On that date army pilots will take over the job of flying the mails.

The cancellation hits only domestic lines. Mr. Farley explained that mail lines out of the country to South America and elsewhere are not affected "in this instance," inferring that the foreign problem had not been settled.

President Roosevelt said that he had not decided whether the government would ever again contract with private companies for the carrying of air mail or whether the army would continue to fly the mails as a matter of permanent policy.

In any event, the President explained, because the contracts were thrown out on grounds of fraud no company now having a contract may bid again for an air mail route for five years. This penalty is laid down by law.

Lines Face Income Crisis.

Air lines, faced with the loss of contracts which have brought them more than $2 million dollars in the last five years, are up against the prospect of making themselves pay entirely by passenger and freight business.

Predictions were that the President's order will result in laying off of ships and pilots. Every major air line in the country is involved.

At least one company tonight announced its intention of going out of business, firing 350 employés and stopping a million dollar pay roll on the day that the cancellation order becomes effective. Shreve Archer, president of the Northwest Airways, and R. E. Lilly, a director who arrived here tonight, announced that this was the plan of their company.

Archer and Lilly forecast that other aviation companies would do likewise. It was reported that some of the large companies may seek an injunction against the cancellation on the grounds that the evidence produced by the senate committee is insufficient.

While the army is flying the mails some of the routes may be dropped for lack of facilities to carry them on, the President said. Details as to routes have not been worked out.

Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the air mail investigating committee, informed in the senate of the cancellation, complimented the President on prompt action. He declared that there was ample evidence of fraud behind the awarding of routes.

Farley Issues Statement.

The final decision to tear up the contracts was not reached until late today. In a statement explaining the cancellation order and the events leading up to it, Postmaster General Farley said:

"This order annulling the existing domestic air mail contracts has been issued after careful and deliberate study of the entire situation, which study included conferences between myself and other officials of the post-office department with the President and with the attorney general and other representatives of the department of justice. All have concurred in the decision reached."

Canvassed in Conference.

"The entire matter was canvassed this morning at the department of justice in a conference participated in by myself, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department; Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general; Col. Carl L. Bistine, special assistant to the attorney general; Angus D. MacLean, assistant solicitor general, and Alexander Holtzoff, special assistant to the attorney general.

"Following the cabinet meeting this afternoon, a conference was held between the President, the attorney general and myself, and it was at this conference that a final decision was reached."

Farley's order canceling the contracts was terse, saying merely:

"Pursuant to the authority vested in me by section 3950, revised statutes of the United States, act of June 8, 1872 (39 United States code, section 432), and by virtue of the general powers of the postmaster general, it is ordered that the following air mail contracts be, and they are hereby, annulled, effective midnight Feb. 19, 1934."

Lists the Companies.

He then listed all the routes in the country and the companies flying them.

They are:

UNITED AIR LINES—Chicago to Dallas, Salt Lake City to Portland, Seattle to San Diego, New York to Chicago, Chicago to Salt Lake City, Salt Lake City to San Francisco, Omaha to Kansas City.

AMERICAN AIRWAYS—Boston to New York, Chicago to Memphis, New York to Cleveland, Cleveland to Fort Worth, Fort Worth to Galveston, Dallas to Brownsville, Atlanta to New Orleans, Chicago to Cincinnati, Buffalo to Chicago, New Orleans to Houston, Chicago to Atlanta, Atlanta to Los Angeles.

WESTERN AIR EXPRESS—Salt Lake City to San Diego, Cheyenne to Albuquerque.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AND WESTERN AIR—New York to Kansas City, Kansas City to Los Angeles, Los Angeles to San Francisco.

EASTERN AIR TRANSPORT—New York to Atlanta, New York to Miami, Atlanta to Jacksonville.

KOHLER AVIATION—Milwaukee to Detroit.

PENNSYLVANIA AIR LINES—Washington to Cleveland.

NATIONAL PARKS AIRWAYS—Great Falls to Salt Lake City.

UNITED STATES AIRWAYS—Kansas City to Denver.

The total mileage flown last year by these lines with mail cargoes was 35,909,811 over a route mileage of 27,062.

The government has paid to air mail companies $82,319,000 in the last five years. Air mail postage revenue to the government in the same period was $54,453,000, leaving a "subsidy" cost of $27,866,000.

The President's Order.

President Roosevelt's order setting up the board of three cabinet members and putting the army in the mail business was equally terse. It read:

"Whereas, By an order of the postmaster general of the United States, all domestic air mail contracts for carrying the mails have been annulled; and,

"Whereas, The public interest requires that air mail service continue to be afforded, and the cancellation of said contracts has created an emergency in this respect; now,

"Therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, under and by virtue of the authority in me vested, do hereby order and direct that the postmaster general, secretary of war, and secretary of commerce, together with other officers of their respective departments, co-operate to the end that necessary air mail service be afforded.

"It is further ordered and directed that the secretary of war place at the disposal of the postmaster general such airplanes, landing fields, pilots, and other employés and equipment of the army of the United States needed or required for the transportation of mail during the present emergency by air over routes and schedules prescribed by the postmaster general."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, declared immediately after President Roosevelt had canceled the air mail contracts that the army was ready and the mails would go through.

"This is my understanding of it," he said. "They are going to make the order effective a week from today. The army has the resources, and the will, to make the mails go through. Details are now being worked out. The army has the planes and the pilots and the wherewithal to do what the President has in mind."

Gen. MacArthur said that he had between 1,200 and 1,300 flying officers and each one could carry the mails in a pinch. There are between 1,600 and 1,700 army planes of all kinds, he said, but only 800 or 900 observation or cargo planes which would be preferable to the pursuit, attack and bombing planes. He said they might have to use some of the army's 135 swift bombers to keep up the time schedule.

May Use Present Mail Pilots.

"Unquestionably every landing field will be available to the army pilots," he said. "Practically all air fields are military fields or public fields operated by municipalities. The routing, beacons and other aids to regular service will be available to the army."

Gen. MacArthur said that not a single one of the present air mail pilots would be discharged if the army had anything to do with it. They will be absorbed in the army if placement can be found for them. Most of the air mail pilots are reserve corps officers, he pointed out.

The base pay of an army officer, plus the 50 per cent extra which he gets for flying time would be commensurate with any pay now given commercially to the pilots.

"Those airmen have an extraordinary record for service and fearlessness," Gen. MacArthur said. "There is no organization in a time of peace that has developed a finer reputation than the air mail pilots. Not only is their standard of efficiency remarkably high, but they have a great record for not getting killed."

MacArthur Confident.

Concerning the army's operation of the mail service, Gen. MacArthur said:

"I have the utmost confidence the army will handle it in a magnificent way.

"About 100 years ago the army guarded and took care of the fastest mails of those times—the pony express. The whole history of the service shows that pioneer developments in peaceful service were carried out by the army and that the army has been as useful in times of peace as in war."

He said the first orders of the air corps would be dispatched this afternoon. The army enlisted air corps would be used to service the planes, he said. Passenger service was not contemplated, he continued, adding that the postoffice department would reimburse the army for the extra costs of the new service.

ARMY PILOTS FACE BIG TASK

The last monthly report of the postoffice department on the air mail service, for November, 1933, gives a graphic picture of the magnitude of the job that will be taken over by the army air corps on Feb. 19 when it sets forth to fly the air mail. To duplicate the air mail service as it now exists the army will have to fly about 5,400,000 miles a month, 40 per cent of it at night. The report for the month of November was as follows:

Air Line.	Route length.	Miles scheduled.	Mail carried.	Pct. of whole.	Amount paid.	Pct. of whole.
United Air Lines	6,299 miles	1,155,553	268,857 lbs.	42.56	$ 554,614	52.02
American Airways	5,587 miles	881,602	126,218 lbs.	20.00	211,033	28.15
Western Air Express	1,288 miles	122,300	25,992 lbs.	4.11	50,290	4.54
T. and W. A.	2,980 miles	602,224	98,871 lbs.	15.65	184,921	16.68
Eastern Air Transit	2,118 miles	295,328	65,869 lbs.	10.43	101,958	9.21
Northwest Airways	1,283 miles	128,240	18,143 lbs.	2.87	48,000	4.35
Kohler Aviation	257 miles	26,416	1,863 lbs.	.29	7,725	.70
Pennsylvania Airways	321 miles	89,880	19,286 lbs.	3.05	21,162	1.91
National Park Airways	517 miles	66,024	4,822 lbs.	.69	15,963	1.44
U. S. Airways	560 miles	93,600	2,227 lbs.	.35	8,769	.79
Totals	25,270 miles	3,396,577	631,748 lbs.	100.00	$1,107,142	100.00

In the above table it will be noted that the route length for each air line is merely the total length of airways flown by that line and not the total mileage flown each month. The total mileage is shown under mileage scheduled. Mail carried indicates the air mail poundage carried by each of the lines during the month, and the per cent of whole indicates the proportion each individual poundage figure represents to the total poundage carried during the month. The amount paid is the total paid by the postoffice department to each air line for carrying its allotment of mail and the per cent of the whole is, again, the proportion each payment bears to the air mail bill for the month of November.

The figures speak for themselves with respect to the amounts paid to individual air lines for services rendered.

U. S. ARMY'S AIR MAIL ACTIVITIES TO CENTER HERE

City Headquarters for 2 Major Lines.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

As the center of the nation's commercial air line system, which has been built up in the past eight years with postoffice air mail contracts, Chicago will automatically become the center of the army air corps' operations as carriers of the air mail as a result of President Roosevelt's action yesterday. Four of the largest air mail contracts now operate twenty-eight mail schedules out of Chicago.

The headquarters of the two largest commercial air lines are located in Chicago. One is United Air Lines, which operates a coast to coast service, and the other is American Airways, which operates a network of airlines connecting the two coasts. Officials of American Airways, which is controled by E. L. Cord, automobile and airplane builder, could not be reached last night for a statement on President Roosevelt's action.

65 Million Miles Flown.

United Air Lines was founded in 1926 and since then its planes have flown more than 65,000,000 miles, carrying 350,000 passengers. Last year the system carried 127,693 passengers and 3,182,165 pounds of air mail, by far the largest volume carried by any single operator. During the year 14,714,415 miles were flown. The company has in service fifty-six new high speed Boeing transport planes, has ten more of this type ordered, and owns at least that number of obsolete planes held in reserve. The system employ 1,450 persons, of whom 250 are flight personnel.

American Airways was founded in 1926 and has flown 52,000,000 miles. Last year the company carried 114,501 passengers and 1,592,749 pounds of air mail and 318,287 pounds of air express.

Has 1,200 Employés.

The system operates about 100 planes of several types, including a number of high speed Condor transports, and employs about 1,200 persons.

Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, the third important coast to coast air line, which does not operate through Chicago, but through St. Louis and Kansas City, employs about 600 persons and operates forty planes. It has ordered an additional forty high speed Douglas transport planes for delivery in May. Companies affiliated with T. & W. A. L. under North American Aviation, a holding company, are Western Air Express and Eastern Air Transport.

Traylor Gains; Is Given Better Than Even Chance

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, ill for more than a month following a pneumonia attack, showed further improvement in his condition last night. The banker is ill in his home at 426 Barry avenue. Dr. William R. Cubbins, medical spokesman, said that Mr. Traylor was resting comfortably. Earlier the doctor predicted that Mr. Traylor had a better than even chance for recovery.

MACCRACKEN IS FUGITIVE FROM SENATE ARREST

Defies Order; 3 Appear to Face Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Letters involving the names of high postoffice department officials were put into the record late today as the senate, in unique and dramatic proceedings, sought to get to the bottom of what its investigators of air mail contracts have termed a system based on, "fraud and collusion."

During a buzzing, scurrying afternoon the senate sat as a court. Adjournment saw before the senate bar three officials of air mail companies whose contracts for postal subsidies President Roosevelt in an independent action had just finished canceling.

The end of one of the most unusual sessions in congressional history found a fourth defendant, William P. MacCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, a defiant fugitive from arrest by the senate's sergeant-at-arms.

Face Contempt Charges.

Those before the senate bar were L. H. Brittin, executive vice president of Northwest Airways; Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, and Gilbert Givvin, Washington representative of Western Air Express. With MacCracken, now attorney for many air mail operators, including Northwest Airways and Western Air Express, they were cited to appear to clear themselves, if they can, of charges of contempt for having destroyed correspondence taken from MacCracken's files while the files were under subpoena of the senate's investigating committee.

It was through Brittin that Committee Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] introduced letters showing, according to the committee members' contention, how air mail operators lobbied in Washington, and how they persuade government officials to help them evade the law requiring the allotment of air mail contracts strictly on a competitive basis.

Question Senate's Authority.

Like MacCracken, whose counsel filed a lengthy letter challenging the senate's power to bring him before it, Brittin replied to the citation with a formal answer which questioned the senate's authority, but which also attempted to explain away what he had done.

But he had still more explaining to do when confronted with what Chairman Black contended were the papers which he had taken from the MacCracken files and had thought to destroy. Brittin denied that they were the papers, or wasn't sure whether they were or not.

They were torn and patched together with tape. They had been taken from the trash thrown out of Brittin's office, had been rescued from bags full of waste and laboriously pieced together by committee investigators.

But Brittin explained that he had had no office in Washington for eight years; had used other offices, among them MacCracken's; had just recently rented an office of his own; had collected his scattered correspondence, and had been sorting it out of late trying to condense it into a workable file.

The five letters, two telegrams, and a memorandum had been written by him, he admitted, but he insisted they probably were papers he had merely sorted out of this accumulated material.

Coercion Shown, Black Says.

Whatever they were, Senator Black contended—and he was openly skeptical of Brittin's explanation—the papers showed that Brittin had done his best to get postoffice officials to "coerce" officials of National Parks Air lines to sell out to Northwest Airways.

There was one, for example, to Roe Lilly, whom Brittin identified as former president of Northwest Airways. It outlined a series of nine recommendations which "Supt. Stephen A. Cisler assured me yesterday that he is willing to make to the postmaster general."

The letter was written Aug. 15, 1933, so that the postmaster general referred to was not Walter F. Brown, Hoover incumbent, but James A. Farley, Roosevelt appointee.

The letter described how Brittin hoped to have his company buy out the National Parks Air lines, and then, through an extension order, gain a through route from St. Paul to the Pacific coast.

"In response to these rather insistent demands," the letter read, "Mr. Cisler discussed the matter with Mr. Howes (William W. Howes, second assistant postmaster general), and advised me late yesterday afternoon that he was willing to recommend the nine point program outlined above. . . .

"If this general program is satisfactory to you I propose to go over the nine points again with Mr. Cisler so as to avoid any possibility of misunderstanding. Mr. Cisler and I will then confer with Mr. Howes, and Mr. Howes will then be asked to call in Mr. Frank (of the National Parks Air lines) and advise him to sell to us at a reasonable price."

"Isn't it true, therefore," demanded Senator Black, "that in the main the letters you took had reference to conferences with postoffice officials to get them to coerce the National Parks Air lines to sell out to the Northwest Airways?"

Mr. Brittin denied that he had sought to coerce any one.

Memory Doesn't Function.

"Then can you give the name of a single person to whom one of the letters you took from the files was addressed?" demanded Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], member of the investigating committee. "Can you name a single subject to which one of the letters referred?"

The witness was "sorry," but his memory refused to function.

The letters he took were "personal," he insisted, but he could not explain how he had been able to determine that they were personal without reading them sufficiently to have their contents stick in his mind.

Another letter was addressed to "My Dear Ben" and asked for "a little help on a new idea." It, too, outlined in general the plan to take over the National Parks Air lines and closed:

"Please treat this whole program as confidential. It's just between you and me."

Name Is Divulged.

That letter was very torn and tattered. Senator Black wanted to know whether it did not concern air mail. The witness admitted it did.

"To whom was it written?" was the next question and it brought a long and fidgety pause. Mr. Brittin said it was sent to "a friend of mine" whose name he did not wish to divulge.

Senator Black kept pressing; the witness kept dodging, but it was finally brought out that "Dear Ben" was Benjamin F. Myers, air mail superintendent in the Chicago postoffice.

"But Mr. Myers declined to give me the information I wanted," Brittin hastened to add.

"And you can't recognize this as one of the papers taken from the file?" inquired Senator Black, sarcasm edging his voice. Mr. Brittin could not.

The senators are counting, however, on better memories on the part of charwomen who cleaned out Brittin's office and the inspectors who found and pieced the letters together. They will be put on the stand tomorrow.

The drama in the senate chamber was only part of the show as Sergeant at Arms Chesley W. Jurney, frock coat and all, sought to lay hands on the elusive Mr. MacCracken.

In company with his attorney, Frank J. Hogan, lawyer for prominent defendants in the Harding oil scandal cases, MacCracken came to the capitol with Brittin, Hanshue, and Givvin. But by the time the senate convened he was gone.

He left in his place a letter to the senate, explaining his defiance of its orders.

"I have the greatest respect for the senate of the United States," the letter read, "and would not knowingly or intentionally commit any act in contempt of its constitutional rights and powers. I am constrained, however, to deny the constitutional right of your honorable body to compel the attendance before its bar of a private citizen of the United States to there show cause why he should not be punished for an alleged past and completed act.

Questions Power of Senate.

"The Supreme court of the United States has distinctly held that while each house of the congress has ample power to deal directly with contempt so far as is necessary to preserve and exercise the legislative authority expressly granted, this being a power of self-preservation, a means and not an end, the power does not extend to infliction of punishment as such.

"It is, the highest judicial tribunal of our nation has held, a power to prevent acts which in and of themselves, inherently, prevent or obstruct the discharge of legislative duty and to compel the doing of those things which are essential to the performance of the legislative functions. That court has clearly announced the constitutional principle that punishment for completed acts is exclusively a judicial function and not a legislative one.

"To appear at the bar of the senate in response to the above mentioned citation would be to give assent to the exercise by your honorable body of powers which do not constitutionally belong to it and to voluntarily aid in permitting it to violate rights guaranteed to me as a citizen of the United States under the constitution of my country. This I respectfully decline to do."

Reviews Events Leading to Citation.

He reviewed in detail the various steps by which he had been summoned before the Black committee and his files subpoenaed and how he had protested the right of privilege concerning correspondence between lawyer and client. He sought to explain and clear himself of blame for abstraction of correspondence from his files. Then he closed by again challenging the constitutionality of the proceedings.

"Being advised, and convinced," he said, "that the senate's citation, the proposed trial of myself at its bar, and the assertion of power by it to punish me for an alleged consummated offense, are each and all beyond constitutional powers, and are, on the one hand, an invasion of the functions delegated by the constitution exclusively to the judicial power, and on the other, a plain violation of my constitutional rights. I am, with great regret, forced to deny the now asserted right of your honorable body in the premises, and to seek protection under the constitution in the courts."

In answer to the letter the senate voted an immediate arrest order, but Attorney Hogan refused to tell the whereabouts of his client. He offered to produce him at an appointed place, the idea being to let the senate warrant be served, then have MacCracken step into court and obtain a writ of habeas corpus.

Bargain Is Refused.

Sergeant at Arms Jurney refused such a bargain. On his service, he was maneuvering with four husky assistants to lay hold of MacCracken and rush him to the senate floor where no United States marshal could penetrate with a court writ. Late tonight, the situation still stood at a stalemate.

Hanshue and Givvin, his assistants, both made explanations to the senate that were better received than that of Brittin. Givvin, youthful, a bit callow, said he had acted under Hanshue's orders when he went to MacCracken's office and helped pick out "personal" letters. MacCracken told him it was all right, he said, and he did not know the [illegible] were under subpoena.

"I realize now," he told the senators, "that I made a mistake in not relying on my own judgment instead of relying on the judgment of Mr. MacCracken."

The letters taken away by Givvin were sent to Hanshue in New York and later returned when the storm broke about their removal.

Hanshue, too, it seemed, had relied mistakenly on MacCracken's judgment.

MacCracken had said it would be all right to have Givvin look through the file to see whether it contained any personal papers. Hanshue had told Givvin to make such an inspection, but he was sure he had said nothing about taking any papers out. He was surprised to receive them in the mail the next day, and had hurried to send them back.

LEADING AIR MAIL LINES PLAN TO FIGHT CONTRACT CANCELING

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Officials of the nation's leading airmail systems gathered in their offices tonight in New York to plan a fight to the end against what they consider is an unfair decision by the government in canceling the airmail contracts.

Richard W. Robbins, president of the Transcontinental and Western Air corporation, which flies mail, passenger and express between New York and Los Angeles, sent a telegram of protest to President Roosevelt stating that he felt the company was entitled to be heard "as a matter of fair play."

Philip G. Johnson, president of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation and also of United Air Lines, which is made up of National Air Transport, Boeing Air Transport and Pacific Air Transport, had this to say:

"We have received no official communication from the government informing us that our contracts have been canceled. However, all of our contracts, which are held by Boeing Air Transport, National Air Transport and Pacific Air Transport, all divisions of our system, are the result of competitive bidding and were received in the years 1926 and 1927 because we were the lowest responsible bidder.

"We have never at any time been party to any collusive arrangement with any other contractor for the carriage of airmail.

"Any meetings which our representatives attended at which other contractors were present were at the express invitation of the postoffice department."

NEW YORK TAXI OWNERS REBEL ON NRA ISSUE

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—With 96 per cent of the city taxicabs rolling the streets once more following settlement of the strike internal dissension today rocked the drivers' organizations and employers challenged the right of the National Recovery Administration to draw up a code for the industry and fix a minimum wage.

Lee Jablon, a member of the committee of thirteen which late yesterday signed the strike settlement, announced that the Taxi Drivers of Greater New York would be formed by a consolidation of the four unions which participated in the strike.

MOVE TO LIMIT PLANE MAKERS' PROFITS AFOOT

House Committees Study 10 or 15% Maximum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Steps to clap a statutory limitation of 10 or 15 per cent on the profits of private airplane and engine companies under army and navy contracts were in prospect today.

Moved by current disclosures regarding profits on aircraft construction work done for the two services, members of the house military and naval committees prepared to bring in legislation designed to make excess profits under government plane contracts illegal.

The movement for such legislation was given impetus today by testimony that the Boeing Aircraft company had realized a 90 per cent profit on one army contract involving $284,439, and by the disclosure that the Consolidated Aircraft company of Buffalo, N. Y., made a profit so large that it sold fifty planes to the government at $1 each to make up for the gain.

Company Heads to Talk.

Officials of the various aircraft manufacturing companies have yet to make their appearance before the committees. They have been asked to appear, it is understood, but will not be heard until the testimony of army and navy officers has been finished.

Until the company executives take the stand, nothing will be heard of their side of the story, but they are expected to make vigorous denials that the profits on army and navy work are excessive.

Appearing before the military affairs committee, Brig. Gen. H. Conger Pratt, assistant chief of the army air corps, revealed today that in 1927 an official audit showed the Consolidated company to have made a profit of 46.1 per cent on its army contracts. When the size of the profit was learned, Gen. Pratt told the committee, officials of the company were summoned into conference at the war department with the result that they agreed to sell the government 50 plants at the price of one dollar apiece.

Woodring Bares Figure.

"The base contract price on that type of plane was $6,000," the officer declared, "so the contractor returned to the government about $300,000."

It was Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring who informed the committee that the Boeing company made a 90 per cent profit on one of its contracts for army planes. Consistently, according to an official audit which Mr. Woodring submitted for the record, the Boeing company has realized a better profit on its service work than its competitors.

The profits reported by both the army and navy auditors, it was learned today, represent net profits without allowing for the payment of federal taxes. Depreciation, labor, materials, and development work are taken into consideration in computing the profits.

Report Loss on One Contract.

Profits realized by the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Engine company on war department contracts during the last six years, the testimony showed, averaged 32.7 per cent. On navy contracts during the same period they averaged 36 per cent.

The Wright Aeronautical company, Pratt-Whitney's only major competitor, lost .3 per cent on its army contracts in the same period and profited only 5 per cent on navy work.

The wide disparity between the profits of the two competing aircraft motor companies was attributed by army and navy officials to the efficiency of Pratt-Whitney.

Oppose Engine Monopoly.

Both branches of the service pointed out to the committee that they hesitated to force down the price paid Pratt-Whitney under government contracts, since in doing so the Wright company's profit would be wiped out and the latter company forced out of business.

The war and navy departments are extremely eager, it was said, to keep two airplane engine manufacturers in the field competing with one another in order to prevent a monopoly on the type motor most suitable for service needs.

Wants Ex-Husband to Pay for Pearls

JEANNE AUBERT.

Saved His Life

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Jeanne Aubert saved the life of her former husband, Nelson Morris of Chicago, in October, 1929, and now he won't even pay for $10,000 worth of pearls bought from Lebolt & Co. In August of that year the lissome French blonde testified before Supreme Court Justice Samuel Hofstadter today.

"I was in Nice in October, Vingt-neuf-twenty-nine, you know," the actress recalled, "an' 'e wire me 'e will kill 'imself if I don't rëenter Paris. So I rëenter."

"Irrelevant, incompetent, immaterial," orated counsel for Lebolt & Co., suing Miss Aubert for the $10,000.

"Sustained," said the court.

Miss Aubert twittered and rolled her eyes.

She argues she was living with the Chicago meat packer when she bought the pearls, with his consent and encouragement, and that it is up to him to pay for them. The couple parted in November, 1929, because Miss Aubert refused to quit the stage. They were divorced in May, 1933.

Mr. Morris has remarried.

The case was adjourned until Tuesday because of the absence of a witness for the plaintiff.

JUDGE ORDERS BODYGUARD FOR MRS. G. M. COX

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—An armed bodyguard of ten deputy sheriffs to protect Mrs. George M. Cox from her husband was ordered by Judge Hugh C. Cage today when he signed an order commanding that Mrs. Cox be brought back into the state to attend future court hearings in her divorce suit against Cox, the former malt dealer and ship owner and builder.

"I have reputable witnesses in court now," Mrs. Cox's attorney told Judge Cage, "who will testify that Mr. Cox bought a pistol and made the statement that he will put bullets into his wife's head as soon as he sees her. That is why Mrs. Cox is not now in court; why she fears to come here to answer this cause."

Mrs. Cox has presented the depositions of three Chicago women reported to reveal too friendly relations with Mr. Cox.

JUDGE G. F. RUSH TRANSFERRED TO CRIMINAL COURT

Judges of the Criminal court who are demanding the assignment of two extra judges to their court to help clear up the overcrowded trial docket, had half of their demand fulfilled last night.

One extra judge—Judge George Fred Rush—was delegated to the Criminal court by the executive committee of the Circuit court. He will start work in the Criminal court on Tuesday. One more judge is to be assigned, this one from the Superior court.

In addition to Judge Rush two new judges will move into the Criminal court Tuesday, but they will serve as replacements, and not add to the judicial personnel. They are Judges Marcus J. Kavanagh and Daniel P. Trude. Judge Kavanagh will take the place of Judge Jospeh B. David, now in California, and Judge Trude will substitute for Judge Benjamin Epstein, who is leaving the Criminal court.

In their request for extra judges, presented in the form of a resolution, the Criminal court judges stated that the speedy trial of criminal cases should be considered more important than civil cases.

ELEVATED EMPLOYE KILLED.

Samuel Moffett, 60 years old, 6939 Laflin street, a guard employed by the Rapid Transit lines, was killed last night when he was crushed between an outgoing car and the east platform of the Norman avenue terminal at 69th street.

$400,000 FRAUD LAID TO CHAIN STORE EXECUTIVE

Former A. & P. Agent Is Indicted by Jury.

Louis W. Gruber, youthful financier who is alleged to have defrauded his former employers, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, of from $400,000 to $700,000 with an ingenious system of account switching, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury.

Specifically he is charged with embezzling $9,688 by obtaining signatures to written instruments by false pretenses, but First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said that his peculations over a period of years would exceed $400,000 and might reach near the three-quarter million mark.

Former Purchasing Agent.

Gruber, who is 34 years old, was until recently purchasing agent for the chain grocery company, with which he became connected nine years ago. How he allegedly used the position to swindle the A. & P. was related by Assistant State's Attorney James P. Brown.

Buying thousands of tons of foodstuffs for company stores, he is said to have directed the sellers to charge their goods to the account of the Monarch Specialty company, which he described as a subsidiary of the Great Atlantic and Pacific. Deliveries, however, were made direct to the A. & P.

Monarch Specialty, Mr. Brown said, was apparently a creation of the fertile brain of Gruber and had no equipment except a mailing address. Receiving the sellers' bills at this address, Mr. Brown asserted, Gruber would hold them and forward new bills of the Monarch Specialty company, larger in amount, to the chain grocery concern.

General Sales Agency.

To his superiors there he is alleged to have related that the Monarch Specialty company was a general sales agency maintained by the manufacturers of foodstuffs from whom he bought. His scheme was effective so long as he kept the manufacturers believing his brain child was part of the A. & P. and the A. & P. believing it was an agency of the sellers.

Checks of the chain stores, Mr. Brown said, were deposited to the account of Monarch Specialty and payment for the goods was then made by this concern, the padding of the accounts being retained by Gruber as a profit.

The state's attorney's office professed to have no knowledge of the location of the dummy intermediary company's office. Due to its lack of impediments, it could have been moved at will. A report to the prosecutors that it was once in the Mather tower could not be confirmed there, although Gruber had been seen frequently in the building.

Gambles in Stocks.

Witnesses at the grand jury hearing were reported to have related that the ex-purchasing agent, who was dismissed when his financial jugglery was exposed, had lost large amounts in the stock market.

Gruber, whose home was at 609 Stratford place, has not been apprehended. A maid there said both he and Mrs. Gruber had left Chicago on Wednesday. Police of the state's attorney's office were assigned to watch the house and seize the fugitive if he returns.

EVANSTON POLICE SHOOT GUNMAN IN BUSY STREET

Thief Captured After Firing on Officer.

Pistols popped in the Davis street business district in Evanston yesterday as police exchanged shots with two men who had stolen an automobile from a motor finance company salesman and an hour later attempted to sell the machine. One of the gunmen was shot, critically wounded, and captured, but his companion escaped in a chase which led through the business district of the north shore suburb.

The prisoner gave his name as James Putney, alias Harry Davidson, 28 years old. He said he had served a term in an Indiana prison. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, where physicians said the bullet had penetreated his back and pierced his lung. They said the wound might prove fatal.

Answer Auto Ad.

The theft plot had its inception two days ago when Putney, with a companion who gave his name as Leon Katz, answered a newspaper advertisment announcing an automobile for sale. The ad had been inserted by R. B. McCoy, 1547 East 67th street, a salesman for the South Shore Finance company. The two men asked McCoy to meet them yesterday in an apartment at 931 Leland avenue, bringing the automobile with him.

When McCoy appeared at 9 o'clock yesterday the men talked over the deal for two hours. Then, ascertaining that McCoy had title papers to the car, a small coupe, which he had parked on a nearby street, the pair overpowered him.

They put a gag in his mouth and bound his wrists and ankles. Taking the title papers, they left. It was an hour before the salesman was able to free himself and telephone his office.

Meanwhile, the men had driven to the offices of the Motor Acceptance company at 5710 Broadway where they offered to sell the car to Elmer T. Johnson, an official of the company. After bargaining for sometime Johnson got in touch with the South Shore Finance company and learned the men were robbers.

Drives Them to Evanston.

Without revealing to the robbers that he knew their identity Johnson offered to drive them to the company office at 1603 Orrington avenue, meanwhile telling a fellow worker to call the police. Arriving there he took the men into the office and then left to get help.

At the corner of Orrington and Davis streets he found Policeman Edward Cohen and the two returned to the motor company office but the robbers had fled. Later Policeman Cohen saw the men get into a taxicab at Davis street and Benson avenue, near the busy Davis street "L" station. As the cab pulled away from the curb the policeman jumped on the running board and ordered the driver to halt.

Putney and his companion, however, jumped out the other door. Whipping out a revolver Putney fired two shots at the officer and then turned to flee. As he did so a bullet from Cohen's gun knocked him to the pavement. The other man lost his hat, but made his escape.

A short time later, Stewart Crown, 1422 Wesley avenue, Evanston, a taxicab driver, told police he had driven a man answering the description of the escaped bandit to the intersection of Glenview road and Skokie road in Wilmette. There the bandit paid only part of his fare and threatened Crown with a gun when he protested.

CHICAGOANS' YACHT RUNS AGROUND IN N. Y.; IS RESCUED BY TIDE

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—After being aground for 16 hours in sub-zero cold in Ambrose channel, the steam yacht Uvira was floated at high tide late today and towed back to a Brooklyn pier. There Mr. and Mrs. Jackson K. Dering of Chicago and their thirty guests pondered the possibility of a fresh start on their six month exploration cruise of the South seas.

The yacht had pulled out after midnight Thursday as per schedule without taking seriously the 14.3 below temperature which had clogged the waters with floating ice. Within a short time the craft was aground in the narrow channel—a feat at which professional mariners marveled. They opined that since the channel is well marked and plenty deep it must have required some "extraordinary navigating" to get into low water.

Anyway, the thirty aboard took their mishap good-naturedly and after several tugs had failed to pull them off the Derings and their skipper decided all they could do was to wait until high tide. This they did. Meantime they spent much time trying to keep warm and wishing that they had already reached the southern waters.

BANKS' INSULL LOAN LOSS SET AT 43½ MILLION

Utility Czar's Power Over Bankers Shown.

Chicago banks had hundreds of accounts secured by Insull collateral which were jeopardized by the collapse in the market prices.

Shares of the three Insull companies named were posted as collateral in 703 separate accounts by at least 500 borrowers at the First National bank, E. E. Brown, vice president, testified in federal court this week.

Bank President Lists Pledges.

These pledges were listed by Mr. Brown as follows: 746,596 shares of Middle West Utilities company; 11,022 shares of Middle West preferred; $262,000 of Middle West notes; 174,719 shares of Corporation Securities common; 78,385 of Corporation Securities preferred stock; $345,000 of Corporation Securities notes; 94,397 shares of Insull Utility Investments common; 62,889 shares of Insull Utility Investments preferred.

Common stocks of the three companies are considered worthless. The preferred is of extremely doubtful value. Notes of Middle West Utilities hold more promise than those of Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities, the ultimate value of which is extremely speculative.

The pledges listed by Mr. Brown include not only those posted by the Insull companies but by other borrowers. Mr. Brown testified that the bank made no personal loans to Insull.

Stocks Held by Bank.

Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental, reported that his bank held the following blocks of Insull holding company securities: 2,664,121 shares of Middle West common, 39,477 of the preferred, and $338,000 of the "gold" notes; 1,359,292 of Corporation Securities common, 1,619,596 of two classes of preferred, and $2,775,000 of the notes; 279,974 shares of Insull Utility Investments common, 56,590 of the preferred, and $270,000 of the debentures. These securities are either owned outright or held as collateral.

In the case of both the First National and Continental banks much of these holdings represents collateral for the loans to the three companies named. The testimony has not brought out the specific loans the collateral is supposed to secure.

These securities represent the most questionable of the Insull collateral held by the two banks. In addition they hold large blocks of stock of the three big Chicago operating utility companies. These latter securities are now selling in some instances at prices representing only 25 per cent of the collateral value at which they were accepted. They are, however, high grade issues of ready marketability.

Losses Written Off.

Losses sustained on their Insull loans and investments have already been written off by Chicago banks. They represented a large part of the write-offs of 106 millions which the Continental bank has made since the depression began. These write-offs necessitated replenishing the bank's capital through the sale of $50,000,000 preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The First National bank also has set up reserves to take care of the losses sustained in its Insull loans and investments. The total loss cannot be accurately reckoned at present, pending the liquidation of the collateral and the clearing up of possible contingent liabilities.

The First National sold $25,000,000 of preferred stock to the RFC, but it did not absorb its Insull losses through reduction of the common stock. These were taken care of by appropriations from surplus and reserves. The bank has made two adjustments of surplus and reserves. The first was a reduction of surplus from $25,000,000 to $15,000,000, the difference being used in part to cover Insull losses. The second adjustment, made in connection with the RFC stock sale, cut surplus to $10,000,000 and set aside a special reserve of $5,000,000.

Insull loans of the Dawes bank, the Central Republic Bank and Trust, aggregated $11,977,400 when the Insull receiverships occurred. These were taken over by the successor bank, the City National Bank and Trust. The Insull accounts were among the compelling factors which necessitated the reorganization accomplished by means of a $90,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Among the loans of the Dawes bank were personal loans of $500,000 to Samuel Insull and $263,000 to Martin Insull.

Among the other known personal loans to Samuel Insull was an advance of $5,000,000 made by the National City Bank of New York. Insull signed a note for this advance at the request of Charles E. Mitchell, then president of the bank.

The readiness of the bankers in meeting the demands of Samuel Insull when he was in his heyday was due to several causes. His influence with bankers was probably greater than that of any other individual of his day. His ability to take business away from bankers who incurred his disfavor explains, perhaps, better than anything else his power over them. Implied threats of withdrawal of Insull deposits frequently brought recalcitrant bankers into line.

Several prominent Chicago bankers were among the list of "favored investors" who subscribed for Insull stocks at the inside prices. Among them were Frederick H. Rawson, then chairman of the First National bank; Melvin A. Traylor, president of bank; George M. Reynolds, former chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and Stanley Field, also a former chairman of the Continental.

Insull's Personal Attorney Says Former Chief Is 'Broke'

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Samuel Insull's personal lawyer, Waldo F. Tobey, yesterday pictured Insull as "on the bridge" when his financial ship went down. Mr. Tobey also contended that Insull's thoughts in disaster were not for himself but for the thousands of the investors who had followed him for years.

This picture of the utility magnate's character was painted by the lawyer at the "town meeting" in progress before Federal Judge Lindley to discover whether fraud was practiced in the receivership of Insull's Middle West Utilities company.

Former Chief Is "Broke."

As one of three men in the vast Insull organization whom the fugitive financier allowed access to his private safety box, Mr. Tobey testified his former chief was "broke" on April 10, 1932, the beginning of the week when the Insull companies went down in a billion dollar crash—the greatest of all time.

All the Insull family's diversified holdings, once valued above $100,000,000, he testified, were then and are still in stocks of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company, which stocks today are worthless.

Aside from the wipeout there, the lawyer said, Samuel Insull had only his $5,000,000 estate, Hawthorn farms at Libertyville. This the bankers later seized with its furnishings for partial satisfaction of Insull's enormous personal debts.

Examined by Attorney Green.

Mr. Tobey, retired senior partner in the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale, was examined about Insull's finances and his own by Attorney Henry I. Green of Urbana, whom Judge Lindley named to conduct the Middle West inquiry.

Through earlier witnesses Mr. Green had shown Insull ordering manipulation of a $5,000 Middle West promissory note held by another of his concerns, the Lincoln Printing company, to establish grounds for a receivership petition against Middle West, where no such grounds in fact existed, with reference at least to the printing company.

Mr. Tobey recalled Insull summoning him to the Chicago club on Sunday, April 8, 1932, where preliminary details of the Middle West receivership were arranged. The questioning:

Q.—What was said about the receivership setup? A.—Some one said—I think it was I—that all we could do was suggest names and the court would appoint whom he saw fit. Mr. Insull wanted some one of national prominence—some one who would enjoy the confidence of the security holders.

The lawyer's voice broke a little on the last sentence. His demeanor showed that, while Insull's friends might now be few, one of them still was staunch.

Recalls Insull's Words.

"I recall Mr. Insull's own words," he began to quote. "'I'm gone anyway,' was what he said. 'The thing that now concerns me is the security holders. Those people have been following me for years and years.'"

Q.—You were one of those followers yourself, Mr. Tobey? A.—Yes.

In response to another question, the lawyer said he had holdings not only in Insull Utility Investments and in Corporation Securities, but also in Middle West common and preferred, which stocks have declined from a peak of $450 to less than a dollar a share at present.

Q.—Do you know where Mr. Insull's interests lay—with what class of investments? A.—Well, he had transferred all his securities two years before to Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities—his Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, Public Service of Northern Illinois—everything.

Q.—Anything else? A.—Nothing else of value, except his farm near Libertyville. [The reference was to Hawthorne farms, now held by the banks.]

Gets Into Deep Water.

On cross-examination by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, who is asking that the Middle West receivership be voided by reason of fraud, Mr. Tobey got into deep water. As a former director of Insull Utility Investments Mr. Tobey is one of Insull's codefendants in the mail fraud indictment now pending in federal court.

"You know these companies were hopelessly and irretrievably insolvent on the day of receivership?" Ettelson asked, endeavoring to show fraud by asking an equity receivership of a bankrupt corporation.

"From a market standpoint, I suppose they were," came the reply.

Mr. Tobey's personal counsel, James G. Condon, jumped to his feet, his face working with anxiety. There was a whispered colloquy between him and Ettelson, after which it was agreed that the question and answer should be stricken from the record.

Mr. Ettelson then went into the matter of Mr. Tobey's access to Insull's deposit box and was leading up to the point of Insull's sailing for Paris when the court ruled such testimony irrelevant.

Essington on Stand.

The next witness was Thurlow G. Essington, whom Mr. Tobey had admitted "appointing" as attorney for the Lincoln Printing company in the Middle West receivership petition action after a Middle West time note held by the Lincoln company had been changed to a demand note to provide grounds for the petition.

Up to three days before the receivership, Mr. Essington disclosed, Insull professed belief that "not one of his investors would lose a dollar if the properties were conserved."

He related that at a meeting held in Judge Lindley's chambers, where, with an agreement made on the appointment of Insull, the late Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch as Middle West co-receivers. Judge Lindley instructed Insull what his duties would be and cautioned him against "domination."

Day Before Receivership.

Q. [by Mr. Green]—What happened there? A.—Judge Lindley reminded the three receivers of the gravity of the situation and the number of people whose savings were involved.

Q.—What, if anything, did Mr. Insull say? A.—I remember him leaning across the desk and telling the judge: "Judge Lindley, if we can hold the properties together until money gets easier and until we can borrow from the banks, not one investor will lose a dollar."

Q.—What else was said? A.—The judge turned to him and said: "Mr. Insull, you have a reputation for being a very dominant person. If I appoint you three men receivers, you three will be the arms of this court. You will have authority and responsibility and be equally responsible to me. If I find you, Mr. Insull, are inclined to make this a one man receivership, I will discharge you and appoint others who will live up to their obligations."

COLD, 14.3 BELOW, BREAKS 150 YEAR LOW IN NEW YORK

Washington Shivers at 6 Below.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The coldest weather New York City has experienced since the American revolution resulted in six deaths, uncounted frostbitten ears, and general misery among rich and poor.

The rich were caught unawares and many of them promptly hit the trail south to escape the 14.3 below zero cold. The coldest prior day was Dec. 30, 1917, when the record was 13 below. The normal temperature for the day in New York is 31 degrees above.

The poor were trapped, many without fuel and food, and police and welfare workers were kept busy at relief long into the night.

While the official low temperature recorded atop the White Hall building by the government observers was 14.3 below, many thermometers throughout the city showed readings down to 22 below.

Records Cover 64 Years.

The weather bureau records go back only sixty-four years, but Prof. James H. Scarr, chief meteorologist, declared he was certain it was the coldest day since the revolutionary war.

The lowest temperature was at 7:25 a. m. By 4 p. m. thermometers had risen to 7 above zero, but at nightfall subzero readings were in again, and the forecast was that by dawn the city might have temperatures below 14.3 degrees.

Cold as the weather bureau conceded it to be here, there were other places nearby where the thermometer readings were much lower. It was 47 below zero at High Point Park, near Newton, N. J. at 9 a. m., and at Fairmont, in Somerset county, it was 28 below.

Even Washington, D. C., at 6 below, and at Richmond, Va., the mercury fell into the minus column. White River, Ontario, reported 52 degrees below zero.

All Time Low at Boston.

Still the country maintained its tradition and reputation for contrasts of climate. Icebergs seventy-five feet high were seen drifting past Moomoy point, near Chatham, Mass., Seattle, Wash., far up in the northwest, reported flowers in bloom, swimming in Puget sound, and a dusk fell, frogs croaking in a symphony of spring in a suburban marsh. Rain, sleet, and snow pelted Atlanta, Ga., and the surrounding southland.

Pennsylvania reported 40 to 60 below zero in some areas. Philladelphia basked at 10 below.

Boston reported a new all time record of 18 below and New Haven, Conn., advices said it was colder there than at any previous time since the establishment of the weather bureau back in the early '70s. The town's minimum was 15 below.

Subzero temperatures covered Ohio ranging from 8 degrees below zero at Chardon to 26 degrees below. For the first time in years the Ohio river was frozen over a course 300 miles long. Engineers strove in vain to keep it open.

Some New York schools were closed, traffic was snarled and hospital attendants were kept busy attending cases of frostbite and exposure. The worst sufferers were policemen, firemen, and school children. School officials predicted a diminution in the "hatless" craze.

Judge Frozen Off Bench.

The enforced closing was not confined to schools. Remarking that he did not wish "to create a vacancy" on the bench, Justice Edward S. Dore adjourned part one of the Bronx Supreme court at 2 p. m. The jurors and attorneys in a negligence action had been sitting in the courtroom for several hours shivering in spite of overcoats with upturned collars.

William Hodson, welfare commissioner, declared no man or woman need freeze for lack of shelter.

The Sixteenth Regiment armory provided shelter for 10,050 homeless men and it was announced that today facilities would be provided for 2,000 women in the 244th Coast Artillery Regiment armory.

Too Chilly for CWA.

Because of the weather, 80,000 CWA employés in outdoor work got a day off. E. P. Goodrich, commissioner of sanitation, halted snow removal, and 4,500 unemployed men had another day of idleness.

At Newark the Passaic river was frozen over for the first time in the memory of oldest inhabitants and nearly fifty small craft were imprisoned by the ice.

NEW YORKERS CROWD PLANES, PULLMANS TO SEEK SUN IN THE SOUTH

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—New Yorkers fled southward by air and rail routes in unprecedented numbers today to escape the record freeze.

Eastern Air Transport reported that it was "booked solid" to Florida until Monday, that in addition to all the scheduled planes on the southern run, new sections had to be added and the inland routes were absorbing some of the traffic.

Record breaking reservations for Florida, Pinehurst and other southern points were reported by A. H. Shaw, general passenger agent for the Pennsylvania railroad. Southern bookings between Feb. 1 and Feb. 8 totaled 4,700 as against 2,924 in the same period last year.

The Florida special of the Pennsylvania line, which usually goes out in two or three sections, carried 600 passengers in five sections as it pulled away for the southland today. The company officials estimated the jump in traffic at better than 60 per cent.

FIVE GIRLS WED; FATHER BROODS, SLAYS COUPLE

Byers, Colo., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A bridal couple was shot to death tonight at the ranch home of the bride's father, Emil Stepputtus, 58, who had been brooding, officers said, because all of his five daughters were married recently.

The victims were Elmo Demoney, 21, and Mrs. Elza Stepputtus Demoney, 18, who wed two weeks ago.

Stepputtus, named by Sheriff Lee Templeton as the slayer, injured his son, Walter, 25, in the burst of shotgun fire and then shot and seriously wounded himself.

Officers were summoned to the home by Walter's wife, who rushed him by motor car to a Denver hospital.

INSULL APPEALS TO LEAGUE; SAYS HE'S "HOUNDED"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Feb. 9.—Protesting that as a blameless and ailing old man he is being pursued from pillar to post, Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities promoter, has laid his case before the league of nations, it is reported, in a plea indicting governmental "inhumanity." The plea asks Geneva to intervene in the fight being waged by the United States to return Insull to Chicago for trial.

The move, THE TRIBUNE was told late tonight, was engineered by one of Insull's three lawyers, who is a prominent member of the Greek League of Nations union. The union was induced to pass a resolution which will be forwarded to Geneva. Similar organizations exist in all countries of Europe as propaganda agents.

Meanwhile, Insull is waiting for the next 48 hours to pass, after which he becomes a fugitive without a passport. Government circles reported that if he refuses to accept a new American passport and balks at quitting Greece on papers issued in Athens, there is only one alternative according to Greek law. That is to throw him into prison.

FRIEND OF NEEDY, REV. MYERS, ILL WITH BAD HEART

The Rev. Johnston Myers, who for more than 40 years has fed the needy at the Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan avenue, is ill from a heart attack at his home at 1715 East 55th street, it was learned yesterday. The pastor was stricken almost a month ago. Although his condition is considered serious, he has directed the work of feeding the hungry from his sick room.

According to Dr. A. R. E. Wyant, his physician, the attack was caused by the strenuous work of feeding thousands of unemployed who came daily to his church during the Christmas holidays, and in addition preaching two sermons on Sundays and teaching a Bible class of unemployed men. The Rev. Mr. Myers is 74 years old.

CHICAGO'S 1932 TAX BILLS CUT BY $40,000,000

Average Citizen to Save About 15 Pct.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $232,938, making a total of $105,689,357 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Feb. 9	$ 31,630	$ 38,782
Uncollected	15,306,807	41,919,784
	1930.	1931.
Feb. 9	$ 45,266	$ 117,960
Uncollected	64,861,223	62,647,252

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $560.

Although Chicago's tax rate for 1932 will be the highest since 1926, the tax bills will average 15 per cent less than those for 1931. This would be a cut of nearly $40,000,000. This was disclosed last night when the tax rates for seven of the eight city towns were made public by County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer.

The deadline for payment of the first installment of the 1932 taxes is March 1, but probably will be extended until April 15. County Treasurer McDonough will begin mailing the bills on Monday.

The average tax rate for city residents will be $7.67 for each $100 of assessed valuation. This average is struck from the tax rates of the seven towns ranging from the high of $7.90 in Lake View to the low of $7.36 in West Town. The variation in the different towns is due to the different rates of the park districts which are included in the total.

Increase of 41 Cents.

The tax rate is the same for real estate and personalty. The average rate of $7.67 is an increase of 41 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation over 1931, when the rate averaged $7.26.

The decrease in the bills, however, prevails because of the 25 per cent reduction in 1932 real estate assessments made by County Assessor J. L. Jacobs. The personal property assessment, however, was raised 17 per cent. But the ratio of the total real estate assessment to the total personal property assessment is approximately 2 to 1 and Mr. Jacobs estimated that the average property owner, favored by the 25 per cent real estate reduction as against the increase in personal property assessment and the rise in the tax rate, will enjoy a reduction of approximately 15 per cent in his taxes.

Levy of $263,756,000.

The 1931 total tax levy was $263,756,604. The estimate on the 1932 levy, applying a 15 per cent reduction, will be approximately $224,000,000.

In computing the rates Mr. Sweitzer used as a base the total of the rates of the six major taxing bodies in the county. The basic rates for the calculation of the 1932 tax bills, compared with rates for the same taxing bodies in 1931, are shown in dollars and cents in the following table:

Tax division.	1932.	1931.
State	$ .50	$ .39
County	.58	.52
Forest preserve	.14	.11
Sanitary district	.67	.56
City	2.82	2.52
Schools	2.03	2.46
Totals	$6.74	$6.56

To these 1932 basic rates are added the park district, park bond, and town rates for the various townships to produce the tax rate in each township. The total rates for the seven townships are shown in the following table:

Township.	Tax rate
North Chicago	$7.87
South Chicago	7.73
Hyde Park	7.73
Lake	7.73
West Chicago	7.36
Lake View	7.90
Rogers Park	7.38

The tax rate for the eighth city township, Jefferson, has not yet been completed because of the many park districts included in it. Mr. Sweitzer said that he would have the rate figure for this township on Monday.

Same Rate in Three Towns.

The tax rates for South Chicago, Hyde Park, and Lake townships are the same because the only rate added to the basic rate in these instances is the south park rate of 99 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation. In North Chicago additions to the basic rate were: Town tax, 5 cents; Lincoln park, 43 cents, and Lincoln park bonds, 65 cents. In West Chicago the only addition was 62 cents for the west parks.

Additions in Lake View were: Town tax, 7 cents; Lincoln park, 44 cents, and Lincoln park bonds, 65 cents. In Rogers Park the basic rate was increased 37 cents for the North Shore Park district and 27 cents for the Ridge Avenue Park district.

The taxpayer in these seven towns can now compute his bill by taking the tax rate figure for each $100 of assessed valuation, which is equivalent to multiplying his assessment in dollars by the tax rate and placing the decimal point two more places to the left.

Average Rates for City.

The following table shows the average rates for the city townships for each of the last seven years:

Year.	Average rate.
1926	$4.70
1927	4.90
1928	5.21
1929	6.175
1930	6.756
1931	7.26
1932	7.67

Prior to 1927, however, the law provided that rates should be based on an an assessed valuation of one-half of the full value. Since 1927 the rates have been based on full value. The term "full value" is used in the assessor's sense. The 37 per cent equalization factor is applied to the actual value of property to produce the "full value" used by Assessor Jacobs.

Rates for the country towns in Cook county have not yet been completed in Mr. Sweitzer's office. The basic rates in each of these towns are different and to these basic rates are added rates for the school districts and in many instances sanitary district.

More Funds Needed.

The increase in the levies of five of the six major tax divisions, which resulted in the higher tax rate in 1932, was due to the need of more funds to retire bonds. The state tax rate, increased 11 cents, will only be effective for 1932 and 1933 taxes. This rate has been abolished by the legislature for 1934 and all future years.

The increase in the county tax rate is in part explained by the fact that elections come in the even numbered years and in these years the county is allowed a 4 cent addition to the rate to defray the election expenses. The decrease in the school board rate is explained by a scaling down of the levy for building purposes.

Mr. Sweitzer and County Treasurer McDonough announced that wherever possible real estate and personal property tax bills will be mailed to the different townships at the same time. Both bills will not be in the same envelope, however.

The treasurer will begin to mail out the bills to South Chicago residents on Monday. Bills to the other towns will follow as they are completed.

As was done for 1931 bills, the 1932 bills may be paid in two equal installments. By statute the deadline for the payment of the first installment is March 1, 1934, and the deadline for the second payment is July 1, 1934.

Plan to Extend Deadline.

George Hagenauer, auditor in the office of County Treasurer McDonough, said last night that it will take at least 40 days to mail out the bills. According to law, the taxpayer is allowed 30 days from the mailing of the last bill to pay. This means that the deadline for the first installment payments will have to be extended to April 15 at least, Mr. Hagenauer said.

Mr. Hagenauer explained the working of a new statute passed by the legislature last year and applicable to the 1932 bills. This statute provides that any taxpayer paying his full bill before the first installment deadline shall receive a 5 per cent discount on the amount of his second installment. However, this 5 per cent is a per annum figure and the statute provides that it shall only apply to the number of months between the first and second installment deadlines.

How the Law Works.

Illustrating the working of the discount, Mr. Hagenauer took the case of a taxpayer whose full bill is $100. The second installment would be $50 and if the taxpayer paid the full $100 before the first installment deadline he might think he was entitled to a discount of 5 per cent of $50, or $2.50. However, the 5 per cent is on a yearly basis, and as only four months elapse between the first and second installment penalty dates the discount would be one-third of 5 per cent, or 1.66 per cent. Thus the taxpayer's saving on a $100 tax bill would be 1.66 per cent of $50, or 83 cents.

Woman Screams; Saves 50 Others from Robbery

Fifty women were playing cards last night in the 46th Ward Social and Benevolent club, 3035 Southport avenue, when three bandits, armed with shotguns, entered. They took $75 from Edward Glowinke, whose wife, Anna, was conducting the games, and then ordered all the women to place their purses on a center table. This was done and the robbers were about to scoop up the purses when one of the women screamed and fainted. The bandits became frightened and fled.

NORTHWEST SIDE BUS LINE MAKES OFFER TO SELL

An offer either to sell its line to the Chicago Surface Lines company or to negotiate for transfer privileges with it was made yesterday by the United States Motor Coach company before the Illinois commerce commission. The offer was made at a hearing on the petition of northwest side residents for feeder busses on Higgins road between Milwaukee avenue and the city limits.

This stretch is served by the coach company, which charges a 10 cent fare. Persons living outside the city limits are obliged to pay an additional 7 cent street car fare. The offer to deal with the street railway company was made by Leon Manuel, superintendent of the coach company, which also serves the Northwest highway between Milwaukee and Lawrence avenues and the village of DesPlaines.

Harry P. Weber, counsel for the surface lines, said proposals for the purchase of a private bus company by the Chicago Surface lines had no place in these proceedings.

COUNCIL DECIDES TO GET BUSY AND DRAFT '34 BUDGET

$44,000,000 Total Expected; Act Monday.

After conferring with Mayor Kelly yesterday the city council finance committee decided to stop "shadow boxing" with the appropriations for 1934 and settle down in earnest on Monday to draft the 1934 budget. It was gleaned from their discussions that the budget will total approximately $44,000,000, a cut of about $3,000,000 below the budget of last year.

For several days the aldermen have turned pages rather aimlessly in the tentative budget of $43,764,000 submitted to them by City Controler Upham, trying to fit it to an estimated revenue of $39,500,000. In the course of this study they pointed out what the cutting process would eventually effect in the reduction of the wages and personnel of the police and fire departments. This drew an objection from the mayor.

Praises Police Accomplishments.

"You can't destroy the police and fire departments," Mayor Kelly told the aldermen. "They are the backbone of the city. The police in 1933 more than earned their salaries by caring for visitors to A Century of Progress and "selling" Chicago to them. They aided materially in giving Chicago a new and good reputation.

"The controler already has cut approximately $4,000,000 below the 1933 appropriations, and I think that figure is about as low as we can go without interfering seriously with essential city services," the mayor stated. "We can't stop collecting garbage, and that service is going to cost more because the state has restrained the city from dumping in the old Illinois Michigan canal. With a 60 cent dollar and prices going up, I don't believe salaries can be cut any more."

Frank Flanagan, member of the finance committee staff, then explained that the citizens' committee on public expenditures is advocating that the corporate fund and working cash fund levies be merged for 1933 and 1934 for corporate purposes which would give the city's operating fund more revenue without raising additional taxes. This proposal, or a modified form is likely to be adopted, making $44,000,000 available.

Cut Health Service Costs.

Prior to the mayor's talk, the aldermen had approved a reduction in printing service for the health department—out of which comes the so-called "baby" books issued by the health department—from the $60,000 of last year to $40,000. They also had approved a cut of $59,000 in automobile maintenance for field doctors of the department, a move backed by Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th].

Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controler, informed the aldermen that before prohibition, when saloons were bringing in a revenue of $7,200,000 annually, the city corporate fund got 28 cents of each taxpayers' dollar. Now, he said, the corporate fund gets only 18 cents.

NEED $60,000,000 FOR RELIEF; PLAN APPEAL TO U. S.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday discussed a proposal to request cash advances from the Federal Emergency Relief administration equal to the $30,000,000 relief bond issue, in order to provide relief for the idle in Illinois without raising additional funds locally this year.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of relief for the commission, said that relief expenditures cannot be reduced below the present standards, which require the spending of about $6,000,000 a month. He suggested that federal relief be requested to make up the difference between funds in sight in Illinois and the needs for the last ten months of the year, which he estimates at about $60,000,000.

State officials who assisted in the passage of the $30,000,000 relief bond issue by the legislature last fall have expressed an opinion that no additional funds can be made available by bond issue this year and that drastic economies must be made in the relief administration.

CITY EMPLOYES GET 2 WEEKS' PAY; PROMISED MORE

City employés yesterday were paid approximately $2,000,000 for the first two weeks of November. The pay day was held on the orders of Mayor Kelly who announced that he was negotiating with bankers to obtain funds for another pay day for the last half of November within the next ten days. Cash used in yesterday's pay day was received by the city treasurer from miscellaneous license fees and receipts from delinquent taxes.

The Birth of THE VALENTINE

A THOUSAND YEARS AGO, so say the folklore fables, our ancestors looked forward to February fourteenth as the mating day of birds. Gradually, the fables further tell us, February fourteenth became a day of merry-making and sweetheart choosing.

ON the eve of St. Valentine's day the youths and maidens gathered on the village green; the eligible maidens' names were placed in a bowl and each young man, blindfolded, timorously drew the name of a maiden who then became his "sweetheart."

THUS this custom arose, and in honor of the saint whose name that day bore in the calendar of the early church, February fourteenth became known as St. Valentine's Day.

BREMER TELLS EXPERIENCES IN KIDNAPERS' LAIR

Beaten When Seized, He Suffers from Hurts.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Obviously suffering from severe nervous strain, Edward G. Bremer, president of the Commercial State bank of St. Paul and scion of a wealthy brewing family, sat in his home today and told the story of his 22 days' experiences in the hands of kidnapers.

Bremer, seized for $200,000 ransom on Jan. 17, and freed Wednesday night, appeared weak as clad in a dressing gown he sat in the living room of his home overlooking the Mississippi river and gave his statement to newspaper men.

The 37 year old banker broke down several times during the interview, tears filling his eyes, but he continued to the end after lapses of several minutes.

No Questioning Allowed.

None of the reporters present was allowed to ask questions. After Bremer finished his story they were immediately asked to leave.

Bremer told of the events which had taken place from the time he was kidnaped Jan. 17 shortly after leaving his 8 year old daughter Betty at the fashionable Summit school until the morning he entered the side door of his father's home after the ransom had been paid.

Dr. H. T. Nippert, personal friend and family physician, sat close by and encouraged Bremer as the story of the brutal sluggings and days spent in darkness was told.

Banker Tells His Experiences.

His story follows:

"I got the baby to school about 8:20 and driving away I went several blocks and stopped for the arterial highway. As I stopped the left door of the car was opened and an arm was extended through the door with a gun pointed toward me. A gruff voice said, 'Don't move or I'll kill you.'

"I put the car in low gear to cross the street and looked up and saw a car squarely in front of my car. I had placed my left foot through the door and the foot reached the running board. By this time the man who had opened the left door apparently had got inside my car.

"He began striking me over the head. I tried to get out the right door and bumped into something there. It apparently was another man, who also struck me over the head. I must have been struck 15 or 20 times. My eyes became filled with blood, and I was dazed. They pushed my head down under the dashboard. Meanwhile my left foot was still outside the left front door, for I had been thinking all the time that some one surely would see me as many people are taking their children to school by that route at that time of day.

Placed in Another Car.

"Finally they pulled my leg into the car and we started out. We drove awhile, I don't know how long or I don't know where, but it must have been 10 or 15 minutes later that they stopped the machine. They put goggles over my eyes and told me to get out. I had recovered my senses somewhat and distinctly remembered the commands to get out of the car, which I did. Then they placed me in another machine.

"I was placed in the back part of the other car and I was told to lie down. At that time my watch was taken away, which they told me was for identification purposes. They asked me who I would like to have as contact man and I mentioned Walter Magee. They then asked me who else they could perhaps get in touch with and I mentioned the names of several of the boys out at the brewery. I was told to sign some notes, but I don't know whether they were signed at that stop or a later stop. The car started and we proceeded to drive. I don't know how many hours. We drove and stopped again many hours later, and it was perhaps at that stop that I signed certain notes.

Allowed to Sit Up After Dark.

"At this stop there was undoubtedly another car accompanying us. Meanwhile, I was down at the bottom of the car and couldn't see or hear much. All I could hear was that they were refilling the car with gas. We again started to drive and we drove until it must have been dark. They later told me I could sit on the seat, because no one could see me after dark. We again stopped, and this time the car left us.

"I was awfully cold, so I asked if I could walk up and down. They walked up and down with me then so that I could warm up.

"Then the car returned and I again was put into the machine. We drove several hours more and there was another stop. Here I was taken out of the car and led some distance, where we went downstairs. I was sat on a chair. Then they examined my head and washed off the cuts as best they could.

"I told them to cut the hair away, as I didn't want any infection. They put a basin of water down in front of me, and a man who was standing behind me removed the bandage from my eyes.

Washes Wounds in Dark.

"It was pitch dark in the room. I located the wash basin with my hands and began to wash my hands and face. They were sticky with blood.

"I was then bandaged up and put to bed. The next morning they put me on a chair and served breakfast. I sat there in that same chair until I was put back to bed.

"This same routine was carried out all the time I was there. I was put on a chair until I couldn't sit any longer and when I'd complain they would put me back to bed.

"They told me to behave as they told me or they would chain me to the bed. Naturally, I acceded to their every wish.

"Every conversation they carried on was in a whisper. The boys said I acted 'very good.' My bandages were taken off while I was seated in a chair facing a corner, provided I didn't turn my head. If I did, they said, they would put them on for good.

Food Sometimes Scarce.

"The next morning the bandages were taken off. When anything was placed in front of me, my head was always covered so I couldn't see the person. The eats were hard to get, so some days we didn't eat very much. The only time I was allowed off the chair was when they walked me to the bathroom or when they put me to bed.

"After the first week, the leg I had stretched out of the car went bad, so I couldn't walk. So they sort of pulled me to the bathroom and to bed.

"One morning they talked to me and told me that arrangements had been made to release me. They put me on a chair and shaved me. I objected, but they did it any way, and it took them an hour. Then they took me outside and placed me in the bottom of a car surrounded by gasoline cans.

"We drove constantly except for one stop.

"At that time they took some cans out of the car and got more gasoline. After dark they allowed me to sit on the seat. They also let me out of the car with two attendants. They said, 'We will find out if the money is marked.'

Instructed as to Release.

'The car drove away, and when it returned they said everything was all right, that the money wasn't marked.

"After driving some time, they said we were nearing Rochester, Minn. 'We'll put you off on a dark street,' they said. 'Get out of the car, face the direction we are in but which is not the direction you are to walk. Count 15 slowly before you remove your bandages. Turn about face and go into Rochester. Be sure not to let any one recognize you. Go to the bus depot. Take the 9:40 bus to St. Paul. In St. Paul don't go to the bus depot. Get off before you get there. Get a cab and go home. But don't let anybody see you."

"I got out of the car, carefully counted 15, heard the car stop, so I didn't remove bandages until I heard the car start again.

Can't Walk Straight.

"I removed the bandages. I could make out a car with lights in back. I turned and tried not to stagger. I walked in circles a few minutes before I could walk straight. I walked five or six blocks, but I couldn't find the bus depot. I asked and found out there was no bus to St. Paul that night.

"The woman in the bus depot said, 'I think you can catch a train leaving for Owatonna in five minutes.'

"She told me that there I could get a bus for St. Paul. She called a cab for me; I bought a ticket; got into a train seat, and pulled my hat down over my eyes and rode that way until they called Owatonna. At Owatonna I hired a cab to take me to the bus station.

Arrives at Father's Home.

"In St. Paul as the bus was crossing the Wabasha street bridge I asked the driver to let me out there. I walked up along the side of the courthouse, and luckily no one passed me.

"I crouched near the courthouse until a cab went by. I told the cab driver I wanted to go to the West End Commercial club. When I got out of the cab I turned and walked up to the door of the Commercial club, and after the driver left I walked the few blocks to my father's home and reached the side entrance of the house."

At this point Bremer broke into sobs. Dr. Nippert told him he must stop. Walter Magee, contact man in the case and who delivered the ransom, came to his assistance.

Bremer Certain He Could Identify Two of Kidnapers

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—As combined squads of federal agents and police concentrated efforts today in their hunt for the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker released Wednesday after the payment of $200,000 ransom, it was learned that the abducted man had told authorities he could identify at least two of the men who had seized and held him for 22 days.

The two members of the gang who overpowered Bremer on Jan. 17 were unmasked. Before they slugged him with their guns the 37 year old president of the Commercial State bank says he had a clear glimpse of their faces.

Remembers Wall Paper Pattern.

Another important key in the hunt was furnished authorities by the victim. Bremer was reported to have told them that although he had been in darkness most of the time he remembered clearly the design of the wall paper of the room in which he had been held.

St. Paul police today went with Walter Magee, contractor, over the route he traveled in delivering the ransom money. Whether the trip was productive of clews could not be learned. Police also scrutinized every part of the auto provided by the kidnapers for Magee to carry the ransom. Clothing worn by Bremer while in the kidnaper's hands was studied under the microscope. Authorities would not divulge if they found any evidence of value.

It was learned also that federal agents are searching for Alvin Karpis and Freddie Barker, southwestern gang leaders.

Hunt Covers Wide Area.

Twenty-eight federal agents were reputed to be working in St. Paul. Other operatives were said to be on the case in Sioux City, Ia.; Bismarck, N. D.; Rochester, Minn., where Bremer was released Wednesday; Kansas City, Memphis, and Faribault, Minn., where the ransom money was paid.

Other developments of the day included a denial by Dr. H. T. Nippert, Bremer family physician, who received three notes from the kidnapers, that the gang had taken him to their hideout to treat injuries received by Bremer when he was slugged at the time he was seized.

Adolf Bremer, wealthy brewer and father of the young banker, and other members of the family were unavailable to interviewers today.

ARREST BARBERS' UNION OFFICIALS IN THREAT CASE

On complaint of Frank Satton, owner of a barber shop at 3518 Roosevelt road, Joseph Lauder, 4236 Haddon avenue, and James Rose, 1501 Ridgeland avenue, secretary and business agent respectively of local 548 of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, were arrested yesterday.

Satton said that he had refused to pay a fine of $75 assessed by the union officials and that he owed $300 dues. He charged that his shop windows were broken four times and a stench bomb was thrown into his place on the fourth occasion, Feb. 7.

The two union officials were taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning. They denied Satton's charges that they had threatened him unless he paid the money.

MURDER TRIAL OF DILLINGER IS SET FOR MARCH 12

State Balks Effort to Get Life Term.

Over the protests of a quartet of defense lawyers, the trial of John Dillinger, noted desperado, for the murder of Policeman William P. O'Malley of East Chicago in a bank robbery, was set yesterday for March 12 by Judge William J. Murray in Crown Point.

After the hearing, it was revealed by Prosecutor Robert G. Estill that the defense had offered to let Dillinger plead guilty to the murder if the state would agree to a life sentence for the defendant. Estill refused, he said, declaring that the state would insist upon the death penalty. Attorneys Louis Piquett of Chicago and Joseph Ryan of Indianapolis, two of Dillinger's four lawyers, emphatically denied that the defense had offered to enter a plea of guilty.

Seek a Month's Delay.

The defense asked for a four months' delay when Dillinger was arraigned before Judge Murray. The attorneys said that witnesses for Dillinger would be brought from Florida and other states to prove an alibi for him and that much time would be needed to prepare a defense. The state insisted that ten days was enough delay and Judge Murray finally allowed a continuance of a little over a month.

When Dillinger was brought into court he was handcuffed to a deputy sheriff, but the handcuffs were removed at the request of his attorneys who appealed to the court. The judge, however, refused to order the sheriff to permit Dillinger a visiting day each week.

Dillinger looked on with little change of expression as the attorneys loudly argued. In the language of the court, he "stood mute" when the indictment charging murder was read to him and a plea of not guilty to the charge was entered in the records for him.

Piquett Shouts "Murder."

When Prosecutor Estill suggested that ten days would give the defense ample time to prepare evidence, Attorney Piquett jumped to his feet and shouted:

"That would be legal murder. There's a law against lynching in this state."

"There's a law against murder, too," retorted Estill while the judge pounded the bench with a gavel.

The trial date was set after Circuit Judge T. Joseph Sullivan, sitting in the same court, had overruled a defense motion to allow the defendant liberty on a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Sullivan ruled that the process by which Dillinger was extradited from Arizona, where he was captured, had been legally proper.

Pals to Face Murder Trial.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made to take five other members of Dillinger's gang back to Lima, O., where they are to be tried for murder. Prosecutor Ernest Bodkin of Allen county, Ohio, was assured by Gov. Paul McNutt at Indianapolis that the men would be returned to Ohio for trial, where the state hopes to send them to the electric chair. Bench warrants charging the men with bank robbery in Greencastle, Ind., will be withheld.

The five men who will be taken back to Ohio for trial are Russell Clark, Harry Copeland, Charles Makley, Harry Pierpont, and Edward Shouse. They are now in the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City.

HURRICANE HITS GERMANY; 3 DIE, MANY ARE HURT

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A near hurricane swept Germany and roared across Scandinavia during the night, killing several persons and injuring many.

Three persons were known to be dead in addition to an undetermined number of sailors drowned when the fishing vessel Condor sank with all hands on board in the estuary of the Weser river. Baltic and North sea shipping was driven to harbor.

Hamburg, Breslau, and Stettin all reported heavy damage from the high winds. Nearly every house in a suburban colony for the unemployed near Berlin was unroofed. Setting about to clean up the streets, Berlin firemen, police, and Nazi storm troopers found a tangled mass of trees, wires, signs, statues, and sections of roofs.

Burglars Work 3 Hours, but Fail to Open Safe

Three burglars worked in vain for three hours on the safe in the offices of the Dearborn Laundry company at 1318 North Western avenue last night. They broke into the place about 3 o'clock, overpowered William Bajus, 919 North Campbell avenue, the watchman, and tied him up. Then they worked on the safe. Two hours later they broke open the outer door, but bumped into an inner steel door on which they worked for an hour and then gave up in disgust.

Construction Firm Wins $74,000 Canal Board Suit

A jury in the Circuit court before Judge John R. Caverly yesterday returned a judgment of $74,000 against the sanitary district. The judgment was obtained by Byrne Brothers Construction company, 5502 South Halsted street, for extra work done on a contract with the district in sewer construction under the north branch of the Chicago river in 1927. The original contract provided for a payment of $93,000, but the construction company asked the additional sum for necessary work not specified in the contract.

GUNMAN HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Michael Patterson, 23 years old, of Stockton, Cal., was held to the grand jury on a charge of robbery by Municipal Judge James M. Corcoran of Evanston yesterday after witnesses identified him as the gunman who held up a number of agents in elevated stations.

CLASH ON TAPPED WIRE EVIDENCE IN RACKET TRIAL

Report It Links Gangster with Defendant.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Clarence L. Converse, veteran federal investigator, testified last night in the racket conspiracy trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court that he had tapped the telephone wires of Attorney Morris I. Kaplan.

Attorney Kaplan is one of the principal defendants in the case having been attorney for the Cleaners and Dyers' institute. The prosecution's case is built on alleged violence and illegal strikes in the operation of the institute, which gave Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, university of Chicago economist, dictatorial powers in an effort to "stabilize" the industry.

Battle Over Evidence.

Converse and other federal agents listened to Kaplan's telephone conversations from June 15 to July 20, 1933. But what they heard he was not permitted to tell the jury. His appearance on the witness stand was the signal for the most extended legal argument of the trial to date, over the admissibility of evidence based on wire tapping.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber and his assistants would say only that the testimony would be highly important to their case, connecting "principal defendants" directly with incidents of violence. During the arguments, Attorney Bendict J. Short, representing Kaplan, said that he understood some of the conversations were between his client and Murray Humphreys, Public Enemy No. 1. Humphreys was indicted in the racket case, but is a fugitive from both state and federal authorities.

Converse first took the stand in the morning session of the trial, and exchanges between prosecution and defense counsel became so loud and bitter that Chief Justice Finnegan warned them sternly:

"I will not tolerate some of the actions of you gentlemen," said Judge Finnegan. "This is my last warning. If you do not heed it, drastic action will be taken."

Awaits Answer for State.

Converse was withdrawn from the stand then, but the arguments were renewed when he appeared again in the evening session. Attorney Short presented a petition to suppress the wire tapping evidence, on which he argued for the remainder of the session. Judge Finnegan will not rule on the petition until Prosecutor Raber answers for the state at the next session of the trial on Tuesday.

Questioned in the absence of the jury, Converse testified that he went to the Metropolitan building, 134 North La Salle street, where Kaplan had offices on the 21st floor, on June 15, 1932, on the orders of A. P. Madden, his superior in the local special intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau.

He said he entered a room on the 11th floor with a key which he obtained from Walter Walker, attorney for the Employers' association of Chicago. He said he did not know who had rented the room, nor where Walker got the key. He found Kaplan's telephone wire already tapped, with an extension running to the 11th floor room from the basement of the building. He did not know who had tapped the wire.

An Illinois statute forbids the "malicious" tapping of telephone wires. Wire tapping evidence has never been used in the trial of a criminal case in the state. On the other hand, the United States Supreme court ruled in a federal prohibition conspiracy case that wire tapping evidence was legal. Eight years ago Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, in a narcotic violation case, permitted Converse to give evidence obtained by wire tapping.

Evidence on Auto Deal.

In the interval between Converse's two apperances, Prosecutor Raber yesterday completed the chain of documentary evidence which showed that funds of Local 712 of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers and Chauffeurs' union, several of whose officers are defendants, bought a $3,900 automobile for Humphreys in the fall of 1931.

The automobile was purchased in Oshkosh, Wis. The two checks with which it was purchased are missing, but by means of bank records the payments were traced through two other banks to the account of the union in the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank, since closed.

In cross-examination of prosecution witnesses during the trial, defense attorneys have sought to lay the blame for various incidents of vandalism on Humphreys and his fellows of the Capone gang and to deny that gangsters had any connection with the union officials and other defendants actually on trial. On the basis of the automobile transaction the prosecution will now argue that the gangsters and the union officials were partners in the attacks on independent cleaners and dyers.

The witnesses whose testimony yesterday supplied the final links in the chain of documentary evidence were George Prescott, who was in charge of the commercial bookkeeping department of the Madizon-Kedzie bank, and William F. Fracke, an employé of the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, through which the checks were cleared.

TRIO CONVICTED OF AUTO THEFT; GET 1-20 YEARS

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Stolen, 33; recovered, 34; stripped, 2 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Thursday].

Three young defendants were convicted of automobile theft yesterday by a jury in the court of Municipal Judge Harry B. Miller and their sentences were fixed at 1 to 20 years in Joliet penitentiary. They are Alfred Gress, 23 years old, 517 West Division street; Lawrence Thomas, 21 years old, 534 West Division street, and Johnny Jones, 19 years old, 1109 Chatham court. The three were convicted of taking two automobiles on Jan. 5.

Thomas was arrested by the Lake Forest police on Jan. 6. A little later the other three crashed into an automobile at Franklin and Lake streets and then drove away, running through traffic lights in trying to escape. One of the gang, Fred Roach, escaped when his pals were captured at Madison and La Salle streets. Pursuing policemen fired several shots at him.

PRINCIPAL GETS 1 TO 10 YEARS IN SECURITY FRAUD

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Miss Cora Steele, 57, Terre Haute grade school principal, was sentenced to one to ten years in the Indiana woman's prison this afternoon on her plea of guilty in the theft of $25,000 in securities last year from the Indiana State Teachers' retirement fund.

Miss Steele had pleaded not guilty when arraigned, but the plea was changed, it was reported, after attorneys and friends had been unable to obtain a suspended sentence. She was taken to the prison to begin her term at once.

JUROR IN TOUHY CASE GETS 6 MOS. AS A PERJURER

Another Reprimanded and Then Freed.

Six months in jail was the penalty imposed by Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday on Francis P. Hayes, 2649 Flournoy street, one of the two veniremen in the trial of the Touhy gangsters for the kidnaping of John Factor, who testified falsely when answering questions during his selection as a juror.

Russell H. Brownell, manager of an apartment building at 1321 North La Salle street, the other juror, was liberated with a reprimand. The judge decided that ignorance rather than intent caused Brownell to aver that he had never been charged with a crime, despite the fact that he had been arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

Venireman Admits Perjury.

Hayes had denied during his venire examination that he had any relatives who had served prison sentences. An investigation disclosed that two brothers and his son are now serving terms in penitentiaries, all charged with robbery. Hayes admitted his perjury and said he had lied for fear of embarrassing himself and his family.

"He knew the importance of this trial and he knew what perjury meant," declared the judge after Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, representing Hayes, had pleaded that the man's falsehood had been a "white lie."

"The courts are confronted with the perjury of witnesses every day," Judge Feinberg continued, "and when it appears in the jury box, society's last hope, it must be punished."

Start Picking Jury Tuesday.

Judge Feinberg then summoned Attorney William Scott Stewart, counsel for the three Touhy gangsters under indictment, and told him to be ready to begin selection of the jury for a new trial next Tuesday morning. The first trial ended with a disagreement of the jury.

"A special venire of 100 men has been ordered for Tuesday," the judge told Attorney Stewart. "I warn you that this court will tolerate no delay."

"My clients have refused to give me any more money," replied Stewart. "I haven't even been paid all they owe me. I don't know whether or not I will represent them at the next trial."

After a conference in chambers with the judge, however, it was announced that Stewart would remain in the case and defend the Touhys.

3 Touhy Brothers Slain.

As Roger Touhy and his co-defendants, Albert Kator and Gus Schaefer, prepared for their second trial, investigators recalled that of the six Touhy brothers who first began to figure in Chicago's criminal world some 18 years ago, Roger is the only one remaining whose whereabouts is known to police.

Jimmie Touhy was killed in 1917; Johnny Touhy was slain in 1927; Joseph Touhy fell, a victim of bullets, in 1929. Of the remaining three, Tommy Touhy is reported to be dying of an incurable disease; Eddie Touhy has been missing for many months, and Roger has been locked up for the kidnaping of Factor since his capture in July, 1933. If Roger is convicted and electrocuted or sentenced for a long period, the name of Touhy will disappear from the list of criminals menacing the community, the investigators pointed out.

Bandits Rob New Lawrence Hotel; Threaten 10 Women

Five bandits entered the lobby of the New Lawrence hotel, 1020 Lawrence avenue, yesterday afternoon and threatened ten women guests and several employés while they looted the cash drawer of $300. One bandit forced Thomas Kearns, room clerk, to hand over the money, while his companions pointed guns at the women. Peter Curto, manager of the hotel, was held prisoner in his office. A sixth man drove the robbers away in a new sedan.

DISTILLED SPIRIT STRIP STAMP LAW IN EFFECT TODAY

Starting today every bottle of distilled spirits sold for beverage purposes in the United States will bear a strip stamp over the neck of the bottle, indicating that the revenue tax has been paid. Bottles containing bonded liquor will still carry the familiar blue stamp. Rectified liquor will carry a red and white stamp.

"Any bottle or container not bearing such a stamp will be liable to seizure and confiscation," E. C. Yellowley, supervisor of industrial alcohol permits, said last night. "In addition the sellers will be liable to a prison sentence and a fine for violation of the internal revenue laws." The strip stamps, which sell for from ¼ to 1 cent each, do not constitute an additional tax, but must be used to show that the revenue tax had been paid.

Today is also the last day for the payment of the 90 cents a gallon floor tax, representing the difference between $1.10, the old revenue tax, and $2, the present tax. All holders of liquor in stock are subject to the floor tax.

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. Continues to Improve

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., wife of the son of the former head of the utilities empire, was "continuing to progress satisfactorily" yesterday after an operation in St. Luke's hospital on Thursday morning. Mr. Insull who visited his wife at the hospital yesterday afternoon said that the operation, which was necessitated by a kidney infection, was a complete success. He also reported the progress of his wife toward recovery.

ALCORN PLEADS GUILTY; DRAWS LIFE SENTENCE

Boettcher Kidnaper Sets Out for Leavenworth.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Gordon Alcorn, pal of Verne Sankey, the kidnaper who hanged himself in his cell here yesterday, pleaded guilty today of kidnaping Charles Boettcher II, of Denver and received a life sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary. Officers set out immediately with Alcorn for the prison.

Alcorn faced Federal Judge A. Lee Wyman a trifle pale but not visibly nervous. District Attorney Olaf Eldem quickly read the indictment after the plea of guilty had been entered. Then, after he had told the court that he had nothing to say, Alcorn heard his sentence.

For $60,000 Ransom.

Before being taken to Leavenworth Alcorn was permitted to have a brief visit with his wife and his brother, H. L. Alcorn of Melville, Sask., Canada. The wife came here from Chicago two days ago. She married Alcorn there last May when he was using the name of W. B. Thomas.

Boettcher was kidnaped several months ago and released after $60,000 ransom had been paid. This crime and the subsequent kidnaping of Haskell Bohn of St. Paul, for whose release $12,000 was paid, were both engineered by Sankey and carried out with the help of Alcorn, federal agents declare.

Sankey's Widow to Fight.

Mrs. Fern Sankey, wife of the kidnaper, was prostrated in her cell in the county jail when informed of the suicide. She is awaiting trial for the Boettcher kidnaping and has not been able to furnish the $25,000 bond.

Attorneys will make a fight for her freedom. In Denver, Attorney Ben B. Laska, Sankey's counsel, said that she would plead not guilty and that the case would be fought "to the limit."

Laska asserted Sankey had indicated his cuicidal intentions.

Woman, 51, Charged with Embezzlement of $3,400

Miss Estha F. Miner, 51 years old, 5515 Winthrop avenue, yesterday was held to the grand jury on a charge of embezzling $3,400 by Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber. Her former employer, George L. Glendon, an official of the Chicago Flag and Decorating company, informed the court that Miss Miner had been employed by him for three months when she was sent to the bank to deposit the money on Jan. 13. She never returned and the money was not deposited. She was arrested in her home on Jan. 24.

ROBS LOOP CAGE OF $600.

Three robbers yesterday held up six employes and a customer in Thayer's restaurant 218 West Adams street, and forced the girl cashier, Irene Ebert, to hand over $600 from the cash register.

RIOTS PARALYZE ALL SOCIAL LIFE IN 'GAY PAREE'

French Capital May Name Street for Feb. 6.

BY MAY BIRKHEAD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The atmosphere in Paris continues to be electric. While a certain amount of necessary business was transacted today, shopkeepers showed no desire to keep their places open after 6:30 p. m. Iron shutters, which serve to protect the stores at night, were lowered before the crowds began to throng the thoroughfares.

Most social gatherings have been postponed indefinitly. Theaters and movies are operating, but with reduced attendance.

The big affair given annually at the opera, the proceeds of which are devoted to the Little White Beds, an organization for tubercular children, has been postponed. So have dinners and dances.

U. S. Women Hold Meeting.

The usual Friday afternoon gathering of the American Women's club, however, was held today. Elizabeth de Clermont-Tonnerre, who visited in the United States recently, gave her impressions of President Roosevelt, Henry Ford and the attitude of the American public toward France.

While the press has little to say on the subject, there is much speculation whether Jean Chiappe will be reinstated to his post as prefect of police. He had been there seven years and his dismissal is considered one of the direct causes of the recent bloodshed.

Many of the best known Americans in Paris as well as the leading French and cosmopolitan personalities of the city are numbered among his wife's friends. Mme. Chiappe created and for years looked after the welfare home for Paris policemen. Each spring the Chiappes gave a charity function, which was one of the events of the Paris social season.

Has Napoleonic Appearance.

Chiappe, a Corsican who is annoyed if his name is not pronounced as if it began with a K, is short and has a Napoleonic appearance. He was born in the Bonapartes' home town of Ajaccio.

While he was prefect of police, Chiappe's right hand man was Edouard Renard, who resigned as prefect of the Seine police when his friend was forced out. Renard recently married Mrs. Winburn, who is a Belgian and the widow of the American, Jesse Winburn.

Parisians are talking of Feb. 6 as a date to be remembered by future ages. It is likely a street will be named after this day, as there was after July 29, to commemorate the uprising of 1830, which drove Charles X., the last of the Bourbons, from the throne.

The fourth of September is another date for which a street has been named. It marks the day when it was learned in Paris that the unpopular Napoleon III. and 100,000 men were taken prisoners at Sedan in 1870. This led to two months of rioting in the commune.

RUSSIA DISPLAYS RED TROOPS OF MEN AND WOMEN

MOSCOW, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Delegates to the seventeenth all-union communist party watched a powerful unit of the Red army parade in a heavy snow today before Joseph Stalin. The head of the communist party, other leaders, and a number of foreign diplomats, including a Japanese and an American, reviewed a full army corps, composed of men and women soldiers comprising the Moscow garrison.

Clemence Voroshilov, people's commissar for war and navy, mounted on a brown charger, received the salute from the garrison commander and then climbed atop the reviewing stand on Lenin's tomb, where he spoke for 15 minutes on the army's obligations to the communist party. Two outstanding features of the parade were the battalion of women soldiers and another battalion of armed workers not in uniform.

George Kennan, diplomatic secretary in charge of the new United States embassy, was in the reviewing stand, the first American official representative ever to attend such an affair here.

WOMAN, 2 MEN CONFESS GARY EXTORTION PLOT

Two men and a woman, arrested yesterday in Gary, confessed to the police and agents of the department of justice that they had written extortion letters to two prominent business men of the steel city. A third man, also taken into custody, was implicated in the statements of the others, but denied complicity.

Those threatened were Capt. H. S. Norton, president of the Gary Commercial club and Chamber of Commerce, and Samuel Lakin, wealthy automobile dealer. Capt. Norton is property manager of the Gary Land company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation.

Those held are Mrs. Bessie Hinchley, 31 years old; her husband, Earl, 39 years old; John De Garmo, 49 years old; and Ignacio Moreria, 33 years old. All lived at 1407 West 19th street, Gary. Mrs. Hinchley admitted writing two letters demanding $3,000 from Capt. Norton, adding that if she had gotten the money she planned to desert her husband and elope with Moreria, a steel worker. Moreria, who was armed when arrested, declared he knew nothing about the plot.

Cuban Rotary Club Begins Drive for U. S. Rum Quota

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Rotary club today began a campaign for a United States rum quota of 1,000,000 gallons every three months. The Business Men's club said such a quota would give permanent employment to 1,500 men in Santiago's famous rum factories.

Hundreds Reported Injured.

tion]. More than 100 shots were fired. A bystander is believed to have been killed and a policeman mortally wounded. Doors of the station were locked and travelers descending from trains were imprisoned for about an hour.

Eventually the police closed off the whole trouble zone, ordered all residents to lock themselves in, and proceeded to mop up. They systematically stopped and searched everyone dressed like a worker while infantrymen or mobile guards covered them with rifles.

There were minor disturbances in some provincial towns. In Amiens a mob of 4,000 communists, Socialists, and Masons overawed police and stormed through the city, invading a Catholic newspaper office and insulting the local prefect under a window of the city hall.

Cabinet Members Named.

Premier Doumergue's new cabinet, named today, has already been nicknamed the "Marin to Marquet" cabinet—in other words, it runs the whole gamut of political opinion from Louis Marin, veteran ultra-Conservative, to the neo-Socialist, Adrien Marquet, whose party voted special permission for him to sit in because of the grave situation. Only the communists and Leon Blum's Socialists haughtily refused to have anything to do with "Gastounet's" national safety combination. There are six former premiers in the cabinet.

Included in the new government on a basis of equality as "elder statesmen" are the political arch enemies, Edouard Herriot and André Tardieu, both former premiers, who were named ministers of state without portfolios.

That four of the cabinet men have never before been cabinet ministers testified to Doumergue's desire for a representative government that would forget politics in the great job of struggling with labor troubles, economic ills, an unbalanced budget, and charges of corruption that grew out of the $60,000,000 Bayonne pawnshop bond scandal and gave rise to the anti-government demonstrations.

Cabinet Members Listed.

The members of the new cabinet follow:

Premier, Gaston Doumergue.
Ministers of state, Tardieu and Herriot.
Foreign affairs, Louis Barthou.
War, Marshal Henri Petain.
Navy, François Pietri.
Air, Gen. Victor Denain.
Commerce, Lucien Lamoureux.
Communications, André Mallarme.
Interior, Albert Sarraut.
Finance, Germain Martin.
Justice, Henry Cheron.
Health and hygiene, Louis Marin.
Education, Aime Berthod.
Colonies, Pierre Laval.
Public works, Pierre-Etienne Flandin.
Labor, Andrien Marquet.
Agriculture, Henri Queuille.
Pensions, André Rivollet.
Merchant marine, William Bertrand.

Herriot resigned as president of the Radical Socialist party to enter the government.

Goes Before Chamber Thursday.

The six former premiers in the new government are Doumergue, Barthou, Sarraut, Laval, Herriot, and Tardieu. The four who have never been ministers are Petain, Denain, Marquet, and Rivollet.

The cabinet is scheduled to go befor the chamber Thursday.

Eugene Frot, minister of interior in the resigned government of Edouard Daladier, left Paris by airplane today. His destination, he said, was Morocco. Frot was accused of having given the order Tuesday for police and troops to fire on the mobs. His order is held to have been responsible for the many persons being killed and hundreds wounded.

REDS IN FRENCH CITY IMPRISON COPS AND THEN DEMONSTRATE

ROUEN, France, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Communists paraded here tonight in a demonstration of sympathy for the rioters in Paris and imprisoned six policemen in their station.

As the parade passed the mayor's automobile on a principal street, a group of the Reds ran to it, dragged it up to the door of the police station, placed it sideways before the station door, and fled.

Six highly enraged officers were left hammering and kicking at the door, shouting for aid in an endeavor to get out and after the paraders.

SLAIN SURGEON'S NOTE TELLS OF DRUG OVERDOSE

Dean Lawyers Pass Out Letters to Press.

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Smartly tailored in maroon tweed and black fur, her head held up under a trim felt hat, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 33 year old woman physician, listened unperturbed today as the state attempted to prove she not only poisoned Dr. John Preston Kennedy Greenwood, surgeon, with a whisky highball, but had also precipitated a divorce between Dr. Kennedy and his wife.

With equal serenity, she heard her own attorneys counter the state attack with cross-examination designed to show that Kennedy had been frequently gravely ill, sometimes from overdoses of drugs, prior to his strange ten day illness last July. This last illness, the state has charged, followed upon a midnight meeting and a "farewell drink" between Kennedy and Dr. Dean.

Letters in Court.

Stacks of correspondence between the two remained on the opposing counsel tables, awaiting inspection of the jury trying Dr. Dean. Both state and defense passed out some of these missives at the press tables. Affectionate terms were used on both sides and two of Kennedy's dealt at length with illnesses he had suffered, one relating he had nearly died "of too much morphine and hyacin."

Another told Dr. Dean he had "hated to tell" her of the details of an illness in 1931, "loving you as I do and having such a different feeling toward you."

Relates His Dream.

This letter related a "crying spell" which Kennedy said had started when he dreamed Ruth had been in an automobile accident. She was in Lewes, Delaware at the time, January, 1931.

"I took you up in my arms and in a few minutes you revived. But I could not stop crying. I waked up crying," the letter said, relating that he had been in great pain. "I have wished so many times and so much for my doctor, my darling (both underscored). You are so interested, so thoughtful, so sympathetic and sweet, I know you would have suggested something which would have helped."

PIN CAFE KILLING TO FORMER UNION DRIVERS' OFFICIAL

George R. Baker, former organizer for the coal teamsters' union, held as a bandit leader, was identified last night as one of two robbers who shot and fatally wounded Reginald Hennion, 5022 Washington boulevard, during a robbery in a café at 2023 South Racine avenue on New Year's morning.

Also identified with Baker was John Hermanowski, 23 years old, 1812 West Huron street. They were named by Harry Ravens, bartender in the café, and two entertainers. Police said Baker was identified as the man who fired the fatal shot. Hennion, 32 years old, a salesman, and his wife were in the Racine avenue café celebrating the New Year when five bandits entered. Thinking the robbery was a celebration joke, Hennion pushed one of the bandits. He was shot in return.

Baker was arrested Thursday night by Capt. John Stege and his men. Nine other men were seized also as alleged members of the gang. Hermanowski was captured yesterday. Two of those originally seized were released yesterday. They were Leo Hofelt, 2042 North Western avenue, and Steve Czajka, 2610 Cortland street. Several women also held were freed. The men held, police said, are believed responsible for a score of recent major robberies.

SOCIALISTS FEAR AUSTRIA PLANS TO DISSOLVE PARTY

Threaten to Launch a General Strike.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 9.—Socialist circles today threatened to launch a general strike if the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss follows up its expose of an alleged Marxist plot by dissolving the Socialist party.

Government spokesmen answered this threat by pointing out that "all evidence" seized in yesterday's raids by soldiers and police on Socialist centers "will be carefully examined first before any further action is taken."

Dollfuss Returns to Vienna.

Chancellor Dollfuss returned today from a visit to Budapest where he conferred with Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary. Secrecy veiled his attitude towards developments in his absence. Some circles are of the opinion that the raids against the Socialists angered the chancellor and that the drive against the Marxists will be relaxed.

Following his arrival in Vienna Dollfuss summoned his cabinet to discuss the political situation, particularly the so-called Marxist plot and the establishment of a Fascist provincial commission in the Tyrol by the Heimwehr (home guards).

Previous to the session Prince Ernst Rudiger von Stahremberg and Richard Steidle, the Fascist leaders, conferred with Dollfuss in connection with their action in the Tyrol and other provinces.

Raids Ordered by Fey.

The occupation of Socialist strongholds was ordered yesterday by Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, a bitter enemy of the Socialists and a leading member of the Heimwehr. He announced several thousands bombs and machine guns had been uncovered in the raids.

The Agrarian party, which has one minister and one secretary in the government, tonight appealed to Dollfuss to reorganize the government "in this earnest and decisive hour." The Agrarians asked the reorganization on a basis which would include all Christian and national elements in the population and which would abandon the policy of punishing citizens for their political beliefs.

In this connection reports were revived that the Dollfuss government has resumed peace negotiations with the Nazis in Berlin.

Germany Beheads Red for Murder of Nazi Youth

HAMBURG, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Executioners wielding an ax today decapitated Authur Retslag, a communist, for the murder of a Nazi youth. Death sentences of three alleged accomplices were commuted to life terms by the state governor, who said they were "the misled victims of communism, they attempted to do the same with the Catholics. The Vatican protested and drew up a list of the organizations which, it declared, must be preserved under the provisions of the concordat. The Nazis refused to acknowledge the list and local Nazi chieftains in numerous cases suppressed Catholic organizations.

In Duesseldorf, for instance, the chief of police today ruled that all religious youth organizations must refrain from all activities. Nazi organs like Der Deutsche added threats in the publication of this order.

"If the police chief's measures prove inadequate, all religious associations will be prohibited," Der Deutsche said, forecasting an anti-church drive.

No Subsidies for Rabbis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BADEN, Germany, Feb. 9.—The Nazi government decreed today that no further state subsidies will be paid to rabbis. Heretofore, Jews had been paying the regular church tax to the state. Now they are wondering whether they will be required to continue to pay the tax.

Spanish Student Selling Fascist Paper Assassinated

MADRID, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A young student selling a weekly Fascist newspaper was killed today by two men whom police identified as Socialists. Afterward there were several clashes between Fascists and Socialists in which six persons were slightly hurt.

MENACE WOMEN; ROB STORE.

Three gunmen swaggered into the Abrams department store at 3970 Milwaukee avenue yesterday and threatened five clerks and eight women customers. Forcing the victims to lie on the floor the robbers took $300 from two cash registers and $100 from the safe and fled in an automobile.

ENVOY OF POPE SEES HITLER IN CHURCH CONFLICT

Cardinal Brings Message from Vatican.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Chancellor Hitler was closeted for two hours today with the cardinal and archbishop of Cologne, Karl Joseph Schulte, who has just returned from Rome. The cardinal was entrusted with a special mission by Pope Pius.

Differences have arisen between Hitler's government and the Vatican over the arrests of Catholic priests and dignitaries and the partial prohibition of Catholic Youth organizations. The Vatican contends this action is a violation of the concordat which guarantees freedom of conscience to Catholics and assures the church it has a right to control the religious education of its youth.

Vatican Protests Action.

SURVEY REVEALS LIBERAL GAINS AMONG PASTORS

2 Churches Lead Advance Toward Modernism.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Additional facts derived from the questionnaire circulated recently among Protestant clergy of Chicago by Prof. George Herbert Betts of Northwestern university reveal advances made my modernists in the various denominations. Dr. Betts' new figures, made public yesterday, show that Congregationalists and Episcopalians lead the advance toward liberalism, with Baptists and Lutherans holding most rigidly to traditional forms of belief as broadly stated in historic creeds.

The questionnaire was designed to show what beliefs pastors desire to have taught to older Sunday school pupils. For the most part the questions are asked in plain terms, carefully avoiding words used in theological controversies of the past.

For instance, the question, "Did Jesus make the world?" revived fundamentals of a dispute which rocked the early Christian church for generations. Great councils were called to determine answers to questions related to it. Christian tradition, based on the councils' decisions, would make an affirmative answer necessary if the strict doctrine of the Trinity were to be upheld by the clergymen.

How the Pastors Stand.

But, according to replies to this question, 60 per cent of Episcopal clergymen answering said Jesus did not make the world. On the other hand, 84 per cent of Chicago's Lutheran pastors affirmed that He did. Concerning the existence of the devil, a subject of great importance in traditional theology, the only Protestant church in Chicago sure about the matter is the Lutheran. His existence was affirmed by 100 per cent of the pastors of that church replying to the question, while 44 per cent of the Congregationalists, 45 per cent of the Episcopalians, 70 per cent of the Methodists, 59 per cent of the Presbyterians, and 24 per cent of the Baptists declared the devil nonexistent.

The Lutheran pastors indicated by their answers that they are sure of heaven. This was not so as regards pastors of other denominations. The greatest doubt on this query was expressed by Congregationalists, with 44 per cent saying heaven as a place does not exist. Twenty-six per cent of Episcopal pastors, 35 per cent of the Methodists, 28 per cent of the Presbyterians, and 22 per cent of the Baptists agreed with the doubting Congregationalists about heaven.

On Belief in Hell Fire.

As to belief in a burning hell the Congregationalists' virtually unanimous disbelief was matched by Episcopalians, who turned the belief down by 96 per cent majority. Lutherans, on the other hand, accept the existence of a burning hell by a majority of more than two to one. The Baptist vote was nearly 50-50, while Presbyterian pastors voted 85 to 15 and Methodist ministers 92 to 8 against belief in a fiery hell.

Spiritual descendants of the writers of the old New England blue laws, the Congregationalist pastors, were 99 to 1 in the belief that keeping away from amusement on Sunday is unimportant. These same spiritual descendants of the Rev. Jonathan Edwards, who thundered about "sinners in the hands of an angry God" from his Northampton pulpit, repudiated belief in a day of judgment by a percentage of 94 to 4.

Lutheran pastors affirm that day with 99 per cent of unanimity. Other denominational leaders show substantial divisions of opinion concerning the day of judgment. The Baptist pastors were most conservative of all on the subject of Sunday observances. By a percentage of 60 to 40 the Baptist pastors voted the importance of Sabbatarianism.

Doubtful on Bible Accounts.

The greatest liberalism as to the specific truth of Biblical accounts was expressed by the Episcopal clergymen. With a ratio of 94 to 6 those pastors denied that "everything the Bible tells about really happened just the way it was told." Eighty per cent of the Lutherans, 63 per cent of the Baptists, 20 per cent of the Presbyterians, and 9 per cent of the Congregationalists answered this query in the affirmative.

Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Methodists, and Presbyterians almost unanimously agreed that prayers do not affect the weather. On the other hand, the Baptists and Lutherans, by substantial majorities, expressed belief in the efficacy of prayer in influencing the weather. Lutherans and Baptists came closest to substantial agreement that storms, earthquakes, and sickness are punishments for sin. The Baptists were far more sure on this point than the Lutherans. The Episcopalians opposed this idea by a ratio of 99 to 1. Congregational, Presbyterian, and Methodist pastors were almost as nearly unanimous.

"Because of the wonders connected with the birth of Jesus should we think of him as the Son of God?" was a question denied by a majority of the pastors of all denominations. This question, which includes implication of the doctrine of the virgin birth, was answered negatively as follows: Congregationalists, 94 per cent; Episcopalians, 89; Methodists, 89; Presbyterians, 95; Baptists, 70, and Lutherans, 76 per cent.

Prof. Betts ranked the various denominations on the basis of liberalism in the following order: Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and Lutherans.

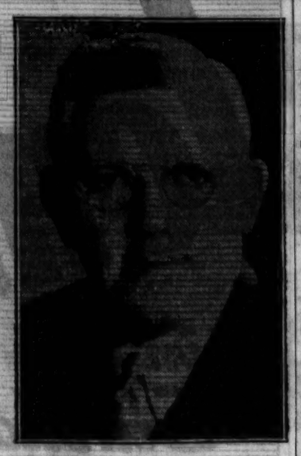
2 Convicted in Cleveland Bank Crash



Alvanley Johnston (left), grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and C. Stirling Smith, president of closed Standard Trust bank, convicted by jury of misapplying $450,000 of funds and making false entries. [Acme Photos.]

JURY CONVICTS RAIL UNION HEAD, BANK PRESIDENT

Found Guilty of Fraud in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 9.—(AP)—One of the most prominent figures in organized labor, Alvanley Johnston, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, heard a jury of nine men and three women today declare him guilty of a $450,000 misapplication of funds of the now closed Standard Trust bank. He also was found guilty of making false entries.

C. Stirling Smith, former president of the bank which crashed in 1931 with more than $12,000,000 in deposits, was found guilty with Johnston on the same charges, but James H. Cassell, secretary-treasurer of the brotherhood, was acquitted. Cassell and Johnston were directors in the bank.

Out Sixteen Hours.

Sixteen hours were required by the jury to reach the verdict under which Smith and Johnston are liable to fines totaling $90,000 and to penitentiary sentences of 30 years on each of the nine counts of the conviction. The jury found them not guilty on one other count and was unable to agree on an eleventh.

Both Smith and Johnston remained calm as the verdict was read. Attorneys for the two said a motion for a new trial would be filed. Common Pleas Judge Virgil J. Terrell said he would not pass sentence until the three-day period for the filing expires.

Johnston, who started railroading as a call boy, and Cassell, formerly an engine fireman, were made directors of the Standard Trust in 1930 when it was organized and took over the brotherhood's own national bank and several smaller institutions. Smith, a banker by profession, came here from Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

Guarantee Is Background.

One of the deals involved in that merger—a guaranty of $904,000 of the brotherhood's bank's assets to the Standard Trust which took them over—furnished the background of the trial.

The state contended the brotherhood borrowed $450,000 from a New York bank for the benefit of the Cleveland bank, but instead of the brotherhood paying the loan, it was paid by the Standard Trust, and allegedly false entries were made concerning the arrangement.

The defense claimed payment by the Standard Trust was entirely proper, holding that it was the only beneficiary of the loan.

SAITO, JAPAN'S NEW ENVOY REACHES U. S.; WANTS PEACE, HE SAYS

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Hiroshi Saito, Japan's new envoy to Washington, arrived today on the Berengaria to take over his post, which he described as "a great responsibility, but a cinch of a job."

The ambassador assured a group of reporters that Japan does not want the Philippines.

He also asserted that his government stands for peace.

"We are not going to fight," he said. "Russia does not want to fight us, and we don't want to fight them. If we have a war with Russia it means war with all other nations, including the United States, and we do not want to commit suicide."

He declined to violate diplomatic decorum by discussing political matters before he presents his credentials at Washington. He said his chief diplomatic object at the moment was to "drink whisky with good Americans."

The envoy declared himself much heartened by efforts to give Japan an immigration quota in this country.

"We consider the present arrangement to be a stigma," he explained. "Only a question of 100 people would go a long way toward a good understanding."

Merry Fahrney Eiszner in Another Air Crash

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9. — [Special.] — Merry Fahrney Eiszner, Chicago heiress, added another airplane crash to her list of thrills, near Dallas, Tex., two weeks ago, she said today. She and her pilot, Russell Allen of Los Angeles, and another passenger were night flying, she said, and the $10,000 plane was a wreck after Allen made a forced landing.

SENIOR OUSTED AT COLUMBIA ON FINANCE CHARGE

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Columbia university campus buzzed today because of the suspension of Robert M. Tierney, a senior, for "irregularities in the financial management of certain social affairs."

Tierney was chairman of the committee which managed the varsity show quadrille last fall and was president of the junior class which conducted a Christmas dance in 1932.

Arnold M. Beichman, editor-in-chief of the Columbia Spectator, and Henry P. De Vries, both seniors, assumed responsibility for the complaint against Tierney, who was editor-in-chief of the Columbian, university year book.

It was reported that the two volunteer investigators submitted documentary evidence which included canceled checks to Dean Herbert E. Hawkes of Columbia college.

DIVERS TO SEEK VESSEL LOST ON HURON IN 1679

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Descending into the frigid waters on Lake Huron, a diver will endeavor Sunday to determine once and for all whether the hull said to be lying in eighty feet of water four miles off shore from Hessel, 3 miles south of here, is that of the L. E. Griffin, first sailing vessel on the great lakes lost in a storm 255 years ago.

The diver is Oliver Birdge of Les Cheneaux islands, who, with John Osogwin, Chippewa Indian, are said to be the only men who know the exact location of the hull.

Birdge and Osogwin expect to find the location of the hull by landmarks on the shore, then cut a hole through 24 feet of ice. Birdge will go down to find certain metal insignia, small cannon, or other metal objects to identify the craft.

The L. E. Griffin, once commanded by La Salle, was lost in 1679, after she set out from Green Bay laden with furs.

PRESIDENT ASKS ACT FOR RULE OF STOCK MARKET

Bills Are Introduced in Senate and House.

legislation were well known in many brokerage offices. Consequently, there was heavy selling for a while this afternoon, and those who sold will reap the benefit if a heavy sale, at falling prices, results tomorrow as is expected here.

Bills Virtually Identical.

After defining the various terms used in the measure, the Fletcher bill, which is effectively identical with that introduced in the house by Representative Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], provides for the registration of all exchanges with the federal trade commission. The registration application must contain all information relative to the membership, rules, and by-laws of each exchange, and unless these meet with the approval of the commission, the registration will not be accepted.

Then, introducing the first intended curb upon speculation, the bill provides that no broker [or any other person] may lend upon any security more than 40 per cent of its current value, thus producing a minimum margin requirement, or cash investment, of 60 per cent of the stock value.

Under present requirements of the New York Stock exchange, debit accounts of $5,000 and less are required to post a 33 per cent margin, and debit accounts over that limit are required to post a margin of approximately 33 per cent.

Doubled for Small Operator.

Thus the proposed minimum of 60 per cent would effectively double the requirements of the small speculator and triple the marginal needs of the bigger operators.

A belated provision inserted in the bill eases this restriction somewhat on bond investments. This provision holds that lenders may loan on securities up to 80 per cent of the lowest market value of any security during the preceding three year period.

In the case of stocks which fell to the bottom hit last March, the 40 per cent of current value would be greater than 80 per cent of the lowest value, but with bonds, which held up fairly well throughout the depression, many would have loan values, under the 80 per cent provision, considerably better than the 60 per cent limit on current values.

The bill then prohibits the lending of customers' securities by brokers except with the customer's consent.

List of Prohibitions.

The next section makes it criminal to manipulate the prices of securities on national securities exchanges, the devices expressly outlawed being the following:

1. Washed sales.
2. Matched orders.
3. Any combination of purchases and sales made for the purpose of raising or depressing the price of the security or creating a false impression as to the market of such security.
4. The spreading of rumors that prices will change in accordance with activities of manipulators.
5. Disseminating misleading information regarding a security.
6. Paying for the dissemination of information in aid of the operations of manipulators.
7. Pegging the price of a security without informing the commission as to all the details of the operation.
8. Cornering the supply of a security.
9. The use of options and trading against options.

Prohibits Short Selling.

The bill would prohibit short selling and "stop loss" orders, except in compliance with regulations which the commission is authorized to prescribe. The commission is empowered to put on further restrictions against any other device which its officers might deem "detrimental to the public interest or to the proper protection of investors."

A section aimed at such private banking houses as J. P. Morgan & Co. prohibits the members of any exchange from underwriting security issues.

One of the most radical sections of the bill is that prohibiting officers, directors or stockholders owning more than five per cent of the stock of any corporation from short selling of stock in the corporation, or from purchasing stock with any expectation of selling it again within a period of six months.

Statements Must Be Filed.

Every such official, director or principal stockholder is to be required, under the bill, to file every month a statement showing the amount of stock he owns, and what purchases or sales he has made.

This section is intended by its authors to prevent individuals in control of the corporation from manipulating its stock up or down in furtherance of a scheme to enrich themselves.

The bill makes it a crime for any one to make a false or misleading statement to the commission concerning any security, and gives any person injured by such statements civil redress as well. If the stock went down in value due to such a false statement, the purchaser is entitled to recover from the falsifier.

The commission is given the broadest powers to prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct of all exchanges, and to have its inspectors present at all exchange board meetings.

Seeks to Halt Evasions.

The bill attempts to plug up all loopholes by which evasions of its provisions might be practiced, and specifically prohibits the setting up of dummy corporations, and the use of family members for purposes of evasion.

The commission is given power to sue for injunctions to compel exchanges or exchange members to obey its regulations. But the most extraordinary authority of the commission provided in the bill would grant it the right to suspend or expel any exchange from registration, or to suspend or expel any individual or corporal member from any exchange.

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE URGES LAW TO RULE EXCHANGE DEALINGS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Following is President Roosevelt's message to congress asking federal regulation of security and commodity exchanges:

"In my message to you last March proposing legislation for federal supervision of national traffic in investment securities I said:

"'This is but one step in our broad purpose of protecting investors and depositors. It should be followed by legislation relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all property dealt with on exchanges.'

"This congress has performed a useful service in regulating the investment business on the part of financial houses and in protecting the investing public in its acquisition of securities.

"There remains the fact, however, that outside the field of legitimate investment, naked speculation has been made far too alluring and far too easy for those who could and for those who could not afford to gamble.

"Such speculation has run the scale from the individual who has risked his pay envelope or his meager savings on a margin transaction involving stocks with whose true value he was wholly unfamiliar, to the pool of individuals or corporations with large resources, often not their own, which sought by manipulation to raise or depress market quotations far out of line with reason, all of this resulting in loss to the average investor, who is of necessity personally uninformed.

"The exchanges in many parts of the country which deal in securities and commodities conduct, of course, a national business because their customers live in every part of the country. The managers of these exchanges have, it is true, often taken steps to correct certain obvious abuses. We must be certain that abuses are eliminated, and to this end a broad policy of national regulation is required.

"It is my belief that exchanges for dealing in securities and commodities are necessary and of definite value to our commercial and agricultural life. Nevertheless, it should be our national policy to restrict, as far as possible, the use of these exchanges for purely speculative operations.

"I therefore recommend to the congress the enactment of legislation providing for the regulation by the federal government of the operations of exchanges dealing in securities and commodities for the protection of investors, for the safeguarding of values, and so far as it may be possible, for the elimination of unnecessary, unwise and destructive speculation."

NEW DEAL CLOSER TO GOVERNMENT CONTROL OVER U. S. BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Several seven league strides were taken today as the New Deal moved closer to government domination and control over American business.

President Roosevelt ordered the army to prepare to fly the air mail as Postmaster General Farley canceled private air mail contracts.

A bill to place all stock exchanges under the heavy thumb of the federal trade commission, and to outlaw speculation, was introduced in congress, and the President advocated generally the adoption of such a measure.

The RFC, under the direction of Chairman Jesse Jones, planned to underwrite loans to private businesses and industries and municipalities.

Senator Clarence Dill [Dem., Wash.], after a conference with the President, announced the latter's approval of a bill placing under federal control all domestic radio, telephone, telegraph and cable facilities.

BROKERS ASSAIL CONTROL PLAN; ONE PRAISES IT

Margin Demand Is Called Too Drastic.

Chicago stock brokers who were willing to comment last night on the administration's plans to regulate the security exchanges of the country as indicated in the two bills introduced in both houses of congress yesterday were for the most part bitter in their condemnation of the proposals. However, there were divergent views, particularly those expressed by the president of the Chicago Stock exchange, who said he was heartily in accord with the proposed federal control of the trade.

Most outspoken in denunciation of the program was R. Arthur Wood, former president of the local exchange. "If I were president of the New York Stock exchange I would call the directors into immediate session and demand the closing of the exchange to prevent a national panic," he said. "I view the proposed action as the gravest of threats to economic stability.

Means "Shutdown of Markets."

"Most outrageous among the radical provisions of the bills is that fixing the minimum of margin requirements on stocks at 60 per cent, or two or three times the sums required under present satisfactory arrangements. The excessive margins mean a virtual shutdown of the nation's great security distributing centers and the action is needless.

"In the last twenty-five years marginal requirements of legitimate stock houses have been so ample that no lender on stock exchange securities has ever lost one cent."

Orville E. Babcock of Babcock, Rushton & Co., long identified with the security trade of this city, was just as emphatic in his opposition to the control scheme.

"I am in favor of any intelligent reforms in our business that will lend security to the investors and assist business recovery," he said, "but the provisions of the proposed law as described in press reports are grossly unfair and dangerous.

"The proposed regulations lay a heavy punishment on the brokers for abuses that they could not correct. The bills, if passed in their present form, mean that most of the brokers will be forced out of business. The consequent loss in employment in the security trading business would be enormous."

O'Brien Defends Bills.

Michael J. O' Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, however, took other views of the situation. "I am heartily in favor of the exchange control bills as they now stand," he said last night.

When asked whether he thought the marginal requirement was excessive, he replied, "Certainly not. I should say that a 75 per cent limit would not be too much.

"I believe the stock business is in need of much reform and it is my belief that steps to put a stop to the speculative activities of the small, improperly financed traders is highly desirable. I wish to see wild speculation barred forever."

Alarm in Wall Street.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Wall street received with alarm today the news of the proposed bill to regulate the security markets. Advance reports of its drastic nature seeped through from Washington, and caused a decline of 1 to 3 points in leading stocks. During the last half hour, prices rallied moderately on rumors that President Roosevelt's message, which was issued after the market closed, would omit indorsement of the far reaching proposals of the bill introduced by Senator Fletcher.

When the President's message appeared, brokers' expressed satisfaction that the administration was not committed to the passage of the Fletcher measure. The message was regarded as moderate in tone, and was held to indicate that the administration recognized the economic value of the stock exchanges, and would not allow them to be crippled.

Scope of Bill a Surprise.

The scope of Senator Fletcher's measure and the severity of some of its provisions caught brokers, bankers, and corporation executives by surprise. Virtually every phase of financial and business activity is affected by the bill, brokers declared. Some described the measure as a long step toward the nationalization of the security markets; others declared that it was an effort to obtain, by statute, assurance of honest and fair dealings in securities.

BARS ALL FORMER NRA EMPLOYES FROM LOBBYING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—NRA clamped down tonight on inside lobbying, barring by general order all former executives and employes from ever appearing before the recovery unit on behalf of industries with which official duties brought them into contact.

A few former officials who already have left their NRA jobs to take place on code authorities will have their new posts knocked out from under them by the order. Not even letters will be accepted from them.

The action was taken in answer to developing questions of private connections held by NRA men, and coincided with a declaration by Hugh S. Johnson, that he had no fear of investigation into these connections. He said he intended to submit all data on the point to Senator Nye [Rep., N. D.,], who now has a resolution asking for it pending before the senate.

Johnson to Suggest Study of 32-Hour Week Proposal

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Determination on the part of the administration to move for a basic 32 hour work week in American industry was indicated today in an announcement by Hugh S. Johnson that he would be ready to put forward an expanded industrial reëmployment program by March 5.

That date was set today for a mass-meeting of code authorities at which the control groups of from 275 to 300 industries will be assembled to coördinate and revise NRA's code structure.

It is not proposed to force hour reduction demand on industrial groups by administration fiat, but a chief objective of the meeting will be to try shouldering onto private initiative during the spring and summer months a large share of the employment now supported by the government through CWA.

Favors 8 Hour Day.

To reporters' questions Johnson said today he was strongly wedded to the idea that the work day should be kept at eight hours, and that the reduction in work time needed to make more jobs should be obtained by lopping off wherever possible one whole day from the present work week, which under NRA generally has been stabilized at 40 hours.

"My idea is built up on an eight hour day," he said. "My information from actual laboring men—I haven't talked with the leaders so much, but I always ask the men in the groups I see—is that they prefer it. They would rather have four days at eight hours than five days at six hours or a six day week with five hours. They want those whole days. . . .

"Of course, I am not saying exactly what will happen, because I haven't made it up in my own mind. The bulk of unemployment is in the heavy industries. We can't do anything about that here; that is up to somebody else.

No Mass Movement.

"Whatever we do will have to be in the white collar class and in large measure in trade, because 'consumer goods' industries will employ people."

His reference to heavy industries that only small reëmployment benefits may be obtained from them until they receive additional orders for material, machinery, and equipment, and that other cogs of the federal recovery machine must furnish the stimulation to produce those orders.

He made clear also that there would be no flat demand for every industry to adopt the 32 hour week.

"Lots have eaten up their reserves and when you ask them to increase their costs, especially on contracts ahead, well, they have no means to finance their pay rolls—you can throw a man into bankruptcy that way like nobody's business," he said.

Johnson said a report had been submitted on a program to expand commercial credit.

COUNTRY PRESS AND PERIODICALS OPPOSE THIRTY HOUR WEEK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Spokesmen for the periodical publishers and the small town newspapers of the United States told the house labor committee today that as much as they may sympathize with the Connery bill to place the nation's industry on a thirty hour week such drastic reduction, accompanied by commensurate increase in wage rates, would be disastrous.

The witnesses were Stanley R. Latshaw, chairman of the Periodical Publishers Institute, and Walter D. Allen, president of the National Editorial association.

Mr. Latshaw said that 90 per cent of the 6,000 periodicals published in this country were losing money. While the thirty hour bill would absorb many of the unemployed, he added, many of the publications would "die from the operation." Mr. Allen, representing 7,729 country newspapers, said it would be almost impossible for these publications to finance such a change.

Pays Hospital 29 Year Old Debt It Doesn't Remember

Portland, Ore., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A bill incurred so long ago that it was not even on record was paid to the Good Samaritan hospital today.

"I believe it was $113, but I'll pay you $114, anyway," calmly remarked a 70 year old man who said he was a patient 29 years ago.

ALDERMAN WINS EXONERATION IN CWA CONSPIRACY

United States District Attorney Dwight Green yesterday announced that an investigation into an alleged conspiracy to defraud the government of $3,450 by submitting illegal bids on Civil Works and Public Works administration projects had given city officials "a clean bill of health."

A Chicago alderman was said to have been involved in the plot, as first announced by federal agents. Indictments probably will be asked next week, it was revealed, against Samuel Miller, an official of the Miller Supply company, 2100 South Sawyer avenue, and the three others named as co-conspirators, Samuel C. Mead, Frank A. Huntly, and I. J. Flanagan.

The alderman has been exonerated of any part in the plot, Mr. Green announced. He disclosed also that Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt was the first to detect the attempted fraud, and that city officials cooperated in the detection of the culprits.

Restrains 17 Laundries from Cutting Union Prices

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher yesterday issued an injunction to restrain 17 wet wash laundries from charging less than 69 cents for the first 15 pounds of wash and 3 cents for each additional pound. The injunction was issued on the request of Attorney Louis Jacobson, representing 179 other laundry owners, members of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, who contend that the 17 defendants, also members of the association, are waging a price war contrary to their contract with the association.

FILING FOR WARD COMMITTEESHIP POSTS IS OPENED

One Hot Democratic Fight; Many for G. O. P.

BY PARKE BROWN.

First day filings for ward committeeships at County Clerk Sweitzer's office yesterday established a situation that had been forecast generally. It disclosed only one or two hot fights among the Democrats and almost thirty among the Republicans.

There are still three more weeks for the ambitious, the civic minded, or the trouble seeking professional and amateur politicians to present their petitions and get their names on the party ballots. So the number of real contests may increase. But the first day's results were taken as indicative that the Democrats have things well in hand, while the Republicans are divided by factionalism.

Newcomers on List.

Another conclusion was drawn by some observers who scrutinized the list of early candidates. That was that the "same old names" appear with accustomed regularity, but that the Republican entrants include a number of newcomers who are men of standing in their wards, who will attempt to give battle to some of the old timers.

The one bitter fight in the Democratic ranks against a sitting committeeman was that shown by the entrance of Rudolph L. Schapp, former committeeman, and Joseph H. Kern, against Ald. Mathias A. Bauler in the 43d ward. Bauler is under indictment for assault with intent to kill in connection with a shooting on the street corner in front of his saloon. One other interesting Democratic situation was revealed in the 37th ward, where there are six candidates for the committee membership once held by the late Timothy J. Crowe. Roger J. Kiley, who was selected by the county committee to take Crowe's place, is at the top of the list.

The Republican fights are scattered throughout the city—the Crowe candidates opposing the majority forces being found chiefly on the west side; the Lyle organization invading all sections, and Deneen having a few separate entries.

Lists of Candidates.

The two party lists of filings for the first day follow by wards, asterisks indicating the present members of the committees:

BALKAN NATIONS SIGN PEACE PACT IN GREEK CAPITAL

Bulgaria and Albania May Adhere Later.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Feb. 9.—Enigmatic finger-crossing, unless there is a hidden agreement somewhere, runs throughout the new Balkan non-aggression pact. It was formally signed today by Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia with a golden pen and its text was made public. The treaty was inscribed by Foreign Ministers Demetrios Maximos of Greece, Tewfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey, Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania, and Boguljub Jeftich of Jugo-Slavia.

The ceremony took place in the grand hall of the Athens Academy.

The governments of the four countries assert the pact stabilizes Balkan peace and embraces all truly Balkan countries with the exception of Bulgaria and Albania. These two countries were invited and are expected to adhere later.

Venezelists Oppose Treaty.

The Venezelist opposition, however, is champing at the treaty, which, it is claimed, ties Greece to the tail of France through the little entente [Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugo-Slavia]. The opposition also claims the pact commits Greece to future embroglios if and when Premier Mussolini tries to convert the Adriatic into an Italian sea through aggression in either Albania or Jugo-Slavia.

Article 1, the backbone of the short document, declares:

"Greece, Rumania, Turkey and Jugo-Slavia mutually guarantee the security of all their Balkan frontiers."

Official Greek circles declare this means the treaty stops at the Hungarian frontier and does not affect Bulgaria and Albania whose borders are considered non-Balkan until they sign up.

Article 2 states: "The high contracting parties engage themselves to confer on measures to be taken in the presence of eventualities affecting their interests as defined in the present accord," meaning Article 1. The signatories further agree not to take any political action with non-signatory Balkan countries without previous mutual notice nor to assume any fresh Balkan political obligation without the consent of the other three.

No Sanctions Set Forth.

Without sanctions the treaty is meaningless. There is no mention of action of this kind except in the preamble where there are references to the Kellogg-Briand pact and the League of Nations. The joker in the pact is what the guarantees of security are.

In addition the treaty does not guarantee mutual boundaries, but mutually guarantees Balkan boundaries. So far as enforcement is concerned the pact goes no further than a mention of conferences on possible measures to be taken if these undefined Balkan frontiers are threatened.

Under the document, the Venezelist opposition asserts, Greece is committed to send its troops to defend any Balkan boundary, which is usually understood to be any this side of Hungary.

REPORT CEMENT BIDS FOR STATE JOBS IDENTICAL

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Identical bids averaging 37 cents higher than the prices rejected a year ago were unofficially reported today to have been submitted to the state by eleven cement companies.

No comment was made by officials in the state department of public works and buildings, but it was understood that the bids would be taken under advisement pending the return of Gov. Horner, who will be on vacation until about Feb. 20.

The state had called for bids on 1,600,000 barrels of cement needed for highway construction this year.

Another cement war was in prospect as a result of the identical bids.

It was unofficially understood that the bids submitted today were approximately $2 a barrel.

Last year identical bids averaging $1.62 a barrel were rejected three times by Gov. Horner before the state, acting under a special law, negotiated for the purchase of 2,000,000 barrels at $1.44.

FOLSOM TO PUSH SALE OF SCHOOL BONDS IN CAPITAL

Seeks Aid of Leaders on $40,000,000 Loan.

Richard S. Folsom, attorney for the board of education, will leave for Washington today to extend his efforts in the campaign to sell forty million dollars' worth of school board bonds to the federal government in order to pay up the back salaries of Chicago teachers. The financing plan was conceived by Mayor Kelly, and Mr. Folsom has been urged by the mayor and James B. McCahey, president of the school board, to leave no stone unturned.

A bill embodying the mayor's program has been introduced in the house of representatives by Congressman A. J. Sabath of Chicago. The plan is to pledge thirty million dollars' worth of Chicago school property, not used for educational purposes, as additional security for the purchase of the bonds by Uncle Sam.

[On page 23 is a dispatch forecasting RFC loans to municipalities, and this projected aid gave added hope for the success of Mr. Folsom's appeal to Washington.]

Carries Plea to Leaders.

Mr. Folsom said last night that he would carry his plea to Senator James Hamilton Lewis, his former law partner for twenty years; to Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior; Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and other Washington officials.

It was pointed out that the sale of the bonds would not only make possible payment of approximately twenty-six million dollars in pay roll obligations of teachers and other school workers, but would go a long way toward financing salaries for the current year.

After several days in Washington, Mr. Folsom said, he will return west immediately to Springfield, Ill., to assist in the campaign for enactment of school relief measures at the third special session of the legislature, which opens Tuesday.

Condee Ready to Leave.

One of the proposed measures would give the Chicago school board authority to pledge its noneducational lands including loop property, for the government purchase of bonds. The board now has the power only to sell or lease its properties.

Ralph Condee, assistant attorney for the board, will leave for Springfield Monday night with a bill drawn along the lines suggested by the mayor.

THE DURATION OF THE NEW DEAL.

Secretary Ickes and Donald Richberg in New York speeches discussed the principles of the recovery program and both attacked the opposition in the tone common to all administrators and advocates of the New Deal, ascribing ignorance, selfishness or stubborn traditionalism to the persons who do not completely share the administration enthusiasms or have the administration confidence.

It seems to be apparent that by this time no one actively connected with the administration thinks of the program as an emergency one. It is plainly regarded as a course of government made imperative by an emergency but with the opinion that back of the emergency itself were certain fundamental economic and social errors which were bound to produce distress, and that beyond the emergency, in the future, are the same disastrous consequences unless the New Deal becomes a permanent one.

For several reasons it was almost certain that, whatever the administrators had in mind when they began their work, they would come to a conclusion favoring permanence before very long. The machinery of the New Deal is the machinery of bureaucracy, and that type of government not only has opportunity to entrench itself but it has every temptation to do so. Politics never retreats willingly from an extension of authority when once obtained. It seldom retreats under compulsion because the only power which can dispense with political activity lies in politics itself. Tenure of office is the principal desideratum in political life. As the number of political places is increased, the power of the place holders increases. What in the beginning may be simply a job becomes an equity and then a right. Moreover, sincere men will have a conviction of the indispensable character of their work. Personal inclination and political advantage combine to give continuance to government places when they are once established.

These factors all tend to give a permanent direction to the new emergency powers of the federal government. The new administrators add the conviction that government methods of a year ago were outmoded. Although the methods were used until a year ago, they had long been ineffective, in the opinion of the men who have changed them. Therefore it would be the conclusion in Washington that there never can be a return to the individual freedom which prevailed as late as 1933.

These are some of the points upon which there will be disagreement. It is necessary to grant the administrators their temporary powers, because they have full control of the situation. Critics who believe that mistakes are being made have no influence and cannot change the course of government. It is in full and unstoppable stride toward its objectives. It is a modest objection to the confident assertions of the new administrators to say that their case is far from being proved. The governmental changes, so revolutionary in form, have not reached the penalty stages, although there is evidence of an approach to them.

Mr. Borah's new alarm, caused by his discovery that NRA has a monopolistic trend, is only one of many instances in which the basic plan of recovery is being more carefully examined. Senator Nye joins Mr. Borah in this alarm and proof comes in from small business the country over. There would be no New Deal in such an outcome but a reversion to the very old deal before the anti-trust legislation. This is only one of the many doubts which for some time yet will remain intelligent and not intelligent doubts. Every one of the government regimentations—agricultural, industrial, financial, and social—will meet harder and more realistic tests than the challenges of opposing politicians. Mr. Ickes was skeptical as to Ogden Mills' intelligence and quizzical of his social purposes, but if Mr. Mills is wrong Mr. Ickes has nothing to worry about. If Mr. Mills is right, nothing can make the New Deal prevail when the penalties saturate it. The new administrators may think the opposition to them is political. It will be far weightier and more effective than that. The idea of permanence in the prevailing governmental changes has all its tests ahead of it.

HUEY'S TROUBLED DAYS.

Job's were not the only troubles which increased. There is also Senator Huey P. Long. It would be unfortunate if only just men found their neck and chin out when adversities came around and never the man whose ways by general opinion could be mended to the general good. Mr. Long is preeminently such a man, and if his troubles increase it may be observed that he has done a great deal to bring them down on his head.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals has ruled that the Louisiana senator cannot set up congressional immunity as a defense against the charge that he published and circulated throughout the country libelous and defamatory articles, alleged to be a reprint of a speech made on the floor of the senate. The court held that the charge before it was not slander resulting from the speech but libel in the publication and distribution.

The case is the $500,000 libel suit brought by Samuel T. Ansell, who was at the time counsel for the senate committee investigating the election of Senator Overton of Louisiana. The senate committee did not protect its own counsel from Long's attack made on the floor of the senate, and the Crawfish, who had first declared that he would not cloak himself in his immunity but would stand full responsibility, scuttled out of reach when he was sued and sought protection under his privilege. However, he took the pains to circulate his defamation of Mr. Ansell with a covering letter, and the court holds that his immunity does not protect him in that.

Things are not going very well for the Louisiana senator, but the consolation is that the worse they go for him the better they will go for the people of his state and of the nation at large.

RELIEF FOR DEBTOR CITIES.

Representatives of Detroit, Cleveland, and Toledo are the latest applicants at Washington for relief for debtor cities. The spokesmen for the three cities have asked Secretary Morgenthau for treasury help in meeting defaulted and maturing bonds. There is talk, as there was a year ago, of the enactment of a bill which would provide in some fashion for the composition of municipal debts on the theory that many municipalities cannot repay what they now owe.

Perhaps such a law will be enacted. If so, it is profoundly to be hoped that those municipal governments in Chicago which have not defaulted, notably the city of Chicago, will not take advantage of its provisions. Let the others default and take the consequences. The government, or, for that matter, the individual who pays his debts when due and in the amount due, is vastly better off in the long run, no matter how heavy the temporary sacrifice exacted of him may be. The municipal governments which survive the depression without a default will have no cause to regret it in the future. Their credit will be rated triple A. They will reap their reward in reduced interest rates.

The sacrifices which repayment entails will serve a useful purpose in themselves. They will discourage excessive borrowing in future. That lesson should be burned into the minds of public officials and citizens.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE.

Public opinion should, and we are confident will, support heartily the new campaign against the smoke nuisance which the Municipal Art league has inaugurated. The persistence of this nuisance is one of the most conspicuous examples in our civic housekeeping of the triumph of the short-sighted, selfish interest of individuals over the public interest. The cost to the people of this community of the injury done to property and to health through unnecessary smoke cannot be computed, but no statistics, though they exist, are needed to prove that it represents enormous waste. It is waste even to the individuals who inflict it on others, waste in fuel efficiency, waste in the contamination of their own property, waste in their own and their family's health and comfort.

Smoke violators have been treated with great leniency through all the years of effort for abatement. Appeal and warning have been used instead of legal prosecution and penalty. Years have been granted to owners of buildings and plants to modernize their furnaces and reform their methods. In too many cases this leniency has been and is abused. There is every reason in justice and public policy for stricter enforcement and severer penalties.

The campaign of the Municipal Art league is but the latest of many efforts to control the smoke nuisance, some of which have brought about observable, if temporary, improvement. The new campaign should have the support and coöperation of the public and civic agencies.

Editorial of the Day

DOWNSTATE AND CHICAGO COURTS.

[The Bloomington Pantagraph.]

It is often charged by residents of Illinois outside of Chicago that the criminal class of the big city run wild because the courts are too lenient with them. It cannot therefore be said, when the courts of Cook county have dealt adequately with a criminal, that some judge in a downstate county ever uses his judicial office to interfere with Cook county enforcement of law.

Such a case concerning Cook county criminal procedure is now in controversy and will reach the Supreme court for final decision. Judge Clyde H. Thompson of Pontiac, one of the judges of this judicial circuit elected in 1933, is the judge against whom Cook county prosecuting officers are in action to compel him to expunge from the record his order discharging the prisoner.

One Spencer Brown, a former Antioch dentist, was convicted in the Cook county criminal courts on the charge of receiving stolen goods, the evidence showing that he had in his possession $24,500 in stolen bonds, part of the loot from a so-called "million dollar" robbery. Brown was also charged with forgery and other criminal activities. On the charge of receiving stolen goods he was sentenced to the penitentiary at Joliet from one to ten years, while on the forgery charge he received sentence to the federal prison at Leavenworth. He served 70 months at Leavenworth, after which he was turned over to Illinois officers and put into the penitentiary.

Recently application was made through a Bloomington law firm for a writ of habeas corpus in Judge Thompson's court to free Brown, on the allegation that Illinois officers had erred in turning Brown over to the federal prison, thereby depriving him of the opportunity of serving his Illinois sentence in the time he might have served it. Judge Thompson upheld the prisoner's contention and ordered him discharged.

Now Cook county prosecuting officers are appealing to the Supreme court to compel Judge Thompson to expunge his record in the habeas corpus proceedings. In a similar case, where Judge Shurtleff of Marengo had set the notorious "Fur" Sammons free after his conviction in Cook county, the Supreme court overruled Shurtleff's decision.

If such actions as that in this case become common the efforts of Chicago prosecuting officers will be made doubly difficult, since many times when a criminal is convicted in Cook county his attorneys may look around until they find a judge in some other county who will delay or, in effect, annul another court's sentence. Downstate judges should maintain a hands-off attitude toward Chicago court procedures unless some flagrant miscarriage is apparent in some unusual case.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

CONSIDER THE HORRIBLE SITUATION in New York. A family puts on the soup and fish costume, hangs all their diamonds and pearls on, and drives to a swank hotel, where they plan to dine luxuriously. They call the waiter and start off with soup. "I'm on strike," says the waiter; "you kin go to hell fer yer soup." And the majority of the preachers who voted on the thing said there was no hell. Then where to go? There's something else to worry about.

AND IF THERE IS NO HELL, as the majority of preachers declared, then what is to deter women from chewing toothpicks on the street? And what is to deter the aisle seat hog in the theater from making it almost impossible to get past him to our seat? Oh, it must be all wrong; there's just got to be hell. Else how could proper punishment come to the hit-and-run driver and the fresh air fiend in the office that always wants the windows opened wide in zero weather?

NO, THERE'S JUST GOT to be hell with everlasting fire and sulphur and brimstone and all the trimmings. I couldn't sleep nights if I didn't think there was a hell where all kidnapers will finally land. Oh, how I should love to visit hell and be taken over to the kidnapers' department! It would be great sport to stand behind the asbestos screen when old man Devil himself walked over to them with a hodful of white hot coals and brimstone, and yell, "Attaboy, Devil; pour it on 'em! Pour it on 'em!"

NO HELL? I had always hoped there was a hell, if for nothing else than to take care of those people who borrow books and never bring them back. And drivers who don't have brakes on their cars. And the people who call you up on the phone and say, "Guess who this is." And people who send you postcards from the tropical bathing beaches in winter and say, "Having a fine time; wish you were here." And those people who parade around with a savage looking police dog as big as a cow and who smile archly when the police dog growls at you and shows his teeth and say: "Oh, he won't bite you; he's just pretending." No hell? Oh, gosh, there's just got to be.

THE CHICKADEE.

Not in pomegranate groves the rapturous day,
Nor from the Chenar tree the lyric night,
Not in fair Persian fields the golden lay,
Nor melody where jessamine delight;
But lilting on the prairie loneliness,
Above the drifting snow that sifts along,
All day with his assuaging cheeriness,
The chickadee flits by with humble song.

I pray when I am tired and come to rest,
That I may hear from frosty spangled swale,
A chirping ditty sung with bright eyed zest,
Its five notes running up and down the scale—
Across life's silences, O sing to me,
Small black capped warbler . . . "chickadee—dee—dee!"

Grief is as nothing to the first swift wound,
The primal thrust that said "This shall be man!"

The right she said was Evil, the left, Good.

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

A LADY SUING for separate maintenance says it's impossible for her to live on the meager allowance from her husband of something like a thousand dollars a month. Yet there are lots of women who think they'd be able to skimp along somehow on even five hundred dollars a month. And there must be women clerks and restaurant cashiers and dressmakers and cooks who manage to get along on four hundred a month. And washerwomen and scrubwomen have to keep the wolf from the door on less than three hundred dollars a month, but how they do it heaven only knows. Maybe they've fired their chauffeurs and stored their limousines. And have given up pate de foie gras and grand opera and champagne.

IT'S AN INTERESTING QUESTION. How can a person manage to live on a thousand bucks a month? Can it be done? We must each ask ourself what we would do if we had to live on a miserable thousand dollars a month. Well, for one thing, when we went to Palm Beach or to southern California we could hitch-hike. And we could stop sending letters if they're to people living out of town. Very expensive that—three cents for every letter. We'd call 'em up on the telephone.

TRANSFORMED.

The snow drifts down with its generous grace,
And covers each bare, unsightly place;
Till a gray drab world is a marvelous sight,
A beautiful cloister of glistening white.

So love can color, and change, and cover
A heart unlovely to all save the lover.

PREVENTING SCARLET FEVER.

WHILE physicians and health officers are trying to find satisfactory methods of vaccinating against scarlet fever—methods that are simple enough and convenient enough to give them popular appeal—there are certain simple, homely procedures that mothers can carry out.

One of the trying features of scarlet fever control is what is known as the return case. A return case is one that develops as a result of exposure to a child who has had scarlet fever but is supposed to be well and so fully convalescent as to appear safe. Some of these return cases are due to exposure to carriers, and especially carriers that have had the disease within three months. Some of them are due to exposure to cases that have been well less than six weeks.

One method of preventing return cases is to demand a six-week quarantine. If a good isolation could be maintained for six to eight weeks doubtless there would not be many return cases. But when the attack of scarlet fever is mild and recovery is prompt, it is not possible to get people to maintain efficient isolation for longer than four weeks, and even that is often impossible.

Dr. J. D. Rolleston thinks that there will be very few return cases if there be two kinds of isolation. He recommends one in which the rules are strict and enforcement is good. This one starts as soon as the case is suspected and continues for about three weeks. If, at the end of that period, convalescence is well established and there is no rhinitis, enlarged neck glands, and no suppuration of the ears, the first quarantine is discontinued and the second is instituted. It is better to carry out the first quarantine in a hospital—better for the patient, the home, and the community.

The second quarantine or isolation period is carried out in the home. During this period the convalescent child is not allowed to sleep in the same bed with susceptible children. He is required to use his own dishes, silver, and linen. These articles are kept apart from those used by other members of the family. They are washed in hotter water and more carefully sterilized by heat than is the case with articles used by the other children.

The mother trains the convalescent children not to kiss other children, and not to permit other children to put into their mouths objects that have been in the mouth of the convalescent. Such children are kept out of school and taught at home during this period of second quarantine. The lessons given to members of the class are taught by the mother at home.

It is recognized that the scales from the desquamating skin play no important part in spreading scarlet fever.

WHITE HEADS.

I. H. writes: I have what is commonly known as white heads. They form overnight, are white, and about the size of a pin head. I have been piercing them with a needle and then squeezing the white matter from them, leaving them red and sore for two or three days.

Can you tell me what causes them and what one can use to cure them? Am I making a mistake by opening them?

REPLY.

You are right except as to white heads forming overnight. A white head is rarely large enough to attract attention until it has lasted several months. They result from the skin overgrowing the mouth of the grease glands. They are prone to occur where glasses press on near wrinkles and folds occurring where the skin is thin. There is no treatment other than the one you are using.

GALL STONES AND CANCER.

H. M. writes:

1. I have been bothered with gall stones for the past seven years. Will gall stones turn into cancer in time?
2. Is an operation necessary?
3. Is there any cure for it and if so what?

REPLY.

1. Cancer of the gall bladder sometimes results from prolonged irritation due to gall stones.
2. I do not know. You and your physician should decide on the basis of your symptoms and the discomfort and inconvenience they cause.
3. Operation usually cures. Gall stones often become silent without treatment or through proper living and medical care.

JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me if there is any definite time after a judgment has been granted within which the execution must be served. Can this time be extended in any way? B. C.

The judgment is a lien on real estate for one year independently of the service of execution. If execution is served within one year the judgment is a lien for seven years. After the expiration of the seven years the lien can be renewed by the service of new papers. We could make a more simple answer if you had stated the facts on which your question arises.

PLEDGED SECURITY.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A sum of money was borrowed on real estate bonds several years ago. The interest was paid with the bond coupons. Now the borrower has not the money to repay the loan and neither could he get any compensation on the coupons or sell the bonds. This particular bank at which the bonds were purchased is in receivership. The borrower's safety box was attached by the receiver. 1. Can the bank, which owns the mortgage, have access to the life insurance policy which is in the safety box? The borrower's wife is beneficiary. The policy was recently assigned to the wife. 2. Would this prevent the bank from acquiring it? 3. Can the wife be liable to the husband's creditor even though she did not sign any papers whatever? The borrower has no other property. P. H. L.

1. In general, a creditor holding pledged security can sell the security for the debtor's account and hold the debtor for the balance. Such balance could be collected out of the debtor's other assets, including life insurance policies on which he had the right to change the beneficiary.
2. In general, transfers by persons who are in debt can be set aside as frauds on their creditors.
3. Not unless it is for a family expense.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—London's better crooks, many of whom pass as gentlemen, many of whom associate with gentlemen, and some of whom are gentlemen, will soon have the satisfaction of being arrested, when arrested, by gentlemen.

The experiment which Lord Trenchard, commissioner of metropolitan police, has been conducting with young men of the gentle classes as detectives has been judged successful and many more of these men are to be taken on the force.

Men with public school—in England public schools are the really exclusive schools—and university educations and accents are being sought; men who bear the not easily definable, but quickly recognizable, stamp of the gentleman. They should also be good looking and athletic and have a little money to spend.

This type is being used for work in the more rarefied atmospheres of London, in west end cabarets, Soho haunts and other places where the presence of a gentleman would be considered natural, and the presence of an ordinary flatfoot not so natural.

In the experiments conducted thus far a group of handsome young gentlemen with the right manners and clothes, and many of them with army and navy service, have been employed. Lord Trenchard hit on the idea when he found that a number of men of this type were joining the police force, which he is trying to renovate along more or less military lines, partly because of the improved standards of the service and partly because of lessened opportunities in the fields of endeavor suitable for gentlemen.

He discovered that these men, many of them linguists and enjoying useful connections, were being put to tasks that would not stretch the talents of an office boy. So he decided to try them at the detection and prevention of crime in the worlds with which they are familiar. They were put to work living the lives of young men about town. At night they dress as most gentlemen do in London and, so disguised, they detect.

Their identities are kept secret from even the other members of the force. They do not appear at police stations. They are known only to a few higher officials and each day they are given a new code name to use in conversation with their chief. In emergencies they are entitled to telephone Lord Trenchard himself. They are free to dispose of their time as they see fit.

Their only connection with the ordinary police is with the squads operating the "Q" or mystery cars—the name recalls the "Q" ships that baited submarines during the war—which cruise about London filled with plain clothes men.

The gentleman detective knows how to get in touch with the brawn in the "Q" cars and can call them in to help by giving his orders, but without appearing on the scene himself if he doesn't want to.

Lord Trenchard's attempt to get gentlemen into the force is a break with the old tradition. There is hardly a man, even in the higher reaches of Scotland Yard, who hasn't at one time pounded a pavement. But now the police force is going not only military but elegant.

Observers who have watched the disquieting development on the continent of spy systems — France is honeycombed with police spies and counter-spies—feel that Lord Trenchard may have solved a problem that has baffled authorities thus far in England. For, due to the marked differences in manner, dress, and speech of various classes of Englishmen, it is not easy to keep an eye on circles in which the presence of an outsider can be so easily spotted. Lord Trenchard has found a way to "bore from within."

A PROBLEM IN EVIDENCE.

Vincennes, Ind., Feb. 7.—The mistrial of the Touhy kidnaping case, if the columns of THE TRIBUNE reported its conduct correctly, should have been no surprise to any lawyer who had ever had any trial experience. It appears that one Rev. Joseph F. Weber testified on behalf of Touhy to the effect "that on July 8, 1933, when Factor was still missing after being abducted July 1, he had interviewed Touhy and asked him if he had kidnaped Factor. Touhy's reply was an emphatic denial."

It is a fundamental rule of evidence, finding most frequent application in criminal cases, that statements against interest of a defendant are admissible against him, but a statement offered on behalf of a defendant made by himself outside the presence of witnesses for the prosecution who have previously testified concerning it is self-serving and inadmissible. If the trial was reported correctly it appears that a witness of admitted high standing was called on behalf of the defendant and permitted to detail self-serving declarations of the defendant. This must have been not only immaterial but highly prejudicial to the prosecution. From this distance it appears singular that the state's attorney would fail to make timely objection to such testimony, and equally singular that the presiding judge would admit it over objection. SHULER MCCORMICK.

COMPETITION FOR FARM LABOR.

Somewhere, Ill., Feb. 6.—I see by the local press that the rate of pay for relief workers has been raised to 75 cents per hour. Have the CWA authorities taken leave of their senses? On the one hand laying off workmen because they are approaching the end of the appropriation and on the other raising the pay of common labor as they now propose. It can only be that they are taking this step at the behest of the unions.

The underlying reason for all of the economic changes the last few months have brought about has been the desire of President Roosevelt to help the farmer, and every thoughtful person will say Amen to this [long A and emphasis on both syllables]. Imagine the plight of the farmer who has to pay 75 cents an hour for help. And such help as we see on relief work! "A study in still life" I heard it termed a few days ago.

I yield to no one in my admiration and respect for President Roosevelt in his praiseworthy desire to alleviate the condition of the "forgotten man," but operations like the one in question will not bring about the desired result. Perhaps a little fatherly advice to his secretary of labor might be in order. EMPLOYER.

SCHOOLS AS CANDY STORES.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Please advise who benefits from the sale of candy sold in our public schools? I own a small candy store across from one of these schools. Their candy sales cut in on mine. I also have to pay a 2 per cent sale tax, and, with all other expenses to keep up, how are we going to get along? Can't something be done about it? C. F.

NO PNEUMONIA.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—The parents living in North Hyde Park [south of 39th street] whose children now attend the portable schools at 41st and Lake Park avenue were unduly alarmed over an article appearing in THE TRIBUNE Jan. 31, 1934, under the headline "McCahey reveals plans to build four new schools," and stating that a delegation called upon him with a request to build a new school at 42d and Lake Park avenue. The spokesman of the delegation is alleged to have told Mr. McCahey "that children who were to go into the new World's Fair school had been housed in portable school buildings. She mentioned the bad conditions in these ramshackle schoolhouses and pointed out that several boys and girls had died of pneumonia."

If the above statement refers to our portable schools at 41st and Lake Park avenue it is an absolute misrepresentation of facts. A quick checkup brought forth a prompt denial from the group of 12 splendid [unpaid] school teachers who have charge of 12 cozy, clean, warm, comfortable, well ventilated portables. Never, in all the 16 years since portables have been installed, has a boy or girl, or a teacher, been ill from pneumonia, much less died from it, nor could we find any record of the death of a boy or girl from any cause due to exposure at our portables. MAIL FROM THE SUBURBS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Your article in regard to delay in mail from the suburbs to the city is very commendable. I have noticed this and been inconvenienced by it for over three years. I get air mail from San Pedro, Cal., in exactly the same time as mail from Chicago Heights and Oak Park. There is something wrong with the system. If you give a mail carrier a letter at 11:30 a. m. in Chicago Heights, I will receive it at 5 p. m. the next day. If a letter is mailed in the postoffice there as late as 3:30 p. m., I receive it at 7 a. m. next day. Conditions are practically the same from Oak Park. We can't call this A Century of Progress. A. LITERARY NOTE.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—The story "Another Man's Wife," appearing in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, is uproariously funny, though it probably isn't supposed to be. It reads like a penny dreadful. It is so outdated and amateurish that it is almost good.

With thousands of interesting stories to choose from, it seems a pity that THE TRIBUNE would insult the intelligence of its readers with such rot. M. BRENNAN.

A TRIBUTE TO THE TEACHERS.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Just a word of praise for the teachers of Chicago. It is remarkable how these unpaid teachers are keeping up with their noble work. My little girl just started school and my wife tells me that she has to admire the patience of the teachers with the little tots. SAM MARKOWITZ.

GOV. McALISTER APOLOGIZES FOR TRUCK STATUTE

Tennessee Leaders Urge Repeal of Law.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Gov. Hill McAlister, like the southern gentleman of fiction and fact, apologized this afternoon to the people of Illinois for the truck laws and 7 cent gasoline tax of Tennessee which have been cited by the Chicago Motor club as reason for northerners to detour this state.

[With the one cent federal tax added, gasoline taxes in Tennessee total 8 cents.]

"It is regrettable that any friction should develop between these sister states of the Mississippi valley," said the governor, "and I'll do everything in my power to ameliorate the unpleasantness.

"This truck law belies the hospitality and friendliness of the people of Tennessee. I'm sure that the legislature would not have passed the bill had this iniquitous provision been called to its attention and, now that it has been called to our attention, I'm sure that this provision will not remain on our books through the next session of the general assembly.

Gas Tax "Necessity."

"The 7 cent gasoline tax is an unfortunate necessity."

This statutory truck regulation which became effective Jan. 1, requires a privately owned and operated truck from another state to bear a full year's Tennessee license to enter this state even for a single passage through its borders.

"Couldn't you nullify enforcement of the regulation pending the next session of the legislature?" Gov. McAlister was asked.

"I have no choice but to enforce the statutes, all the statutes," he replied.

"You don't enforce the anti-evolution law."

"No, sir."

"Couldn't this truck regulation be placed in the same category?"

"I'll give this suggestion careful personal consideration," the governor said.

Illinois Orders Reprisal.

Until Tennessee does permit privately operated Illinois trucks to pass through this southern state on an occasional trip without being gouged for a Tennessee license Chief Taylor of the Illinois highway police has been instructed by Secretary of State Hughes to force Tennessee trucks on entering Illinois to buy Illinois plates.

The Nashville Hotel Men's association adopted a formal resolution to this effect, addressing it to Gov. McAlister.

"The truck law cannot be enforced without creating a barrier to intersectional travel," said Dr. O. A. Oliver, brigadier general on the governor's staff and a director of the American Automobile association.

Attractions Pointed Out.

"Tennessee, with its good roads, beautiful scenery and rich historical background, is an attractive spring touring territory for Chicagoans. Chicago, with its markets and its World's Fair, is an attraction to Tennessee motorists. Nothing should interfere with our friendship."

"The administration should forget the law and think of justice," said Lawson H. Myers, mountaineer lawyer and Democratic state committeeman from Fayetteville, Tenn.

"Enforcement could and should be halted," said Charles L. Cornelius, former attorney general, president of the Tennessee Motorists' association and of the Nashville Automobile club.

Where Gas Tax Goes.

Thomas A. Springfield, general manager of the Motor clubs, said the 7 cent tax brought 12 million dollars a year revenue. By comparison the 3 cent tax in Illinois brings 28 million dollars a year. From the 7 cents, according to Mr. Springfield, 3 cents is used for interest and retirement of road bonds; 2 cents for county work on state highways; 9 mills for the state road department, and 1 mill for the Smoky National park.

"The remaining 1 cent," he said, "was diverted by the 1931 legislature to the state's corporate fund to retire a deficit. It constitutes a special tax upon the motorists from which they derive no special benefits."

HIT-RUN DEATH ON SOUTH SIDE; YEAR'S TOLL 150

R. H. Brownlow, 67 years old, 8144 South Michigan avenue, was killed last night by a hit and run car at 81st street and Michigan avenue. Brownlow was pronounced dead on arrival at the Auburn Park hospital. No clew to the car or driver was found.

Albert A. Jauman, 45 years old, 4826 Wrightwood avenue, a street car motorman, was fatally injured last night when, as he was about to board a Cicero avenue surface car at Wrightwood avenue, he was struck by an automobile driven by Dominic Armato, 16 years old, 2234 North Keating avenue. The boy took Jauman to St. Anne's hospital, where he later died.

A man killed early yesterday in an automobile accident involving three cars at Torrence avenue and 100th street was identified later as Elmer Mahannah, 11 South Austin boulevard, an employé of the L. Fish Furniture company. The car in which Mahannah was riding was struck first by one car and then another. Joseph Redmerski, 8316 Marquette avenue, driver of the first car, was held.

Mrs. Roscoe Imel of Morrison, Ill., was fatally injured yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a machine driven by C. D. Olson, 2472 East 74th street, near Sterling. An attending physician said Olson was intoxicated, but the coroner's jury which investigated the accident did not hold him.

The deaths of Browlow and Jauman increased to 150 the Cook county motor toll for the year.

DANCE TO HONOR CANDIDATE.

A group of allied clubs in the 12th, 13th and 15th wards are sponsoring a dance to be given in School hall, 48th and Honore streets tomorrow night. The guest of honor will be John M. Kubina, Democratic candidate for state representative from the 4th district.

MASSEN'S REPORT CITES SAFETY OF SUPERHIGHWAYS

Stresses Economy and Speed Factors.

Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the city council traffic committee, yesterday submitted a report to Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt in which he stated that if all the automobiles involved in Chicago traffic accidents during 1933, in which 900 persons were killed had been moving on superhighways only 17 of the deaths could have occurred.

The accidents which resulted in the remaining 883 deaths would have been physically impossible, according to the alderman's study of police reports on traffic accidents. And in this factor of safety alone, without recourse to other arguments for superhighways, he found basis for the statement that the failure to include superhighways in any Chicago highway program would be not only "improvident but a neglect of tragic consequence."

Report Asked by Hewitt.

The report was submitted by the alderman as a member of a committee appointed by Mr. Hewitt six months ago to decide on an arterial street system in Chicago on which gasoline tax funds would be expended. In it he took issue with the recommendations of a majority of the committee and also with a minority report submitted by one other member.

The majority report, which calls for the expenditure of approximately 40 million dollars in four years to improve 242 miles of arterial streets at grade, was signed by Maj. George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways; William R. Matthews, assistant engineer in charge of the city bureau of sewers, and Kendrick Harger, state district engineer. The fifth member, John B. Hittell, street engineer for the board of local improvements, urged in his minority report the improvement of 626 miles of streets and use of some part of the gas tax fund to opay public benefits.

Advocates Superhighways.

In previous reports on traffic studies Ald. Massen has advocated four superhighways—he calls them in his reporot "limited ways"—for the first period of construction. These are a west side limited way, one to the northwest, one to the southwest, and one to the southeast.

"Limited ways of the elevated type using existing rights of way," his report states, "can be constructed at a cost not to exceed $431,000 per mile, which, on the basis of past experience in Chicago, is less than 16 per cent of the amount spent to acquire equal traffic capacity by means of street widening.

"The total cost of the four limited way proects is estimated, during the first period of construction, at approximately 12 million dollars. I specifically recommend the allocation from the motor fuel tax funds during the next four years of not less than 12 million dollars for the construction of the projects thus proposed or their equivalent.

Cites Speed and Economy.

"This recommendation is not based upon casual information but upon the most substantial and incontrovertible evidence of the essential requirements of a safe and efficient handling of the major traffic streams in Chicago. Surface routes under control can never produce over-all speeds in excess of 20 miles per hour, whereas limited ways will afford over-all operating speeds in excess of 40 miles. And limited ways can be constructed at a fraction of the cost of equal capacity supplied by other types of facilities.

"If the majority report prevails, at the end of four years and with the expenditure of approximately 40 million dollars, the city will have 242 miles of streets with somewhat smoother and more adequate pavement than would otherwise be the case, but the city would not have taken one single step toward a permanent solution of the problems of traffic congestion and traffic fatalities.

Urges Limited Ways Start.

"It would seem, therefore, that the intelligent thing to do would be to spend during the next four years 20 million dollars upon the improvement of pavements of the really important grade routes and a like sum upon limited ways. That sum expended on limited ways would accomplish the construction of approximately 40 miles of limited way routes and would definitly and completely solve some of the most crucial traffic problems which now confront the city."

The majority report lists the 242 miles of streets to be improved and states:

"Nearly all of the projects recommended are for the improvement of streets at grade, as it is believed that the present system of major traffic streets should be placed in good order before any major program for streets for mass traffic with grade separations and other refinements be set under way. Our survey shows that the pavements on many of Chicago's main highways are much worn and of width entirely inadequate for present traffic conditions."

Sail for America

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 9.—(AP)—After a whirlwind movie-like wedding in London, two stars of the films, Virginia Cherrill and Cary Grant, sailed from this port on the liner Paris today, bound for Hollywood. Crowds at the pier gave them an enthusiastic send-off.

They were married at Caxton Hall registry office in London. They had a little difficulty in meeting at the registry bureau. Grant appeared without his fiance, due to a tangle in plans, but he telephoned her, and when she arrived the ceremony took place.

The ceremony over, the Grants dashed out of the door, shouting "we are so happy," and then became separated in the street crowd. Grant grabbed one taxi while his bride jumped into another, each thinking the other was following. Mrs. Grant kept her cab, and Grant leaped out of his to join her.

"We are both due back in California for work on pictures and so our honeymoon will be short," the newlyweds said when the boat train arrived.

Ulrich Busch Gets Married, Goes to Alimony Hearing

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ulrich B. Busch, motion picture executive and member of the Busch family of St. Louis, was married for the third time today. His bride was Moscelyne Perrault Pobanz, film actress. Later, Busch appeared in court two blocks away from the scene of the marriage to contest alimony proceedings of his first wife, Eileen Percy.

MRS. ANDERSON QUIZZED ON GIFTS FROM E.R.GRAHAM

Woman Is Sole Witness in Master's Hearing.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, novelist, spent a trying day yesterday being examined by attorneys regarding the various sums of money paid to her by Ernest R. Graham, noted Chicago architect, and the various releases she signed absolving him from future liability.

She was the sole witness at a hearing before Master in Chancery Harry Smitz in his offices at 145 North Clark street on a suit she filed in January, 1933, in which she seeks to obtain an injunction preventing Graham from having the beneficiary to an annuity bond changed. Under the bond the Canada Life Assurance company is scheduled to begin paying her $300 a month next May 1. The case was assigned to Master Smitz by Superior Judge John P. McGoorty.

Recalls Past Annuities.

Under cross-examination by Attorney W. C. Graves, who with J. C. Richert is counsel for the architect, Mrs. Anderson recalled the "first annuity bond" presented her by Graham, the "second annuity bond," sums of money as large as $30,000 he gave her through attorneys at various times, and various suits she has had filed against him in the last few years.

Then, in reply to one of Attorney Graves' questions, she said in her cultivated accent, with an appealing glance at him:

"You know, I don't know anything about business, Mr. Graves."

At another time, when Attorney Graves had repeatedly objected that her answers were not relevant to the questions he asked, she said with a wave of her black gloved hand:

"I can answer your questions intelligently if you will let me answer them in my own way. I have my own diction, however."

"Strike out the remarks of the witness," Master Smitz said. "Now, just answer the questions, Mrs. Anderson."

Admits Signing Agreement.

Under Attorney Graves' questioning she admitted that she had received $30,000 from Graham in 1925 in return for signing an agreement that she would not bring suit for breach of promise against him. Later, in 1927, she received $11,000 in cash and an annuity bond which would pay her $500 a month for seven years, she recalled.

Still later, on June 4, 1928, Mr. Graham through attorneys paid her $15,000 in cash and purchased for her the present annuity bond over which the suit was brought, she said. At this time it was designed to pay her $300 a month for life. [In the defendant's cross-bill it is set forth that Mr. Graham paid $44,891.50 for this.]

All these payments except the original payment of $30,000 she believed made to her as "gifts," Mrs. Anderson testified. Some of the questions put to her by Attorney Graves and her answers follow:

Q.—What did you understand that $11,000 was paid to you for? A.—Mr. Graham had promised me in New York that if I would release my suit he would take care of me and my son the rest of our lives in any reasonable way, providing we'd go abroad. He promised to make an architect of my son. That was when he was 6 years old.

Based on "Sense of Honor."

Q.—Well, this wasn't a legal obligation, was it? A.—I thought he had a sense of honor—

Q.—You didn't claim that that son was his child? A.—Most emphatically not.

Q.—Did you have any other claim? A.—Yes, there were other things, but I think it's more dignified not to discuss them in this room.

She said, under cross examination, that when she received the $30,000 on the condition that "the past was to be forgotten," she knew Mr. Graham was married to his second wife, the former Mrs. Ruby Leffingwell.

Among the writings of Mrs. Anderson, published under her pen name of Alma Newton, are "The Blue String," "An Old Fashioned Romance," "Shadows," "Memories," and "The Land of Aristocracy."

TIVOLI THEATER ROBBED OF $150 BY TWO GUNMEN

Ignoring passing crowds at the nearby busy corner of 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue, two robbers last night held up the cashier of the Tivoli theater, 6329 Cottage Grove avenue, and escaped with $150.

One of the men walked up to the cage and threatened the cashier, Miss Marie Stewart, 30 years old, 2202 East 68th street. The other stuck a gun in the side of Charles Jones, 3306 Rhodes avenue, Negro doorman. Miss Stewart hesitated when ordered to surrender the ticket receipts, but when the bandit threatened to shoot her she handed over a roll of bills amounting to about $150.

During the robbery Austa Fretz, 10499 Bensley avenue, ticket taker, opened the lobby door. One of the robbers leveled a gun at him, and said: "Get back in there or I'll let you have it." Fretz backed away. The robbers then fled.

BURGLARS TAKE WHISKY.

Burglars entered the Sloan Drug company, 137 West North avenue, early yesterday and seized 19 cases of whisky valued at $1,100.

MEXICO PLACES BUSINESS UNDER STATE GUIDANCE

6 Year Plan Comparable with NRA in U. S.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9.—The Mexican government and business under the new economic nationalism present an interlocking maze in which the dominant effort is to get all the outside help possible—money, men, and machines—and then regulate internal affairs so that the full and permanent benefits remain with the Mexican people.

In this the ruling group has power that is effective without all the handicaps of a more democratic nation. Business, manufacturing, real estate, and building absorb the upper class Mexicans today. This has decreased the total of imports since 1930 by $170,000,000 a year. About $700,000,000 is invested in factories which receive government protection and encouragement in providing for the needs formerly met by imports.

Purchasing Power Increased.

This industrialization is coupled with a determination to increase the purchasing power of the people. The measurable success achieved in the last two years encourages the leaders in this policy—a mixture of Socialism and government controled capitalism.

Manuel Castillo, president of the federation of 130 chambers of commerce of Mexico, young and energetic, says:

"Our first efforts will be turned toward developing interstate commerce and building new industries in Mexico. Our chief export and import interests should remain with the United States. We have been driven away from this market by our feelings at times, but I think the spirit of neighborliness is now developing and I feel this is better for us than trade with Europe."

The newly formed bureau of Mexican trade, with government backing, is prepared to offer services to manufacturers, distributors, and investors of the United States looking to this field.

Sees NRA as Big Factor.

The official journal, just published, states:

"The ignorance of the average Mexican business man concerning the far-reaching program of the NRA in the United States is only matched by that of the average American business man of the principles of the Mexican six year plan. Yet both are great nationalistic movements, which have the most vital influence on trade relations between these nations, and must certainly be taken into consideration in the development of commerce between them.

"The amazing growth of Mexico's industrial and agricultural activity in recent years, together with their effect on the economic life of the nation, have altered in a great measure commercial relations between the United States and Mexico. This development, almost eliminating importations in many lines and creating new demands and trade opportunities in others, has also made Mexico an exporting nation."

Calles on Six Year Plan.

On the six year plan the journal quotes Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, "strong man" of Mexico, as follows:

"This plan suits the country's needs and possibilities. It proposes a cooperative economic system tending towards socialism to secure better distribution of the fruits of human toil. It proposes to solve economic problems with an evolutionary process, to transform and replace by peaceful means the procedure of capitalism."

Details of the plan reveal the minimum in the annual budget is $4,000,000 for distribution and restitution of lands and waters and establishment of farm colonies, and $50,000,000 for expansion of agricultural credit, with $20,000,000 more available during 1934.

This touches on the chief failure of the agrarian plan, which has been the inability of peons to produce crops without tools or money. Also it is proposed to spend $50,000,000 on urgent irrigation projects too large for local governments.

Plan New Railways.

The plan provides $60,000,000 for a six year period of construction of railroads in new territories. It also establishes national health and pure food laws and plans to develop a merchant marine. Tiajuana and Ensenada, established as free ports, are expected to rehabilitate the northern section of Lower California.

Industrial schools are to be established and employers required to support technical schools for the children of workers. The new activity and the agrarian policy indicate that much new machinery is needed from the United States for roads and irrigation.

In 1926, when lands were being dispersed widely, many farm implements were bought from the United States. Imports rose to $185,000,000 a year. Five years later they had fallen one-half, due to the high tariff and the low price of silver.

Plan to Limit Competition.

On commerce and national economy the plan follows:

"Regulations provide for the coordination of private with social interests, limiting the liberty of competition and preventing price decreases at the expense of wages or the stability of industrial enterprises. Producers of articles for export are to be aided in adapting their products to the needs of foreign markets and marketing groups organized. Trade treaties with other countries to benefit Mexican exports will be sought.

"Harmful monopolies will be prevented, as will unfair competition, though private initiative will be respected and encouraged. Medium sized industries best suited to Mexican necessities will be encouraged. The concentration of capital that may destroy small organizations upon which regional or community benefit is based will be prevented.

"An effort will be made to have national enterprises engage in the mining and petroleum industries. Great ore treatment plants and pipe lines will be classed as public services and will be subjected to regulation regarding tariffs. Petroleum concessions will be modified to give the state the power of denying franchises when economic necessity demands and to reduce the future concession area.

"A national system of electric power production will be granted only when in accord with national interests."

TURKISH 5 YEAR PLAN CALLS FOR MACHINERY; U. S. CREDIT IS SOUGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Further details of the Turkish five year plan as approved by President Mustapha Kemal were received in London today. The scheme calls for large quantities of machinery and supplies which Turkey must buy abroad and some which can be supplied by the United States if proper credit terms are available. The plan falls into seven stages:

FIRST—Damming the Ankara and Meander rivers and Lake Van to supply electrical power for Ankara, Symrna and the Black sea basin.

SECOND—Erection of factories to be worked by this power.

THIRD—Construction of a system of light railways connecting with the existing main lines.

FOURTH—Construction of iron and steel plants in the coal mining districts to be worked by electric power.

FIFTH—Development of Black sea ports.

SIXTH—Construction of a naval arsenal, naval base and dockyard on the Gulf of Ismid.

SEVENTH—Intensive electrification of all railways, towns and villages where hydraulic power is available.

Turkey is offering as a guarantee for the credit she requires the revenues of the Turkish tobacco monopoly and the Istanbul customs. These already are pledged for German and Swedish credits, which, however, will be paid off at the beginning of 1936, making them again availble as pledges.

ACTS TO PROTECT VALLEY STATES IN SEAWAY PACT

Dieterich for Congress Rule Over Diversion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Two reservations to the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, both of which are of vital import to Chicago and the Mississippi valley states, were introduced in the senate today by Senator William Dieterich [Dem., Ill.].

The first reservation provides that congress shall retain the right to specify the amount of water to be diverted from Lake Michigan at Chicago, with a proviso that the amount shall not exceed 10,000 cubic feet per second except in cases of emergency.

Asks Inquiry by Engineers.

The treaty as negotiated with Canada by President Hoover limited the diversion after 1938 to 1,500 cubic feet per second, a volume which Senator Dieterich and Senators James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] and Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.] have contended will be wholly insufficient to accord proper navigation of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

The second reservation proposed by Mr. Dieterich would require an inquiry to be made by engineers to determine the amount of water contributed to the great lakes by the water sheds in Canada and in the United States, and thereafter that each nation shall be entitled to use water, for power or diversion purposes, only in the proportion of the water contributed by each nation.

Senator Dieterich declared that the watersheds within the United States produce 65 per cent of the water flowing into the great lakes system. Despite this proportion, he said, Canada utilized 38,000 cubic feet per second of water at Niagara, while the United States uses only 20,000 cubic feet per second.

Defeat of Treaty Likely.

These allowances were made in a Canadian-American treaty of 1906, at which time, Senator Dieterich asserted, the diversion of water at Chicago was included in the reckoning, at a volume of 10,000 cubic feet per second. Mr. Dieterich's reservation would not only permit the United States to sanction a 10,000 feet diversion at Chicago, but would grant to the United States a considerable increase in the use of water for power purposes at Niagara, on the basis of the United States being entitled to 65 per cent of all water diverted from the great lakes.

Late checkups have indicated that the St. Lawrence treaty will be defeated; that the administration cannot gain the adherence of the required two-thirds vote of the senate. However should it be adopted, with such reservations as have already been proposed, and particularly those introduced today by Senator Dieterich, it is deemed a certainty that the Canadian government would refuse to accept the treaty plastered up with those reservations.

CHICAGO HEARS HOW CINCINNATI COLLECTS TAXES

Murray Seasongood, president of the National Municipal league, yesterday declared that times of stress such as the present offer an opportunity for reforms in municipal governments. The former Cincinnati mayor cited the success of that city's council-manager form of government as an example of what can and should be done. He spoke at the Union League round table.

Cincinnati, he said, has the lowest tax rate of any city in the United States with a population or more than 300,000. He pointed to the savings made possible by coördination of purchasing units for various local governments. A favorable balance of $900,000 for 1933 has been used to restore pay cuts of lowest paid city employés.

The people of Cincinnati pay their taxes, having the lowest delinquency rate in Ohio, Mr. Seasongood said, because they are assured "just about a dollar's worth of service for their tax dollar.

"They know that taxes are levied and assessed fairly," he said. "There are no favorites, the books are closed on time, and penalties are automatic."

Spain Prohibits Political Speeches Sent Over Radio

MADRID, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Spanish government henceforth will prohibit all political speeches by radio, Diego Martinez Barrios, minister of the interior, announced today. "In the event citizens want this political information," Barrios added, "they must attend the speeches or buy newspapers."

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Book Presents Gertrude Stein as She Really Is

"Making of Americans" Characteristic Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Making of Americans," by Gertrude Stein. [Harcourt-Brace.] Published on Thursday.

THURSDAY was practically Gertrude Stein day. On Thursday evening the opera "Four Saints in Three Acts," for which she wrote the libretto and Virgil Thompson composed the music, was given its American première in Hartford, Conn. And to round out the day for her, the first American edition of her much discussed [and practically unread] novel, "The Making of Americans," appeared.

Gertrude Stein is one of the literary phenomena of the day. For years those who came under the influence of her amazing and stimulating mind have been preaching the gospel of Gertrude Stein. The most intelligent artists and writers of the day have ravaged the thesaurus to describe the quality of that mind. She has been more often right in her critical judgments about modern art in its familiar manifestations of the pen, pencil, and the brush than any other living critic and her judgments have never pretended to be professional. She has been the great, brilliant amateur of modernity in her special field.

Almost a Myth.

And all the time there remained her own literary work, published in small editions by herself and Alice B. Toklas, her companion of twenty-five years, or lying in piles of manuscript unpublished. The few who read her at all either declared that her prose was incomprehensible [and gave up trying to understand it and concentrated on her criticism] or that it was the only new thing in English [and spoke about it as the Letter to the Ephesians was probably never praised in its generation]. Gertrude Stein became almost a myth.

And then, out of some inner waggishness I shall always think, Gertrude Stein undertook to write the "Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," just to prove that, if she wanted to, she could give anybody writing in English today cards and spades for beauty, vividness, and exactness of style . . . just as occasionally Matisse or Picasso do a drawing in the conventional manner and create something so supremely exact classically that their detractors are silenced forever when they say, "But he doesn't know how to draw."

Becomes Best Seller.

Gertrude Stein in the Autobiography proved that when she wants to she can write an English prose more classically perfect and more beautiful than any one wielding a pen today. (Just as she talks with more clarity and more brilliance than any present day conversationalist.) And she wrote the Autobiography off the way one would write a letter . . . with less effort, in fact, than most of us exert on our correspondence.

Concerned with material which was supposed to interest only the few and written much more as a gesture than her "unintelligible" writing, "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas" became, oddly, a national best seller in America. It has been discussed as much as any book of the last few months. It enjoys a tremendous popularity.

Then first, to give the American readers an idea of what was the special Steinishness of the author, her "Three Lives" was brought out in the Modern Library. The story of Melanctha is one of the great short stories of our day. But "Three Lives" wasn't "unintelligible," merely unconventional (and not so radically that).

No Changes in Style.

And now finally has come in "The Making of Americans"—Gertrude Stein at her most characteristic . . . a perfect sequence for the public's acceptance and understanding of prose unlike anything one is accustomed to. From a book "four and a half inches thick" Bernard Fay, Gertrude Stein's friend and French translator, has edited and shortened "The Making of Americans" into a book of 416 closely printed pages [there were no real changes made in Miss Stein's style].

With the supreme clarity of the style of the Autobiography a vivid memory, the reader of "The Making of Americans" will be convinced of one thing first of all—that whatever way Gertrude Stein has written "The Making of Americans" she CHOSE that way; that it was no accident nor, as some one recently tried to prove, "automatic writing" from some mystic source. Having decided that, the reader will find that her style is not in the least "incomprehensible." It is not easy to read. It gives one something of the feeling of reading a foreign language with which one is only eagerly but not intimately acquainted.

But it makes perfect sense when one reads it slowly and with intelligence. It makes more than sense . . . and perhaps that is the trouble for most of us. It has undersenses and oversenses the way that notes in music have undertones and overtones. And it has also an infinitude of repetitions.

Bernard Fay says in his preface that her repetitions are "not a literary habit or a trick, but a way to handle life something like the waves of the sea or like the beatings of a heart or like the regular return of the seasons."

You, as reader, have something of the feeling of a rock against which the sea of her words beats constantly, in rhythm, in flow and ebb . . . and although she writes more of ideas than she does of the actual doings of her characters, when you have finished "The Making of Americans" you know all of the members of the Hersland family better than you have known any human beings you have met in literature. The incessent impact of Gertrude Stein's ideas upon your consciousness have eroded their pattern into your mind.

I must admit that I find Gertrude Stein in the Autobiography, Gertrude Stein in her pellucid and vivid conversation, more enjoyable than I do Gertrude Stein in her characteristic prose . . . but I wonder if perhaps that intricate prose to which one has to give much before one takes much is not more stimulating?

Anyway, the American public can now finally know what all the word grenading has been about.

Kipling Society Has Original of Character for Its President

Did you know that there is a flourishing International Kipling society "to study and honor" Rudyard Kipling? It was founded in London Feb. 4, 1927, with the original "Stalky" of Stalky & Co. [Maj. Gen. L. C. Dunsterville, C. B. C. S. I.] as president and with the original "McTurk" of the same story [G. C. Beresford] as one of the vice presidents.

The society issues a quarterly periodical, the Kipling Journal. Much of the material deals with the numerous uncollected items of Kiplingiana. There are several Chicago members of the society, among them Peter D. Vroom of the Pullman News, who told me about the society. The secretary for the United States is Carl T. Naumburg, 333 Central Park West, New York City, who, according to Mr. Vroom, delights in answering inquiries of admirers and collectors of Kipling.

Dickens Letters Cast New Light on Family Life

British Engineer Claims He Proves Immortality.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—News that the death of Sir Henry Dickens releases for publication an intensely interesting series of personal letters, in which Charles Dickens explained much that has been dark in his family life, is of great importance. The letters have been for some time in possession of the British museum authorities; they are now to be made available to students and will be published in due course.

But there are also many valuable new books and new editions to be published in London in the course of the spring. First among them I should rank the new volume by J. W. Dunne, entitled "The Serial Universe" [Faber].

Mr. Dunne is an engineer of great experience, and his first important book was the extraordinary and sensational "Experiment with Time," which was published six years ago. In that book, one of the most influential of the age, the author analyzed with great candor and clearness some curious personal experiences of prophetic dreams, and propounded a new theory of time which hitherto had been distantly glimpsed only in the pages of Mr. Wells' romance, "The Time Machine."

Mr. Dunne's book was philosophic and it caused heart-searching among philosophers; but it was also as exciting as a romance, because it opened up an infinity of knowledge of past and future such as nobody had ever previously been bold enough to imagine.

Now, along with a new and revised edition of "An Experiment with Time," there is to be a more elaborate study of the theory of "serialism," as Mr. Dunne names it, and this should be the occasion of a battle royal between the philosophers. It will assuredly be one of the most talked of books of the season; and as Mr. Dunne claims to establish in its pages definite proof of human immortality it will be of urgent interest to many who are not, strictly speaking, philosophers.

Another interesting book for modern readers—or at any rate for those modern readers who can read modern poetry—is the new long poem by W. J. Turner, called "Jack and Jill" [Dent]. Mr. Turner, of course, is well known as a provocative critic of fashion in music and is always at war. But at the same time he is, and has long been, a serious and individual poet; and in "Jack and Jill," an ambitious criticism of the modern world, he deals at length with ideas true and false.

Mr. Turner is a great friend and companion of James Stephens, who is so familiarly known and loved in Chicago, and it would not surprise me if many of the ideas in "Jack and Jill" had been threshed out in some of the weekly and endless conversations which take place between these two poets. At any rate, this should be lively work, for few men hold stronger opinions than Turner, and few express them more vehemently.

Sea Captain's Son Writes Tale of Dad's Experiences

It isn't often that a salty old British shellback who's been round the Horn forty-one times, battled fire at sea, quelled mutinies and had a more than generous supply of ocean adventure, is lucky enough to have a seaman son who can ghostwrite his biography of many years in sail. Capt. James P. Barker, nominal author of "The Log of a Limejuicer" [Huntington Press], has a son who was third mate on a windjammer of which he was skipper. Roland Barker can write as well as sail, and with the wealth of material supplied by his father has turned out a seamanlike and stirring story of life on blue water.

Phyllis Bentley Says Riot of Sex Fiction Is Passing

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Romantic love fiction is coming back into popular favor, replacing cheap, sensational sex stories, Phyllis Bentley, British novelist, declared on her arrival here today. "The riot of raw, glittering sex novels that flooded the world's book shelves after the war was simply a reaction to the squeamish reticence of the Victorian novel," Miss Bentley observed. "But sex has been overdone—hacked to death."

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

If you are looking for a really entertaining story, run out and buy "Two o'Clock Courage" [Bobbs Merrill], by Gelett Burgess. It starts off with a murder and then, mirabile dictu, in the course of 348 pages nobody else gets killed. How's that for these days of wholesale slaughter?

Then, to add to its distinction, is a hero who thinks maybe he might have committed the murder, a sprightly newspaperman who knows everything that nobody needs to know, actresses who just drip with temperament, a golden girl, a malapropian ragamuffin, a Belgian fiddler who becomes entangled in everything, including his own flow of language, and a whole regiment of other people who might just as well have done the killing as not. And all the time Gelett Burgess is being really funny in a nice, civilized way, and up to the last page, almost, it is anybody's murder.

One might say Mr. Burgess had invented the term "bromide" in those faraway days of "The Lark" not to describe this mystery novel; for novel it is and not just a plain murder story. Coincidence is a little overworked and a good many rather crazy alarums and excursions have to be neatly explained, but Mr. Burgess is equal to the job. Altogether as a nice adjustment of mystery, romance, ingenuity, and strange but believable characters this book is a fat little masterpiece.

"The Death Wish," by Elizabeth Sanxay Holding.

A good story and sufficiently mysterious is "The Death Wish" [Dodd-Mead], by Elizabeth Sanxay Holding. A number of nice and perfectly credible people become involved in two deaths, which, though they seem accidental, are too apt to go unquestioned. A dour young man, rich and stubborn, arouses your wrath and reluctant respect, while a wistful bounder gives you the surprise of your life at the latter end. This is another one of those books to lure the straight novel reader into the ranks of the mystery fan. It is very agreeably written in a fresh and arresting manner.

A Money Problem.

Sydney Clark, who has told thousands of readers in his "Fifty Dollar" series how to see practically every country in Europe for $50 a country, writes despairingly from France of the fluctuating dollar. "I only hope F. R. knows what he is doing. . . . Here they call him, amusingly, 'Le maitre de caoutchouc,' which, translated literally, means 'The master of rubber.'"

This Story of Secret Expedition in Africa Great Adventure Book

"African Intrigue," by Alfred Batson [Garden City], is claimed to be the actual record of a tragic move in the game of international undercover diplomacy on the dark continent. Whether it's true or not doesn't matter. Batson, who two years ago wrote "A Vagabond's Paradise," one of the best travel books in several seasons, has this time written one of the greatest adventure yarns we ever lost ourselves in.

It's the sinister story of a secret expedition by four Germans in 1911 into French Togoland and the Judan and the tragic ending to three as a result of the stubbornness and arrogancy of the Junker major in charge—a Prussian paradox, brave but boorish, generous but vain [monocled to the end], cruel but indifferent to personal pain. We don't recall a more thrilling and enthralling story of adventure since we were a youngster.

Scotchman Tells Another of His Adventures of Sea

"The Odyssey of Andrew Swan" [Holt] is the naïve tale of a Scotchman's adventurous life in the days of sail as told to another native of Scotland, Dugald Macfadyen. It's a stirring biography of a sailor and deep sea diver who lived a life of thrills on both sea and land. He was wrecked on a south sea island, where he and his companions lived for two years. Later he traveled through and about New Zealand on foot and in schooner with several "chums" in a jolly journey reminiscent of "The Good Companions." It's an entertaining book of its kind and is equipped with interesting end paper maps.

Gwynn Recreates Strange Personality of Dean Swift

In "The Life and Friendships of Dean Swift" [Holt], Stephen Gwynn recreates not only the strange and (to some biographers baffling) personality of the greatest satirist of his day, but also the day which he satirized. Mr. Gwynn finds his hero quite other than the misanthrope which tradition has labeled Swift. His "Friendships" form a large and interesting part of the illuminating biography.

Titled Russian Tells of Visit to Homeland in "First to Go Back"

Irina Skariatina, formerly Countess Irina Wladimirovna Keller under the old Russian régime and now Mrs. Victor F. Blakeslee of U. S. A., is said to have been the first member of the former titled Slav aristocracy to reënter the soviet union. She tells of her return to her native land in "First to Go Back" [Bobbs-Merrill], a fast moving, well written and both amusing and informative travel tale. Apparently visitors to Russia discover just about what they're looking for. With few exceptions she finds her native land exactly the opposite to what Carveth Wells found in his "Kapoot." Practically everything is O. K.—or whatever the Russian is for that opposite to "kapoot." For those not familiar with Slav idioms we might add that "kapoot" means "on the blink."

Frank M. Chapman, Noted Ornithologist, Writes Autobiography

"Autobiography of a Bird Lover," by Frank M. Chapman [Appleton-Century], is the well rounded out life story of one of the world's greatest ornithologists, for fifty years connected with the American Museum of Natural History, of which he is now curator of birds.

His life has not been confined to his museum, however. He made many trips to the tropics and to Europe, where, in addition to seeing all of the feathered inhabitants and describing them with charm and skill, he met many of the great men and women of his time. It's a delightful, smoothly written, instructive, interesting, and humorous story of a great scientist.

Cocktail Party Rests Working Society Woman

Prefers Store to Confining Toil at Home.

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with society women who have entered business.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A diversity of reactions and experiences was reflected in interviews with the various society women now in the business world.

Among the women only recently started on business careers great enthusiasm prevailed. Among those whose business experience has passed beyond the stage of novelty less eagerness was revealed for the world of business and a hankering for departed leisure was voiced more than once.

Asked why she had entered business, Mrs. Harold C. Strotz, the former Maxine Stresenreuter Culver, pretty young matron who was one of the most popular hostesses at the smart social events given when the Italian flyers were here during the World's Fair, replied: "That is rather a personal question. But I'm working for money." She is selling clothes in the fashion bureau of one of the large loop department stores, and has been for the last three months.

"If I were working for a thrill I shouldn't be here. I feel that the women who do that are taking a job from some one who needs it, and that is wrong. They could find something else thrilling, I feel, which would also be a benefit to the community. I've always worked at something—but it was working for charity. This is the first time I've had any commercial experience, except for handling my own finances.

"But despite my working because I need the money, I do get a thrill out of my work. It's fascinating here. Working for a big firm like this, you feel toward it as if it were your alma mater, you know. You're just so interested in every single thing the store is doing.

"Of course I do get tired. My feet get awfully tired. All the persons I meet aren't pleasant, either. But I dash home at the end of the day—we've left our place at 1250 Astor street, and are living with my sister, Mrs. Paul Butler, who's recently been divorced, at her home in Hinsdale.

"I change my clothes hurriedly, dash to a cocktail party, dash home again, change again and rush to another party. I have to do it. I'd lose my mind if I didn't. You see, while I get physically tired here, the work is mentally lulling."

Mrs. Strotz, whose husband is the son and heir of the late Charles N. Strotz, vice president of the American Tobacco company, and made a name in sports as a member of the Onwentsia club polo team, is the mother of a 1 year old son.

"I find I can run a house and work, too," she said with her radiant smile. "I have a good staff of servants, an excellent nurse for the baby, and all I have to do is to issue orders in the morning and check to see if they've been carried out at night."

"What you're making could not pay their salaries, could it?" she was asked.

"No, but this is just a beginning," she said eagerly. "I expect to stay in business all my life. I have ambitions, and I have reason to think some of them may be fulfilled. I went into this particular work because it seemed to me one could be successful and remain refined in it."

The idea of firing her servants and remaining at home, working in her home, did not appeal to her, Mrs. Strotz said.

"It would be stagnating mentally," she said. "Besides, a woman who's been brought up as I have been really couldn't stand the physical labor of working at home. I couldn't get down and scrub floors and wash the baby's little things. I could never go anywhere. I'd be tied down."

Mrs. Strotz said that her husband felt proud of her for having made the effort she had made and for sticking to it. She herself missed the baby, she said, but felt that she was doing something definite for the future.

Mrs. Columbus Healy, who with Miss Harriet McLaughlin operates the Brick House, Inc., a dress and sportswear shop at 100 East Walton street, has been in business there three years and regards herself not as a society woman but a business woman.

"It took me two years to live down the fact that I had been known as a 'social' or 'society' person," she said, when interviewed at the end of the day in her apartment at 73 Cedar street.

A young woman with short blonde hair, blue eyes and a forthright manner, Mrs. Healy, the former Harriet Pardridge, was dressed in a blue satin hostess gown trimmed with fur, with a graceful train. In a room beyond her cheerful living room her 8 year old son sat studying.

"I'm working because I have to," Mrs. Healy continued. "Other persons in the trade resent it when society women enter into competition with them. I don't blame them; I would, too. It was a great detriment to me that I had been a person of leisure, but I think I've overcome it.

"I don't entertain and I go almost no place now. When I'm tired as I was tonight I come home and have a massage and crawl into bed. I have a small apartment because I prefer a small place which I can keep clean and pretty, to a large one which I can't. I have a maid for half a day. And isn't it a darling little apartment?" she added with a smile.

Asked whether, if she had ample means, she would return to a life largely social in flavor, she replied thoughtfully:

"No, I don't think I could. I wouldn't do the same things I did. But I hope I don't have to work all my life. I would love to have time to go to plays and concerts, to do things I used to take for granted but now appreciate. I'm too tired at night even to read."

Mrs. Healy does considerable designing of costumes as well as selling. She hopes in time to carry only their own line of clothes, she said.

"I don't sell to my friends. They don't buy from me, and I don't blame them," she said. "Our trade is largely among people we didn't formerly know.

"If women think I know who they are, they become uncomfortable. They may think that they should pay more than they want to if they're known, or they may think I'm going to go to a luncheon and say that they had on the most awful pink underwear, or some other equally foolish thing. But the fact is that for business, you must be a business woman. And I am one now."

Hindu Dancers Give Program That Fascinates

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With a few differences in program, Uday-Shan-Kar and his company of Hindu dancers and musicians are paying a deferred visit to Orchestra hall. There was one program last night. There will be another with somewhat altered items this afternoon.

One point has not changed. That is the fascination of the performance. The gentle, rhythmic sway of the dances works its charm, no less than the superb physical control of the dancers, a control not only of legs and feet, but arms and fingers, torso and neck muscles. Simkie continues as first assistant to Shan-Kar, with Kanak-Lata, Debendra, and Robindra as other dancers.

Several types of dances are presented, those of the folk, the peasants, the snake charmer, the hunter, others pass to pictures of the gods and their attributes. At the end there is a brief drama of the gods. Perhaps the pantomime may be unfamiliar in its conventions, but the dances never fail to touch the sense of beauty.

Here is Hindu music as well, gentle, rhythmic, melodious, without harmony, but strongly rhythmic. There are instruments like enlarged mandolins, some to be plucked, some to be played with a bow, fiddlewise. There is an occasional primitive flute and a more primitive horn. There are percussion instruments by the dozen, though played only a few at a time, the mellowest gongs on record, tiny porcelain bowls tuned to a scale by pouring water into them, drums to be struck with sticks or pounded and rubbed with palms and fingers, cymbals in various varieties down to the smallest, above all the continal tinkle of tiny bells on the ankles of the dancers.

They are recommended.

Arthur G. Cable, chairman, and Edward L. Ryerson, C. B. Goodspeed, and Chauncey McCormick, of the committee appointed to raise the estimated deficit of $70,000 of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for the present season, reported yesterday that to date they have received 119 pledges to the guaranteed fund totaling $24,337.75 and 185 subscriptions for additional tickets totaling $4,718.50, or 304 in all totaling $29,056.25.

This, they state, is a gratifying amount, though there is disappointment in the fact that only 304 out of 2,400 season ticket subscribers have responded. The committee is making an appeal to others who intend to subscribe to send in their subscriptions as soon as possible.

The symphony programs of March 1 and 2 will be made up of request numbers. Requests may be sent to Frederick Stock, Orchestra hall, up to and including Feb. 15.

Reports as to a series of symphony concerts at A Century of Progress next summer appeared to gain support yesterday when Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, admitted that an inquiry about the availability of his organization had been made. Mr. Voegeli said that he was not at liberty to disclose the name of the inquiring and supposedly sponsoring organization.

Gossip is to the effect that plans are being made to rebuild the 23d street bridge at the south of the lagoon into an elaborate entry to a more elaborate music hall which will be erected on an island of piling just north of the bridge, and that several of the most noted American musical organizations in addition to the Chicago Symphony orchestra will be invited to participate in the concert series.

Arnold Schoenberg, guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon and Thursday night, will lecture on his own music at the University of Chicago tonight. The lecture will be open to the public. The first performance in Chicago of his "Kammersymphonie" will be given tomorrow night at the Arts club. A chamber orchestra will play it under the direction of Frederick Stock.

The performance of "The Bartered Bride," announced for next Friday night at the Civic Opera house, will not be given. Failure to raise the required amount of money necessary is given as the reason and the money already taken in from the sale of tickets will be returned.

Good Morning!

"Beloved" is a story of frustration set to music.

It follows the career of a musician whose aspiration to compose "The great American symphony" meets with drawback after drawback. When at last his dream comes true he is a tottering old man—and the shock kills him.

The action starts in Vienna, where the composer [later played by John Boles], is discovered as the child of a nobleman—himself a musician of note. From cradle days love of music is instilled in Carl, who, when a mere tot, astounds those who hear him play at his father's salons.

Comes the Vienna revolution. . . . The scene shifts to Carolina before the civil war and here Carl meets the girl who is to be his wife and his "Beloved" through the years. . . .

And now are revealed the tribulations of the Carl Hausmanns through the years that span civil, Spanish-American, and world wars to the present day. A worthless son is killed in the last battle but he leaves behind him a son who becomes the idol of his grandparents. The lad has inherited his grandsire's love of music—but he is a product of the times and his inspiration finds expression in jazz—which almost breaks the heart of old Hausmann.

Success, however, attends upon the boy who unconsciously plagiarizes the melodies he's heard at home all his life. In fury Carl leaves his grandson's house. . . .

Charles, who adores him, rushes to the heads of an important orchestra, who for the sum of $5,000 which he donates to the sick musicians' fund agree to produce his grandfather's symphony.

At last—appreciation . . . !

(In what film, can you tell me, did there occur a like situation? The last scenes of "Beloved" were troublesomely familiar to me.)

John Boles, Gloria Stuart, and most of the other players do excellent work. An irritating note is introduced by Louise Carter's portrayal of Mrs. Tarrant—mother of "Beloved." It is the sort of performance a hired girl, aping a fine lady, might give before her looking glass.

All of the backgrounds are effective and the musical accompaniment is charming. Still—"Beloved" doesn't get over. The piece is too long, too episodic, has been far from cleverly assembled, and direction was minus the light, graceful, intuitive touch that probably would have made this photoplay a notable production of its kind.

See you tomorrow.

Convent Seniors.

Seniors at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at 6250 Sheridan road are to have a supper dance this evening at the House of Biggs.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Around the town. . . . A powder bar, no less, in a Chicago shop, presided over by a beauty wise young bartender in a snowy white frock who can mix you a pick-me-up blend if that's what you need, a creamy coating, or a sun tan blush.

In front of her bar is a metal contraption you stick your head in, a hoodlike dingus concealing one of those terrifying magnifying mirrors that shows up your skin for what it really is. We don't know how you might stand such inspection but we wanted to crawl in a hole and die after one quick look.

You realize that your skin isn't nearly as clean as you thought it was, not nearly as unblemished as you thought it was, and you see just exactly how luridly a poorly chosen powder tint fights with the natural tint of your skin. It's a hard lesson for a woman with a spark of vanity—but a salutary one. After learning what's wrong she listens to the powder doctor's diagnosis with understanding and gratitude.

In the process of concocting the powder blend dictated by the nuances of color in your own skin and influenced somewhat by the color of your eyes and hair the young woman gives an expert makeup with creams and tonics and all the trimmings.

The powder blending for each person who comes to the bar is a delight to watch. The woman whose skin has pink undertones gets one subtle blend, the warm skinned woman gets another, and that rare creature, the woman whose skin is actually creamy white—or as close to white as any skin ever is—gets a luscious coating of that same alabaster shade with an almost indistinguishable undertone of flesh color to give it a pearly liveness.

For each patron the bartender mixes an evening powder, too, blended and tried out under night lights. Your face all dressed up in its stepping out coat you realize forcibly that you've never fully appreciated the fact that so much of what we call glamour has its being in little boxes.

Miss Bucklin Will Be Bride at Rites Today

Ceremony to Be Held at St. Chrysostom's.

BY JUDITH CASS.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon St. Chrysostom's church will be the scene of another fashionable wedding, that of Miss Imogene Edna Bucklin, daughter of the Vail R. Bucklins, to Frederic Marshall Hurd, son of the Ellis Rhea Hurds of Hinsdale. Miss Bucklin will be certain to rank among the topmost in the long list of lovely brides who have exchanged their vows in this church on Dearborn parkway, for she is tall, slim and queenly, and has delicate features and a pale complexion set off by raven black curly hair.

Three blonde attendants will provide further contrast to the bride's dark beauty. They are Miss Martha Lee, daughter of the T. George Lees, who will precede the bride to the altar as maid of honor; Miss Helen Johnson, daughter of the William B. Johnsons of Evanston, and Miss Betty Brawley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Brawley, who are bridesmaids.

Ellis Rhea Hurd Jr. will be best man for his brother, and ushering will be Francis Beidler, a cousin of the bridegroom; V. Rhode Bucklin Jr., the bride's brother; Harry A. Dow Jr., Dunreath Lee Hawkins of South Dakota, and Howard Richardson.

Immediately after the Rev. Dudley Stark has pronounced the benediction the bride and bridegroom and their parents will return to the Bucklins' apartment at 1415 Astor street to receive the best wishes of their close friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucklin gave the bridal diner at the Casino last night. Others present besides themselves and the wedding party and Mr. and Mrs. Hurd were Dr. and Mrs. George M. Fiske, the bride's aunt and uncle, and Miss Peggy Elmes, the Cecil Elmes' daughter, who was the especial guest of young Mr. Bucklin.

Upon their return from a wedding trip Mr. Hurd and his bride will be at home at 1400 Lake Shore drive—in a tiny apartment all furnished and ready for them.

Kirkpatrick-Polachek Nuptials in New York.

A wedding this evening in New York City that is of interest to many Chicagoans is that if Miss Helen Paul Kirkpatrick, daughter of Mrs. Paul Kirkpatrick and Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, formerly of Rochester but now of New York, to Victor H. Polachek Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Polachek of New York.

The Rev. Harold Adye Pritchard, canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, will read the service in the Church of the Ascension. Miss Harriet Loutrel of South Orange, N. J., a friend of the bride at Smith college, will be the maid of honor, and Frank Polachek of Washington will serve his brother as best man. Mr. Polachek is a graduate of Princeton. After a wedding trip Mr. Polachek and his bride are to make their home in Chicago, where Mr. Polachek is in business.

Jungle Ball Will Be Held Tonight.

With $10,000 worth of background for the Jungle ball tonight [this is the figure at which the murals and settings are estimated had they been ordered commercially], the party should be one of the most spectacular social events of this winter season. It's to be a true African epic . . . full of jungle noises and weird people and animals [the latter by way of the costumes in which the guests are asked to appear].

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster are having a dinner for their six guests . . . among them the Graham Aldises and the James H. Mitchells . . . before going to occupy their balcony box in the Sherman ballroom. Others who will be dinner hosts and hostesses before an evening in the jungle are the Wirt Mortons, the John Roots, and the George Woodruffs, who just got back from New York this morning in time for the party.

There will be at least two guests in leopard skins . . . Bobette Boysen, who is taking the leopard rug off her studio floor, and Thomas Wheelock, who resurrected the leopard skin he wore to a Twelfth Night ball some time back.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon [Mrs. Pynchon has served as chairman of the advisory committee] will of course entertain, but the Charles H. Worcesters, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, the James Simpsons, and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings have all given their boxes to younger members of their families and friends. Proceeds from the affair are going to benefit the newly organized Chicago Artists' Equity.

Costume Ball at Dunham Woods.

One of the major attractions in the country this evening will be the costume ball the Dunham Woods Riding club is to hold in the Dunham coach house out at Wayne. The Dunham parties always provide fun galore, so it is a certain guess that a blizzard or zero temperatures will be no deterrent to all the young folk planning to APROPOS the discussion of a string of pearls, Lady Faith Montague, the charming blue-eyed daughter of the Earl and Countess of Sandwich, who is studying in Chicago this winter, told a story about the king and queen of England.

Release—Plight—Wines.

It seems that a particular firm in England is patronized by most of the owners of good pearls when they need re-stringing, and the woman expert of the firm goes to their homes to string them. Among her patrons is Queen Mary; also Lady Faith's mother. One day when she came to Hinchingbrooke to restring the pearls of the countess she told of a litt'e incident that had occurred the preceding day when she had been at the palace to restring the pearls of the queen. She worked in the little anteroom of the queen's boudoir, she said. She was busy there and the queen was in her boudoir when the door opened and the king entered. Unaware of her presence in the anteroom, the king approached the queen, seized her around the waist and rapidly twirled her around.

"O, May darling, we have a perfectly free evening ahead of us," he said jubilantly. "We can do just what we please."

That wasn't all the story either. After the king had departed the queen came into the anteroom and informed the pearl stringer that she mustn't tell a soul of the impulsive and unroyal little scene to which she had been witness.

"Indeed I will, ma'am," said the pearl stringer, emphatically if equivocally.

THINGS certainly have come to to a pass for the Winnetka lady who was wailing about the family poverty to a friend the other day.

"Our Winnetka house is up for sale, and a lot we bought in Nassau, on which we expected to build a winter home, is up for sale, and our cemetery lot back home in Louisville is for sale," she said.

* *

THE other day, in speaking of red wine, we said "Pommery" instead of "Pommard," and both the Burgundy lovers and champagne enthusiasts were annoyed. We should have mentioned a good claret, Chateau Lafite '24, perhaps, and avoided the careless mistake resulting from the similarity of names. . . . Speaking of liquor brings to mind that recently some of the more conservative Vassar alumnae were a little upset because of the decision of the board of governors of Vassar House restaurant to serve liquor there. We wonder what they think now when they walk in and see on the menu, listed as the first course on a table d'hôte dinner, "Choice of sherry or cocktail."

* *

THE other day a pretty debutante was having luncheon there with a companion. She ordered a martini and asked that it be very dry. When the cocktail was served her she tasted it, made a wry face and called back the waitress.

"But I said a very dry one," the young sophisticate said. "I can't possibly drink this. Take it back and bring me a dry one instead."

The waitress explained that she would be glad to do so, but doubted that a second one would be much different, as they were made after one formula.

"Well, then, take it back and bring me a Bronx," said the debutante. "I can't possibly drink a sweet cocktail."

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce. Barbara invites him to a small dinner party and introduces him to her father as a casual acquaintance. Her father suspects Barbara's interest in Rance. He won't have him in the house again. Then relents, fearing she will meet him outside. Gregory writes to Mr. Brawne, asking for an interview. Barbara tells her father she is going to marry Gregory.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

AN OGRE INTERVIEWED.

Barbara and her father went up the path arm in arm. Neither had said what was really in their mind and neither was entirely deceived by the other. Her father's new tolerance puzzled and alarmed her. He had not even hinted at a period of probation as she had feared. Ahead was the interview with Gregory. She thought of it fearfully, with a growing apprehension.

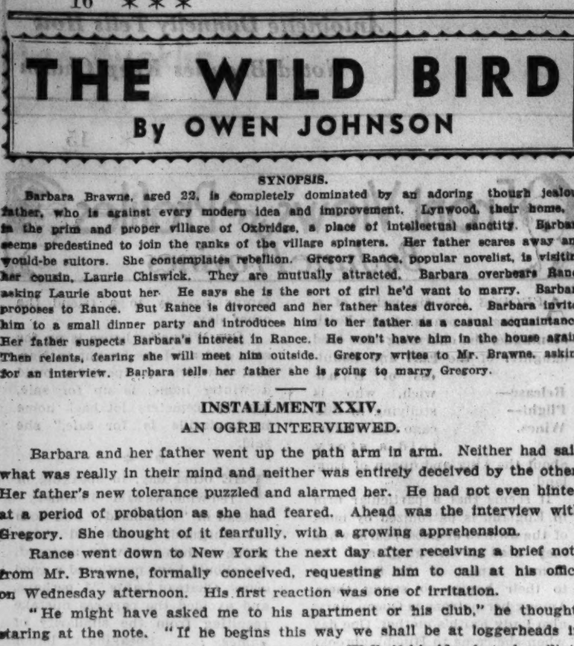
Rance went down to New York the next day after receiving a brief note from Mr. Brawne, formally conceived, requesting him to call at his office on Wednesday afternoon. His first reaction was one of irritation.

"He might have asked me to his apartment or his club," he thought, staring at the note. "If he begins this way we shall be at loggerheads in ten minutes. Perhaps that's what he wants. Well, if his idea is to humiliate me and provoke an explosion, I'll be damned if I walk into the trap. Forewarned, forearmed. Grin and be diplomatic, though I'm not much good at that. I'd rather burst out."

He went down to Broad street and found his way to one of the older buildings, curiously shopworn and antiquated among the new aristocrats of the sky. The narrow mahogany elevator, with its invalided attendant, rose slowly to the eighth floor and he found his door. The middle aged spinster at the desk who took his card, looked up at him in sudden respectful recognition and had him shown into the library, with its antiquated portly iron columns and heavy silences.

Left alone he explored leisurely. There were several dim portraits on the walls, stiffly painted, of former Brawnes, founders of the firm.

"No wonder he's all shut in," he thought with a glance about him at the faded law books and the struggling beams of light. "There hasn't been a breath of air in here for generations. The legal mind, traditional, precise.



You wish to marry my daughter?

Men who make laws and live by the laws. Interpreters of the past, resisters of progress. How the devil is the ogre going to understand one word of what I'm going to say to him?"

He followed Miss Potter, the secretary, through a series of rooms to an inner sanctum where Mr. Brawne was entrenched at his desk, broad enough so that there was no need to offer his hand.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting, Mr. Rance." A wave of the hand. "Take a chair! Smoke?"

"Thanks, no."

"Happens to be a busy afternoon."

"If you prefer——"

"No, no. We shan't be interrupted much. Just a moment." He drew a letter towards him, glanced through it, signed it, and rang for Miss Potter. "Send this at once."

Rance noticed two of his books on a side table.

"He's been combing them for something to object to," he thought, "trying to make me out by what I write. Of course, he would do that."

Mr. Brawne took off his voluminous spectacles, wiped them leisurely and after a moment's waiting for Rance to begin, said, "You asked for an interview, I believe, Mr. Rance?"

"You are not ignorant of the reason, I presume, sir."

"No, no. I have had a talk with Barbara. You wish to marry my daughter?"

Rance nodded.

"I suppose there are certain questions you'd like to ask me?"

"That is natural. I have an old fashioned interest in the future of my daughter."

Rance smiled.

"As a matter of fact you've had an understanding for some time."

"That's true."

"Rather abrupt, wasn't it?"

"Such things are apt to be."

A bell buzzed at the desk. Miss Potter came in with a memorandum which she offered for his inspection. Rance rose and walked to the window, thoroughly angry.

"Decidedly crude. We'll put a stop to that."

"Excuse me a moment," Brawne spoke to his secretary in an undertone. There was a sound of retreating steps and the click of the door.

"Now, Mr. Rance."

He came back, having mastered his annoyance, and remained standing.

"This seems to be an unfortunately busy moment for you, sir—I suggest we postpone the interview to a more appropriate time and place. I should be very glad if you'd dine with me at my club or my hotel."

"There will be no more interruptions."

"Would you give that order then, sir. I am not consulting you on business, you see—and I think there is no need of making this interview any more difficult than it is bound to be."

Brawne studied him a moment, saw that he was not to be trifled with and barked out, "Sit down." He touched the buzzer. "Miss Potter, don't come in until I ring—for any reason."

"Thank you." Rance settled himself in his chair and waited.

"You are assuming, Mr. Rance, that I shall oppose this marriage?"

"I am."

"Really? Why?"

"Because I think your natural reaction to any one who wished to marry your daughter would be one of distrust."

"Distrust?"

"Exactly. I shall try to appreciate your reasons."

"There are two points of view in the question of marriage," Mr. Brawne began drily. "There is the point of view of the two directly involved, what might be called the sentimental attitude. I say sentimental because—I don't have to explain this to a student of human nature—the emotions rather than the judgments are generally admitted to be in control."

"For the moment, let us pass over that."

"Then there is the point of view of the parents, the point of view of experience, of a man like myself, who has been watching for forty years the tragedies that come from impulsive conclusions. You are seeking the beginnings of life, I have been recording how life works out."

Rance inclined his head to concede the point.

"Now, my daughter's point of view is easily understandable. You are. I understand, more or less of a celebrity. You are ingratiating, personally. There is a public aura about you that is attractive to the romantic in her. But, to be quite frank, I am puzzled to understand just what attracts you."

"That is an odd question from her father."

"Precisely, because I know her as a father knows his child."

Rance thought a moment.

"These things are rather chemical, sir," he said slowly. It was difficult for him to detail his real feelings before that evident hostility. "That is not, however, the answer you wish. Let me see if I can make you understand."

"Please."

"Barbara is quite the most interesting personality I have met. She is intensely stimulating and sympathetic. She is a personality, some one, rare in these days, who does not run with the herd. She has an original mind and an unusual way of looking directly into the realities of things. I can't imagine ever being bored for a moment with her as my wife. And when I have said that, I think I have touched fundamentals."

Film Reporter Gives a List of His Pet Peeves

Latest Garbo Incident Holds No. 1 Position.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Here are some typical things that make Hollywood reporters go sour on the movies:

Peeve No. 1—When seeking publicity for the newest film of an actress who won't deign to be seen personally, send telegrams to conductors on railroad trains saying: "Please install radio for Miss Globbo in Pullman drawing room B," thus starting a transcontinental wild goose chase by newspaper men when their Miss Globbo isn't on the train heading for her grand New York opening.

Peeve No. 2—When producers of girl shows from Broadway arrive in Hollywood with much fanfare, to produce girl movies, and suddenly discover, with mock surprise, several beauty finds for their ensembles; only the beauties are the same manikins, show girls, and bathing suit contest queens the producers knew in New York last year.

Peeve No. 3—When blackface minstrels dramatically announce they'll never sing "Mammy" in films any more [after drawing more than one million in movie salaries] because the movies ain't what they should be, only to recall, strangely, the day after publication of their announcements, that they have contracts to make a couple more pictures.

Peeve No. 4—When vivid nature pictures show giant octopi battling divers beneath the sea, and gorillas thumping their chests and chasing women through darkest Africa, only you learn later that the octopus was made in an Ohio rubber factory, and thrashed his arms by means of a motor, and that the gorilla was merely a stunt man wearing a fur skin, and darkest Africa was a Hollywood back lot.

Leroy Prinz, Chicagoan who directs the girls' dance numbers at Paramount studio, was on a six foot square platform demonstrating steps for the chorus in "Murder at the Vanities" yesterday when one intricate step too many sent him right off the platform and into space. Prinz landing on his left knee. The directors think it will be a long time before Prinz does some more dancing.

motor out from town and the north shore.

The Arts club members are feeling justly elated over the opportunity they are to have tomorrow night of hearing the first Chicago performance of Arnold Schoenberg's Kammer Symphonie, with the composer conducting. This Viennese composer, who is paying his first visit to Chicago and who was received so enthusiastically by the symphony audiences Thursday night and yesterday afternoon, and his wife are to be given a dinner by the club preceding the music which will be played by members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoenberg will dine with the president, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mr. Goodspeed and about twenty-five others whom Mrs. Goodspeed has asked to meet the Schoenbergs. Among others who will have guests tomorrow night are Mrs. Charles T. Boynton, Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell, Mrs. Otho F. Ball, Mrs. Frederic d'Aix, Mrs. Samuel G. Taylor III., and Mrs. William F. Peterson.

Yesterday's mail brought cards from the Arts club announcing a tea for next Friday to open three exhibitions, paintings by Ernest Fiene and Pedro Pruna and ceramic sculpture by Vally Wieselthier.

Two Clubs Hold Parties Tonight.

Two of society's women's clubs that don't often have evening parties are combining to have a supper and musical tomorrow night, the Friday and the Fortnightly clubs. Mrs. William A. Nitze, president of the Friday club, will be there, but Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, president of the Fortnightly, has postponed returning from her country home in Michigan until next week. Mrs. Baum was shaken up severely in an automobile accident she and her son, Mervyn Baum, experienced last week-end on their way to the farm.

Mrs. Laird Bell reached Chicago yesterday from Europe just in time to have tea with her sister Bryn Mawr alumnæ before the cheery log fire in Mrs. Cecil Barnes' living room at 1153 North Dearborn parkway.

Even the latest reports the Bryn Mawr graduates were making on their benefit to be held the evening of Feb. 26 with Cornelia Otis Skinner as the attraction had to take second place to the glamorous stories Mrs. Bell told of her eleven days in Berlin. She went with Mr. Bell, who made the trip to attend a monetary conference in the German capital. The committee reported that all boxes for the benefit had been sold.

Victor Elting to Enjoy Cruise.

Victor Elting leaves today for a three of four weeks' cruise to the West Indies. Mr. Elting's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Victor Elting Jr., will also leave today to return to her home in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Mrs. Elting has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Edwin Stanley, at their home in State parkway.

Miss Elsie McCormick sailed yesterday on the American Banker for England. She is going to Europe on her annual trip, and will not return to Chicago until next fall.

The junior James B. Forgans are sailing today for Bermuda, where they will spend a fortnight.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and her small daughter, Nancy, are leaving next Saturday for Vero Beach, near Palm Beach, Fla., where they will spend a month. Mrs. Madlener's parents, the Frank O. Lowdens, are in Chandler, Ariz., and will not be returning to their Oregon, Ill., farm until spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Lundberg of Winnetka are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter on Monday at the Evanston hospital. This is their fourth daughter and fifth child. Mrs. Lundberg is the former Eleanor Jewett of Chicago. The new baby is to be named Leigh.

Mrs. Maude Warren Extends Stay Here.

Mrs. Maude Radford Warren, who still considers Chicago home although she now lives in Ithaca, N. Y., has extended her stay and will be at the Fortnightly club another month. Mrs. Warren talked yesterday to the members of the Contemporary club.

Mrs. Jack Q. H. Smith of New York, who was here for ten days visiting her son and daughter-in-law, the John De Koven Bowens, returned home Wednesday. Young Mr. Bowen and his bride are living at 73 East Elm street.

Mrs. Benjamin J. Rosenthal and her daughter, Mrs. S. Louis Reinhardt Jr., have left for Palm Beach.

Just back from nine months of study in Germany, Russia, and Italy, Frederick Schuman of the University of Chicago is going to address the Council of Foreign Relations meeting this noon at the Palmer house on "Dictatorship in Europe."

Mrs. Charles Garfield King will be hostess this afternoon at a cocktail party at the King residence, 1530 State parkway, for her niece, Miss Alice Gade, daughter of the Herman Gades.

Friends of N. U. to Give Dinner.

Many socialites who are friends of Northwestern university will dine tonight at the Fortnightly club at the dinner and meeting the trustees and associates of the university are holding. Lew Sarett, professor at the school of speech, will be the speaker, and Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn will head the reception committee. Assisting them will be Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hardin.

Four days ahead of time, the Skokie Country club is having a Valentine party this evening for its members and guests. Bright red hearts, mailed the beginning of the week, announced the affair.

A number of society's sub-debs will be in Delafield, Wis., this evening for the annual "mid-inter" of the cadets at St. John's military academy.

A number of members of the consular circle will attend the opening performance of the People's Opera company at the Chicago Stadium tonight.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Lord Byron, handsomely impersonated by Raymond Hackett, whose countenance bears some resemblance to the pictures of the greatest woman killer in English literature, now holds the stage of the Punch and Judy theater. He is the central figure in Melanie Koll's play, "The Mad Lover," which had its première last night.

This piece is a copious outpouring of romantic and sometimes witty dialog affecting the manners of the Byronic period, which fails to bring its hero into dramatic life. Mrs. Koll has used a torrent of words with many literary flourishes, but has not given her work a structure. Like many novice playwrights she has written in terms of pen, ink, and paper, but not in terms of the stage.

All the characters talk about Byron at great length; he himself is also garrulous on the subject. But the story that emerges from this wealth of high colored conversation is thin and feeble.

The first act shows him as a husband trying to play the rôle of reformed rake, but shamefully nagged by his frigid wife, who deserts him, apparently, because he drinks a few glasses of claret with his cronies, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Thomas Moore, and Beau Brummel. The second act finds him so annoyed by the spiteful conduct of his cast off mistress, Lady Caroline Lamb, that he quits England forever.

In the last act he has a love episode in Venice and then dies as a Greek patriot at Missolonghi, according to history. In general he is depicted as an unfortunate genius who suffers acutely because of English prudery and the unwelcome attentions of violently amorous women. There is no reference in the text to the dark heart of Byron's mystery—his alleged incestuous relations with his sister.

Mr. Hackett is a happy choice for the title rôle and Thornton Coolidge is effective as Beau Brummel, a character who has more to say in this piece than in the one bearing his name, which Mansfield used to act. The others in the company are merely members of the Punch and Judy flock in ornate costumes.

BY MARY MEADE.

Everybody in Chicago seems to have decided this month to "let them eat cake," cake, and still more cake. Must be the nip in the air or the nice, comfortable price of staples. But whatever 'tis it's flooding us with cookery questions for fair, of which the first to apply for an answer this morning is one from Mrs. P. J. P., who has wonders about her coal range. Says she: "I use a portable thermometer in my coal range. In baking cakes does one have to make allowance for using coal? Some say 50 degrees should be deducted from the baking temperature. Do you advise 350 degrees F. for a white butter cake?"

To the first half of that one the answer is no. It's just as hot in a gas oven at 350 degrees as it is in a coal range oven at that same number of degrees.

As for the right heat for the white cake best bake it at 350 degrees if it is in a loaf, 375 degrees if in layers.

And (stop me if you've heard this one) have you seen our latest child—the big new cake baking bulletin we've just brought forth? Besides recipes for 48 cakes and frostings it has in it sections explaining oven control, the right technique in putting together the several types of cakes, and finally a large chapter of "reasons why cakes misbehave," with description of the symptoms and just what to do next time to avoid each trouble. It's called "Baking the Perfect Cake" and will be sent to you for 23 cents through the mail or may be bought for 20 cents at the Public Service bureau, one South Dearborn street.

And still they come—the cake questions! This is from Mrs. L. E. J., again about ovens. She asks: "How long should an oven be pre-heated for a layer and a loaf cake? Instructions with one make say twenty minutes and I thought it should be ten minutes. My cookies sometimes don't rise and my cookies spread out and grow very brown on the bottoms."

A bit off the cake line is the cruller. And did you know that the old fashioned darlings are back in vogue again, sporting dizzy new shapes and sizes? The answer is the cruller making gadget which has just made its debut on the market. It all began with those long ago, crunchy New England crullers—plump twists of sugared crustiness that turned up whenever the cook made doughnuts. But sometimes those old time cruller hearts weren't quite as done through as we'd have liked them. The modern ones claim a through and through crispness, all due to the little open sided, fluted cylinders around which you wrap the dough, tucking the ends inside. Dropped into hot fat, the spirals proceed to cook quickly and crisply on all sides. They're fished forth with a hook which comes with the forms, slipped off the gadgets, rolled in sugar, and joyously eaten.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

FIRST AND SECOND HAND BIDS [Cont'd.]

YESTERDAY I took up hands of the defensive type, and borderline hands in first and second position. Today I'm going to discuss the aggressive type.

You must learn to think in pictures. Ask yourself, "What might my partner hold that would produce game in combination with my holding?" With a hand of this type:

Sp. K Q 10 x x
Hts. A J x x x
Di. x x
Cl. x

P. HAL SIMS.

An ace — any ace—and the king of hearts in your partner's hand, and you have at least a play for game. Yet he probably would be unable to open the bidding, should you pass.

Therefore, when you hold an aggressive two-suited hand, with strength in the majors, you may shade the primary trick requirements to as low as two primary tricks, plus some secondary values in the long suits.

Should the opponents overcall, you can usually judge from their bidding whether it is wise to mention your second suit. Usually a discouraging pass by your partner makes such a policy foolhardy, when you are vulnerable. Nonvulnerability, however, covers a multiude of sins, and you might show the second suit at the two level, over an adverse overcall by the opponent to your right.

What few people realize, however, is that what passes for a noble experiment in a major suit turns into an American tragedy when your holding consists of two long minor suits. In such case I do not shade the bid unless the distribution is so uneven that I feel I owe it to my partner to say something—to defend by attacking or to attack by setting the stage immediately for an ultimate contract of eleven tricks.

EXAMPLE ONE:

Sp. None — Di. K Q 10 x x
Hts. Q 10 x — Cl. A Q 9 x x

With the above hand I would bid one diamond. The danger of an eventual misfit is remote. The probabilities are that all four hands are unevenly distributed. If my partner cannot fit either of my suits, we should land in a partial score contract in hearts.

EXAMPLE TWO:

Sp. x — Di. K Q 10 x x x
Hts. x — Cl. A Q 9 x x

I'd open this hand also with one diamond. The beauty of this type of holding lies in its rebid values. Of course, a discerning person might notice that the hand couldn't be relied on for more than one or two tricks defensively, but we all have our faults. The best defense is to open the bidding before the opponents have a chance to conduct a little private investigating on their own hook.

Holding one long suit, 'tis a far, far better thing that I pass.

Sp. K Q 9 x x x — Di. A x x x

[a] Perhaps my partner can open the bidding. Stranger things have happened. If so, I can bid and rebid naturally and even let him play three no trump if he bids both my weak suits.

[b] In the uphappy event that the opponents open the bidding, I can throw a spade monkey wrench into the works and may even get doubled at a contract which I can fulfill. If the worst comes to the worst, I am willing to give up as much as 450 points to save a vulnerable game.

Do Not Expect Teen Age Boys to Be Orderly

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: I suppose I am failing as a stepmother," writes one of the followers of this column, "or else I am failing because I am a stepmother—maybe that is why my son is acting so. He is 13 and is not the little gentleman I thought I could make him. He is noisy, forgets his manners, barges around the house, has to be nagged to wash, forgets to hang up his clothes. But he's good natured and kind hearted and a really nice boy underneath."

Those who are stepmothers and those who are not may be interested in the answer sent. It was to this effect:

"My dear Mrs. M.: It is not because you're a stepmother that these things are happening.

"Would it help you in the management of your stepson to know that the description of him is an almost perfect description of any 14 or 15 year old boy? Many things that seem so important to mothers—such as shoe shining, manners, neatness, and picking up after one's self—to a normal, healthy, 13 year old boy seem entirely unnecessary. Boys that have formerly been moderately neat and amenable in many ways will at this age become uninterested in soap and chores. I think if you could realize this and for the next few years manage your boy with a looser rein you would be more successful."

Scouts Will Mobilize Today to Hear Radio Address by President

Chicago's 17,500 Boy Scouts will mobilize in 700 meeting places over the city today at 11 a. m. to hear President Roosevelt, who has been a Scout for more than a decade, deliver a radio address especially to them. The President is expected to offer a challenge to Scouts to participate in a national "good turn," but the nature of this will not be known until the President broadcasts.

A special mobilization will be made in the city council chambers. Each unit is to select one outstanding and correctly uniformed scout, cub, or sea scout to represent it at this mobilization. They will meet at 10:30 and will be addressed by Mayor Kelly and Perry A. Lint, Scout executive for Chicago, before the President is heard.

Club Leaders of 5 States to Attend Session

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Widespread evidence of the enthusiasm with which the federated women's clubs of five states are greeting announcements of the first annual Conference on Major Problems, was apparent yesterday.

The conference is to be held Thursday and Friday of next week at the Palmer House, under auspices of THE TRIBUNE. Mrs. Eugene Henely of Grinnell, Ia., president of the state Federation of Women's Clubs, telegraphed that she has canceled an important engagement to accept the invitation to attend, and inquiries from club leaders both in and out of the city manifested the appeal the program has had.

Mrs. Henely is the fifth and last official representative from the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois who has expressed her intention of attending. Heads of all these federations will be on hand except Mrs. Robert Hicks of Cambridge City, Ind., who is ill in an Indianapolis hospital. Mrs. Hicks' place will be taken by Mrs. Edwin N. Canine, general federation director for the state.

Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, noted Chicago novelist who was awarded the 1932 Pulitzer prize for her book, "Years of Grace," will greet the assemblage from the speakers' platform on Thursday afternoon.

A detailed account of the entire conference program will be printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

WEDDINGS

At 11 o'clock this morning Miss Mary Louise Quin, daughter of the Frank Quins, will exchange wedding vows with Alfred Charles Stepan Jr., son of Mrs. Alfred Charles Stepan of 3000 Sheridan road, in St. Catherine of Siena church in Oak Park. A wedding breakfast will follow at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mr. Stepan and his bride will go to Florida for a month and then make their home on the north side.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Agatha E. Lewis, soloist of the North Shore Baptist church, to Winfred Stracke, baritone soloist of the Fourth Presbyterian church, which took place Wednesday night in the John Timothy Stone chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church. The Rev. Harrison Ray Anderson officiated. The couple were attended by Miss Maurine Parzybok and Barrett Spack, soloist and organist of the Fourth Presbyterian.

Spring Cleaning for Bodies Must Begin Right Now

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

From now on, with each warm weather spell, you're going to get reacquainted with the spring-blues theme. Oh, yes, it comes on before the crocuses lift their pretty heads.

Some of you, who take good care of your bodies, can't understand what this thing called spring tiredness is. But a great many meet spring with a disheartened face and a listless body, to say nothing of groaning feet.

Don't wait until April before you do something about yourselves. Let this springtime ahead be one joyous season. If there is anything radically wrong with you, go see a doctor, and get yourself pepped up before the soft zephyrs begin to blow.

The best of us do fall down on our good diet intentions during the cold weather. We think there is a spring coming when we can repair the damage. But now is the better time to start. If you're feeling heavy and slothful, and are not at all the girl you used to be, why not go on a liquid diet for a couple of days just to see how much better you are, freed of the waste accumulation this treatment seeks to eradicate. The spring lassitude is often nothing more than an accumulation of waste matter, and the liquid diet is an excellent way of beginning a reform. Then begin making your luncheon salads, great big bowls of them, as much as you can eat of them. We don't want you to get feverish about the other meals, but do give your system a salad treat of the vegetables and fruits that are most internally cleansing.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. James Frances Ellis of 7410 Barton avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, to Bernard Thomas O'Malley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence O'Malley of River Falls, Wis. Miss Ellis attended Mundelein college and was graduated from the Chicago School of Expression.

New Blossoms Will Decorate Stylish Heads

Garlands May Be Worn at Any Angle.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's no let up on new trifles for the hair . . . the last arrival are the garlands, pastoral effects with tantalizing whiffs of spring or Maytime, despite the fact that they are the kind of blossoms that wilt not, neither do they perfume the air.

Nevertheless they are exceptionally decorative, especially on the right heads. You can go native as far as your coiffure is concerned with wreaths of tropical buds and blossoms done in shiny stuff . . . look for the black and yellow affair or the dusky red and golden apricot get-together or any of the effective high colored combinations that could only grow in hot sunshine.

Be a heart breaker and wear the wreath of very small rosebuds and forget-me-not that are so real you'll start to sniff their perfume before you know it, or you might be Maud Mullerish with a wreath of dark eyed big white daisies slanted across your evening fluff of curls.

A half circle of pale pink apple blossoms look as though they had been freshly filched from some full blown apple tree—so hauntingly lovely you'll find them irresistible.

Then there is a hoop of divinely blue cornflowers that will do grand things for a dresden type blonde in a muslin dress sashed in blue to match the blue blossoms. Gardenias and roses also banded for use over the curls of an evening coiffure are as ravishingly pictorial as any metal or glittering halo of rhinestones. Wear them any way you wish . . . slanted rakishly, northeast by southwest, regally straight across from ear to ear, or as a band across the back of your head to hold your neck curls in place. They are effective, new and decidedly picturesque, with price tags that will fit obligingly in every allowance.

Lame Gives the Formal Gown a Royal Splendor

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A constantly widening gulf separates formal and informal evening fashions in Paris. Once these two pooled their best points in the "don't dress" movement, but today they are all for a complete separation. The woman who goes out on a grand party is dressed in royal splendor with low cut neck, train, and everything. Formal fashions are more and more in evidence.

Lamé is the sign and seal of this mode, and lamé dresses are the height of formal evening chic. Metal moire is about the most fashionable of these materials, and it comes in gorgeous colors like peach and silver, sapphire and silver, and purple and silver. Maggy Rouff's stunning formal evening dress shown here is made of purple and silver lamé, and the evening cape-scarf that goes with it is of royal purple velvet lined with silver and purple moire.

The wrap is a short draped cape in front and in back it falls to the right side in a floor length point, while on the left it comes over the arm and falls longer yet in a superscarf end, which can be picked up and draped as you will.

The dress has a very low cut bodice, closely fitted, and flaring peplums on the sides below the waistline, while the skirt is fitted to the knees and flared below.

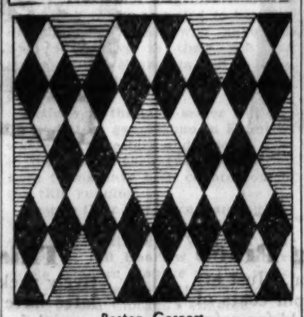
Quilt Block Has Wide Popularity Through Nation



Boston Corners

BY NANCY CABOT.

Some things are made in every state in the Union but always retain their original descriptions. Not so with quilt designs. "Boston Corners" may be known as such in the New England states, but in the middle west it loses its eastern identity and becomes "Pavement Blocks." In western quilt lore it is known as "Diamond Cut Diamond." American manufacturers have made it possible to fashion this block in an unusual color combination of soft red and fuchsia. It is an outstanding example of an old design plus modern coloring.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

LEVINSKY WINS OVER MASSERA IN 10 ROUNDS

WEST SECTION GOLDEN GLOVES OPENS MONDAY

Campaign Begins at 132d Armory.

What's Doing

GOLDEN GLOVES bouts scheduled for tonight are as follows:
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald finals.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Glove boxers, the largest group ever to compete in the seven years of THE TRIBUNE'S amateur tournaments, are ready to march to the firing line. The west section boys will start the two weeks' battle on Monday night, a battle which leads to the semi-finals of the novice championships at the Stadium on Feb. 26 and the tournament of champions at the same site for those competing in the open devision.

Two rings will be used Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the 132 regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The first bouts each night will start promptly at 7 o'clock. Admission is 60 cents, plus tax, and since there are no reserved seats those who arrive first will sit in the first rows. The doors will open each night at 6:15 o'clock.

Second Exam Monday.

Although nearly all of the boxers have already been examined by the Golden Gloves officials, they must report again Monday night at the armory for a second examination. All boys who were assigned to the west section, either in the open or the novice division, must attend this examination. Those in the open class who do not box on Monday night then may remain for the show or go home, but they must report between 4 and 6 p. m. From the lists of those reporting, Harry Berz, director of weights and drawings, will make up the schedule of tournament bouts.

In addition to the physical examination each boxer will be weighed. One pound allowance will be permitted in each of the weight classes, which is to say that a boy registered in the 135 pound class [lightweight] may weigh 136 pounds and still compete in that division. This applies for the other weights.

However, if a boy who entered in one weight finds he is over that weight limit he may fight in the next higher weight class.

Eight Novices to Qualify.

At the conclusion of the west section tournament eight novices will qualify for the semi-finals at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 26. The field will be composed of 32 boys, eight from each section. The finals of the novice tournament will be held at the Stadium on Feb. 27. Both nights of novice bouts will be in conjunction with the tournament of champions, but will be independent of the open division boxers.

Sixteen boys, two in each weight, will qualify from the west section in the open division for the tournament of champions. All qualifiers will be presented with gold medals. In all 96 gold medals will be awarded in the four Chicago sectional tournaments.

After all candidates are examined and weighed Monday evening, the drawings will be made by lot in each weight. The first of the pairings will be made at 6 o'clock, and each boy must draw his own number in this lottery which determines the matches.

Absence Means Withdrawal.

Absence at the time of the drawings, even if otherwise qualified, means that the boxer must withdraw from the tournament.

The 132d Regiment armory has the largest seating capacity of any of the four sectionals. More than size, the armory also affords unexcelled view of the two rings, not only from the bleachers but from the three balconies in which there are permanent seats.

Equally as important as the referees who will have charge of the boxers, are the judges who will determine the results of the three round bouts. THE TRIBUNE has been fortunate in having a group of the most experienced judges in Chicago to officiate at Golden Gloves tournaments. Many of these men, all of whom hold licenses from the Illinois athletic commission and the Central association of the A. A. U., have been associated with Golden Gloves since the inception of the tournament in 1928, while the annual expansion of the sectionals has made increased demands for time upon these men, they have responded loyally. All serve without pay and for the pleasure they receive from helping in the conduct of amateur boxing.

To Judge All Bouts.

The list of Golden Gloves judges follows: Livingston E. Osborne, Edward A. Hintz, Edward Klein, William Battye, R. A. Goudie, F. L. Jackson, James McManus, Rube Metz, John Bray, William Hoier, E. L. Cook, William O'Connell, Carl Witt, Dr. E. Allen Frankel, Harry Hall, Dr. G. William Christoph.

These men ont only will judge the sectional tournaments, but they will officiate at the tournament of champions and the 1934 international Golden Gloves tournament.

Purdue Meets Iowa; Chicago Plays at N. U.

After a two weeks' lull occasioned by midyear examinations, the Big Ten basketball offensive will be resumed tonight with all teams in action. Eight conference quintets will clash with one another, while the remainder, Michigan and Ohio State, meet nonconference opponents.

Interest in the resumption of play will center at Lafayette, where the undefeated Purdue five will defend its hold on first place against Iowa.

Beaten in Last 2 Games.

In spite of their long inactivity, the Boilermakers are expected to beat the invading Hawkeyes, who have not been impressive in their last two starts against Minnesota and Indiana, in both of which engagements they were defeated.

Activity in the local sector will center at Patten gymnasium in Evanston where Northwestern and Chicago meet in the first of their two game series. Both teams have been counted out of the title running.

Despite their last place standing, the Maroons entertain strong hopes of upsetting the sixth place Wildcats. The return of Bill Haarlow to the active ranks after an absence of two weeks as a result of a broken toe has greatly strengthened Chicago's chances.

Indiana's vastly improved quintet will endeavor to boost its third place standing at the expense of Illinois at Urbana. Both teams have the same record of three victories and two defeats.

Badgers at Minnesota.

The rapidly soaring Minnesota quintet which rose from eighth place to second during the last 10 days with four straight victories, will face a difficult test against the visiting Wisconsin sharpshooters. The Badgers figure to be a stronger team than their record of three defeats out of four would indicate.

Michigan will endeavor to even its two game series against Michigan State in the return game at Lansing tonight. Ohio State will meet Marquette at Milwaukee tonight preparatory to its clash with Wisconsin at Madison Monday night.

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—J. N. Bozeman Jr. of Vallejo, Cal., kept his perfect record intact tonight as he defeated Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, 50 to 44, to go into a tie with Allen Hall of Chicago in the world's three cushion billiard tournament.

In winning his third straight game Bozeman, who finished in runner-up position last year, reeled off 11 billiards in the last seven innings to run out the game in 54 innings, his longest of the tourney. The defeat was the third successive setback for Thurnblad, who won the title in 1931.

Both Try Safeties.

In the long drawn out battle both players frequently fell back on safeties in an effort to gain an advantage. At this style of play Bozeman excelled, however, and he frequently turned seemingly impossible shots into points, especially near the end of the match, when he gradually pulled away.

Thurnblad showed to advantage in the early part of the game after scoring two caroms in the first inning. Bozeman came back to tie the count at 11 all in the ninth. Again the Chicagoan pulled away and stepped along in front until the Californian tied the count at 25 all in the thirtieth inning.

With clusters of twos and threes and his high run of 4, Thurnblad shot to the front again and held the upperhand, 36 to 29. Bozeman made a high run of 6 points before he left the table in the thirty-ninth inning. He added another in the fortieth to tie the score, but Thurnblad stayed in the battle until the west coast player broke loose with his final rally. Bozeman opened the scoring spree with a cluster of four difficult shots and then lost no time picking up the remaining points.

Denton Beats De Oro.

Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, kept within striking distance of the leaders by defeating 71 year old Alfredo De Oro of New York City for his second victory in three matches. The score was 50 to 31 and Denton ran out in 55 innings.

In an afternoon match Welker Cochran of San Francisco beat Augie Kieckhefer, the Chicago southpaw, who won the crown two years ago. The score was 50 to 35, with Cochran running out in 47 innings.

Kinrey Matsuyama kept pace with Cochran by defeating Len Kenney, Chicago. The Japanese star was not pushed to win, 50 to 32, in 58 innings.

Like Cochran, Matsuyama did most of his scoring in bunches. His best effort was in the seven innings from the 31st to the 36th frames, inclusive, when he counted 17 times to take a commanding lead. Each player had high runs of four.

Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, won his second game in three starts with a 50 to 31 victory over De Oro in 55 innings.

Committee on Football Rules Opens Session

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The high tribunal of football, the intercollegiate rules committee, began its annual review of the college football code tonight.

A number of the committeemen, headed by Chairman Walter Okeson of Lehigh, arrived yesterday and the others reached Atlanta today.

Tonight's session was devoted largely to selecting the most worthwhile proposals from among the more than two score suggestions offered to the committee. The actual consideration of probable rule changes will be delayed until late tomorrow or Sunday.

Expect Little Change.

Members of the rules committee, as well as the advisory representatives from the coaches and officials, were reluctant to express any opinions as to what, if any, changes would be made.

The report of a special coaches' committee in New York last week that the game was very good as it stood apparently has the approval of most of the committeemen. It appears that any alterations that may be made will be of a minor nature.

Although William S. Langford, secretary of the rules committee, said a proposal to increase the side line zone from 10 to 15 yards might be adopted, three others expressed themselves as opposed to it.

Oppose Side Line Rule.

They were Dana X. Bible of Nebraska, president of the National Football Coaches' association, Okeson, and A. W. Palmer, a member of the officials' advisory group.

"The ball has to be brought out very often as it is," Bible said, "and if they should change the rule to 15 yards then the officials would be kept busy just moving the ball out. They might just as well pass a ruling that the ball should always be put in play in the center of the field."

Jay Berwanger of the Maroons won the 60 yard dash, 70 yard high hurdles, 70 yard low hurdles and the broad jump. Capt. George Nelson starred for Armour, placing second in four events to account for 12 of his team's points.

LITTLE CROWD MAKES BIG NOISE BOOING DECISION

Only 4,500 See Fight in Garden.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Reports of a vast improvement in the fighting ability of King Levinsky, like those premature announcements of Mark Twain's death, are slightly exaggerated.

Tonight in Madison Square Garden before 4,500 persons who paid $8,800 to see the spectacle, the Chicago heavyweight won a decision in ten rounds over Charley Massera, Pittsburgh's newcomer among the heavyweights.

But, the few people who saw the scrap disagreed so violently with the award to Levinsky that their noisy disapproval sounded like the strenuous objections of a packed house.

Gunboat Smith Decides.

On the vote of Referee Gunboat Smith, Levinsky won after the judges disagreed. Jim Buckley, who should know fights and fighters since he managed Smith in the latter's palmiest days, voted for Levinsky. Joe Agnello, who was Joe Coster the fighter in the good old days, voted for Massera. This left the decision up to Smith and he cast his ballot for Levinsky.

The crowd did everything but storm the ring when it was announced. Some few of the more excited did arise and advance on the ring muttering imprecations, or whatever it is excited fight fans mutter when they want to protest noisily. So great was the din that Announcer Joe Humphreys could not make himself heard introducing the principals in the six round bout that closed the program.

King Still Clownish.

Levinsky won, in the opinion of many observers, six rounds to four. But he fell far short of exhibiting potential championship timber in a bout that was announced as expressly a build-up for Levinsky as a possible opponent for Primo Carnera next summer. Indeed, the Kingfish from Chicago is still a big clown. His most ambitious punch was a roundhouse right for the jaw which seldom landed. His surest shot was a right to the ribs at close quarters.

Levinsky showed little boxing ability, advance reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

On a round basis Levinsky won the first, second, fifth, seventh, eighth, and ninth sessions because Massera insisted on fighting at close quarters against a foe who had a weight advantage of 19 pounds, with proportionate advantages in beef and brawn. Massera won the third and fourth and the sixth and tenth.

King Almost Floors Referee.

At the finish of a sloppy contest Massera was the fresher of the two. Levinsky lost the fourth and sixth rounds because of erratic hitting for the body. He almost floored Referee Smith with a roundhouse right in the fourth, and in the eighth Levinsky was cautioned for hitting on the break, although he was not penalized.

All the clean boxing and clean hitting was done by Massera, but there was not enough of this to counteract Levinsky's solid, wicked body flurries in the action at close quarters which Massera encouraged rather than permitted. And it was his ability as an infighter that won for Levinsky.

Levinsky weighed 202½ pounds and Massera, 183½ pounds.

SIGILIO KNOCKS OUT BOOKER IN SECOND ROUND

Frank Sigilio, Chicago lightweight, knocked out Harry Booker in the second round of the scheduled six round windup bout at the Cicero Stadium last night. MILLER EXPLAINS NEW POSITION ON COACHING STAFF

Satisfied with Hamilton in Charge of Navy.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, head coach of the Naval academy football team for the last three years, said today that any changes in the Navy coaching staff for the coming season were "satisfactory" to him.

"We will work with one object—to build a victorious team," he said.

News leaked out recently that Miller was to be made line coach and that Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton would be head coach. No official announcement was made, but the report had it that the Navy was adopting a graduate coaching system.

Miller Confirms Report.

Questioned about the changes, Miller said today that "it is now generally understood that Lieut. Hamilton will be coach of the team when spring practice begins on March 14. My contract, which was renewed in December, remains in effect as heretofore. Any changes in the setup contemplated were decided after full discussion with me and to my entire satisfaction.

"After my contract was renewed the athletic authorities, wishing to take advantage of the experience of the members of the 1926 Navy championship football team, now available for shore duty, thought it best to make a rearrangement of the coaching staff.

"The entire matter was laid before me and, to cooperate with the plan for the coming season, I thought it best to step aside and let Hamilton take over, under Commander John H. Brown, director of football.

Says He's Satisfied.

"There was no unpleasantness and everything was satisfactory and agreeable to me. I feel that I have many good friends in the service and I intend to keep those friends."

Under the new coaching plan Miller is to work with the line. He will be assisted by Lieuts. (J. G.) John H. Cross and Harry J. Hardwick. Cross was a guard and Hardwick an end on the 1926 team. Ensign Magruder H. Tuttle, captain and center of the 1931 team, probably will assist with the centers. Lieut. (J. G.) Henry H. Caldwell and Ensign Louis J. Kirn are expected to report for duty with the back field.

Miller insisted today that the changes had not been forced on him by "the service, the alumni, or the sport world. They were only made in the interest of Navy football."

Miller said he was not seeking any outside coaching position, but would consider such offers, as would any coach "in the United States."

HAWKS "FARM" JACK LESWICK TO KANSAS CITY

Jack Leswick, young Blackhawk wing, was loaned yesterday to the Kansas City club of the American Hocky association for at least two weeks, and possibly three. Leswick was sent to Kansas City not only to bolster the Kansas City team, which is now battling for a place in the association playoffs, but also to get himself back into condition. He has been ailing for the last month and found the pace in the National Hocky league too much.

Manager Tommy Gorman also announced a change in front lines for tomorrow night's game against the Canadiens. Tommy Cook will play at center with Leroy Goldsworthy and Louis Trudel, while Johnny Sheppard will join Johnny Gottselig and Lolo Couture on another line.

MICHIGAN FIVE LOSES RUDNESS AND JABLONSKI

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—John Jablonski, center, and George Rudness, guard, both sophomore regulars of the Michigan basketball team, are ineligible to compete next semester because of scholastic difficulties, Coach Franklin Cappon said tonight.

Both will be absent from the squad going to East Lansing to meet Michigan State tomorrow and two other men, Fred Allen and A. L. Plummer, both veteran forwards, probably will be unable to play because of injuries.

Cappon said tonight he would probably start Art Evans, who has just become a sophomore, and Oliver at forward, Joslyn at center and Capt. Petoskey and Tomagno at guard. Others who will make the trip are Tessmer, Regeczi, Fishman and Allen and Plummer.

PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM PLANNED FOR CUBS' PARK

A public address system and a Neon electric sign will be installed at Wrigley field, it was announced yesterday by John O. Seys, vice president of the Cubs. The sign, 35 feet long and 20 feet high, will be erected above the park office at Clark and Addison streets.

Reading "Wrigley Field, home of the Cubs," the sign, according to Seys, will be seen two miles away. The public address system will be installed to give fans the batteries and lineups. Work on the sign and address system is expected to be completed by opening day.

Northwestern Wrestlers to Meet Wisconsin Today

Northwestern's wrestling team will meet Wisconsin at Patten gymnasium this afternoon. The Wildcats' main hopes for victory rest in the light heavyweight and heavyweight divisions where Stan Mondala and Chilly Sutton, two football players, are the respective entrants. Mondala was a former Cook county prep champion when he attended Crane High school. Wisconsin has one of its strongest teams in recent years. The Badgers will be represented by outstanding performers in all weights. Among them are George Broming, 118 pounds; Dave Schuele, 126 pounds, and James Nellen, heavyweight.

COCKER SPANIELS LEAD ENTRIES IN NEW YORK SHOW

2,461 Dogs to Compete in Westminster Event.

BY BOB BECKER.

Cocker spaniel fanciers will be pardoned if they do a little boasting this week end about the popularity of their favorite breed because the cockers have the largest entry in this year's famous Westminster dog show in New York City. The cocker total is 161 two days before the show is scheduled to open.

The wirehaired fox terriers get second largest entry honors in the Westminster show with a total of 146, while the Scottish terriers rank third with 138 entries. Although third in entries, the Scotty has been the most widely advertised breed in 1933

Entries Total 2,461.

With its total of 2,461 dogz entered in the three day show which starts Monday, this 58th annual event of what now is the oldest show organization in the United States, runs 221 entries ahead of last year. This increase is attributed partly to the improvement of general business conditions, which encourages dog fanciers to spend more money on their hobby. The 1934 total has been exceeded only by the record of 2,673 in 1930 and 2,518 in 1931, making this the third largest entry since the Westminster Kennel club was founded.

The large entry list at the New York show augurs well for Chicago's big show, which usually is held here in March. Although the local cocker spaniel club is an extremely live organization and the cocker a very popular dog at present, it's a question whether this breed will bench the highest number of entries at the local show.

Plan Chicago Show.

At a meeting of the Cocker Spaniel Club of the Middle West which we attended recently in Chicago the question of adding several features to the local kennel club show was discussed. There is a feeling that the public would show greater interest in local dog shows if an effort were made to take the visitors more intimately into the program of the show.

For example, a loud speaker system announcing winning dogs and their owners following the judging of the different breeds would add considerable to the enjoyment of the public. Under the current system of judging and handing out decisions, the judges shuffle out the ribbons so rapidly and everybody then scampers out of the ring so fast that the average spectator doesn't know what has happened even though he has stood at the ringside and watched the judging.

Winning Ping-Pong

BY COLEMAN CLARK.
[National Champion 1932.]

[This is the twelfth of a series of articles on how to play ping-pong.]

FINGER SPIN SERVES.

FINGER spin serves are the latest thing in ping-pong. The idea is to shoot the ball with the fingers on to the racket at such angles and with such force that you get the most outlandish spins imaginable. When these crazy spins meet the receiver's racket, more often than not he will return it into the net, off the table, and frequently miss it entirely.

The commonest way of shooting the ball on to the racket is the marble ball method wherein the ball is ejected from the finger like a marble with the thumb supplying the snap. The illustration makes the method clear. You might find it easier to hold the ball between the thumb and middle finger, and use the latter for the kick.

It will take a few sessions before you can negotiate these successfully. Keep at it, as there is no shot in the game with which you can so completely embarrass an unsuspecting adversary.

Tomorrow—eyes and footwork.

Baby Ruths Meet Sarnia Six Tomorrow

The Chicago Amateur Hocky association will offer the first international match of the second half of the season tomorrow afternoon at the Coliseum, when the Baby Ruth Cardinals, city champions in the first half of league play, meet the Sarnia sextet from Canada. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

The Baby Ruth team has not been defeated by a foreign invader at the Coliseum rink.

The Sarnia sextet last season reached the divisional finals in the Ontario Hocky association playoffs.

In Al Murphy, Frank Prudence and Hal Jenkens, the visitors have one of the best front lines that will show in Chicago this year. Not far behind this trio are Rick Brown, Lou Rutter and Frank Manning.

The most powerful amateur hocky line in the middlewest, Deacon, Samec and Saxburg, will carry the brunt of upholding the local club's record.

SOX LACROSSE TEAM TO MEET PITT TONIGHT

The Chicago Sox, south side entry in the National Lacrosse league, will play the first of two games at Pittsburgh tonight for the first half championship. Since Pittsburgh now leads with 16 points against 14 for Chicago, the Sox must win both contests to gain the title.

After first half honors have been determined, the reorganized league will launch its second half schedule with Detroit replacing Buffalo in the running. The first local game will match the Sox with the north side Chicago entry, the Blues, at Dexter park pavilion Feb. 18.

LAKE VIEW AND SENN BATTLE TO 38-38 DEADLOCK

Kroger's Free Throw Ties Score in Final Seconds.

Senn and Lake View heavyweight basketball teams battled to a 38 to 38 overtime tie yesterday in one of the hardest fought games of the Chicago Public High School league season at Senn's gymnasium.

Senn held an 18 to 16 advantage at the end of the first half, but Lake View rallied and the score was tied 37 to 37, at the end of the regulation game. In the final minutes of the overtime session Kroger, Lake View forward, fouled Hooper, Senn forward.

Hooper sank his free throw and Senn led, 38 to 37. Then in the last few seconds Coyle, Senn guard, fouled Kroger and he sank the shot to tie the score just as the final whistle blew. Kroger scored four baskets and two free throws for Lake View.

Englewood, led by Wheatly and Pecrapis, defeated Tilden, 27 to 22, at Englewood's gymnasium. Wheatly scored three field goals and two free throws, while Pecrapis scored 7 points. Scores:

SUBURBAN LEAGUES

Hinsdale defeated the York heavyweight basketball team, 34 to 19, at Hinsdale last night to remain on the heels of the leading Glenbard quintet in the West Suburban conference. Glenbard, which now leads only by one game, was idle last night.

Downers Grove and Riverside were victors in other conference heavyweight games. Downers Grove, with Miller and Renisger leading the attack, defeated West Chicago, 29 to 20, at West Chicago, while Riverside won from Maine, 33 to 20, at Des Plaines.

The lightweight winners were York, West Chicago, and Maine. York handed Hinsdale a 21 to 17 setback; West Chicago triumphed over Downers Grove, 23 to 15, and Maine defeated Riverside, 35 to 17.

Proviso and Deerfield divided two games in the Suburban league at Highland Park. Emig and Fiesenthal helped the Proviso heavyweights beat Deerfield, 35 to 18. The Deerfield lightweights triumphed, 25 to 22. The lineups:

FOX, GOLDBERG WIN ARTISTS' AND WRITERS' MEET

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The artists won the golfing part of the annual Artists' and Writers' association tournament today, but James Montgomery Flagg, an artist, was the real loser.

Artists in both flights, for the first time in history, won the final events, Fontaine Fox defeating Dick Hyland, 4 and 3, in the top flight, and Rube Goldberg winning, 3 and 2, over E. F. Wittmack in the second flight.

Flagg, however, came out a bad last in the matter of prizes. The prizes this year were portraits of the winners painted by Flagg.

So the artist came to Palm Beach all prepared. He had already done pictures of Rex Beach and Grantland Rice, who almost annually have been the finalists. Now he has more to do, for Rice and Beach don't look a bit like Fox and Goldberg.

PAN-AMERICAN AIR MEET OPENS AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Flyers from all parts of this country will race tomorrow in the opening events of the Pan-American air races at the new four million dollar Shushan airport, dedicated today amid ceremonies marred by rainfall.

Acrobatic stunts, parachute jumps, and tactical maneuvers are features on the program scheduled for tomorrow. Among the participants will be Michell Detroyat, European aerobatic flier; Milo Burcham, world champion upside down pilot; Dick Granere, Roy Hunt, and Art Davis. A night show also is scheduled.

Maj. Hillard F. Harmon flew in today at the head of eighteen new Boeing pursuit planes of the 20th army pursuit group from Barksdale field, Shreveport. These were followed by Maj. James H. Doolittle and Capt. Lewis Yancey, whose flight from New York to Rome won renown, arrived after noon in an autogiro. Three qualifying speed events will be held tomorrow over five laps of the five mile course around pylons over Lake Pontchartrain and the shore surrounding the airport. Qualifying speed for the classes range from 140 to 180 miles an hour.

Sculptor Chisels Statue of Ruth, But It's No Bust

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth now rivals the famous athletes of ancient Greece and Rome in having inspired a sculptor's chisel. A statue of the Yankee outfielder in action, eight feet high, by Reuben Nakian, is to be placed on exhibition next week at the Downtown gallery.

Although today the artists' interest is largely centered in the American scene, one very important phase of American contemporary life—athletics—does not receive the attention of the American artists that it relatively deserves.

"Looking back into the past," gallery officials said today, "we find that some of the finest surviving works were inspired by the popular sports of the day. The 'Discobolus,' the 'Delphic Charioteer,' and other classical antiquities show that the artists of those days were inspired by their athletes.

"Mr. Nakian has embodied in his heroic figure of Babe Ruth, not only the physical contours of the man, but also the very essence of the game."

Notre Dame's Track Team in Opening Meet

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's track team, with its eye on the central intercollegiate conference title, will get its first test of the season tomorrow against the strong Marquette team headed by Capt. Ralph Metcalfe.

Metcalfe is perhaps the greatest sprinter of all time. He set a world's record in the 60 yard dash last year in the C. I. C. indoor meet in the Notre Dame gymnasium, covering the distance in 6.1 seconds. He holds several other marks for varying distances.

Since Marquette is annually one of the strongest teams in the increasing popular Central conference meet Notre Dame will have an opportunity tomorrow to see how much opposition it will receive from this source when it tries March 9 and 10 to recapture the indoor title won by Michigan Normal last year.

May Score Slam in Sprint.

Metcalfe will have his own way in the 60 yard dash, with Dave Booth and Paul Phillips likely to give the Hilltoppers a slam in this event.

Chet Trost, Dick Bellinghausen, Ken Schoenecker, and Fran Sommers are Marquette's entries in the hurdles. Trost is the standout. His chief competition will come from Howard Link, Pittsburgh, Pa., junior, who never hurdled before but who has been showing great form in practice, and Frank [Mike] Layden, sophomore brother of Elmer Layden, new Notre Dame football coach and athletic director.

Good Middle Distance Men.

Both teams are fortified with good middle distance men, which will make the 440 yard and 880 yard runs and the mile relay interesting events. Billy Geisman of Marquette is back with three newcomers in the mile. Capt. Joe Young of the Irish, 124 pounds of determination and the lightest Notre Dame monogram man in history, will probably face the Marquette aces.

Notre Dame is favored to win the shotput, with Joe Sullivan, sophomore, leading the way. Sullivan was Catholic interscholastic champion of the country two years ago at St. John's of Brooklyn.

Vince Murphy of Notre Dame is favored to win the high jump.

SMITH PERFECTS NEW HOLD FOR MAT CONTEST

Jack Smith revealed yesterday that he has perfected a new wrestling hold which he has christened the Yale lock. He will display it next Friday night when he wrestles Gus Sonnenberg at the Arcadia Gardens.

Smith and Sonnenberg will wrestle two out of three falls, with an hour and a half time limit. The match was lengthened at the insistence of Smith.

Buckets Goldenberg, Green Bay Packer full back, will meet Ole Oleson of Milwaukee in the semi-windup.

National Tennis Officials Convene in Annual Meeting

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP)—With the feeling prevalent that the officials again will go on record as favoring open tournaments in tennis, and with such controversial matters as the Davis cup competition and national rankings in the spotlight, members of the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association went into private conference tonight.

More than 40 delegates from coast to coast arrived today to participate in the national conclave. They will conduct an open business meeting tomorrow and after a banquet will witness a doubles match between Walter Merrill Hall and R. Norris Williams and two Pittsburgh stars, Doctors David and John O'Laughlin, brothers.

Hall is slated to become the new president of the association. Holcombe Ward is presiding at the meetings here in absence of Harry S. Knox, the president.

The mid-western group is expected to start a little fire over the ranking of George Lott, who was placed tenth, although his supporters claim he should have been bracketed no lower than fifth.

The open tennis tournament is not expected to be a live issue, because the association favored it two years ago, but was voted down by the international federation. Some delegates predict it will repeat the suggestion that the play between the professionals and amateurs be sanctioned—with the association supervising and sharing in the profits.

Methods of selecting and training the Davis cup team are expected to be gone over with an idea of strengthening the team. Some bitter criticism was offered of the manner the Americans were trained last year both before and after they lost to the English team.

None of the decisions reached at tonight's conference will be made public until tomorrow's session, officials said.

DE PAUL MEETS WESTERN STATE FIVE TONIGHT

Invaders Peril Demons' Winning Streak.

De Paul university's winning streak will be threatened tonight when Western State of Kalamazoo, Mich., appears at De Paul gym. The tenth straight victory of the Blue Demons will be at stake.

Western States comes with a highly impressive record which includes triumphs over Illinois and Michigan.

Weston Floor Star.

De Paul possesses two scoring stars in Pete Barskis and Jim Gorsky, who will be paired at the forwards. Barskis, who operates from a height of six feet 4 inches, has counted 88 points to lead the team in scoring. Gorsky, who led the squad last season, has tallied 54.

The De Paul offense revolves about Barskis on a pivot play, but Capt. Ed Weston, a six foot four inch center, does most of the maneuvering. He is one of the most efficient floor men on the squad.

Coach Jim Kelly will rely on Francis Linskey and Ray Adams, guards, to break up the Kalamazoo attack. Linsky is also an accurate shot from long range and has scored 57 points.

Score 304 Points.

De Paul's victims to date have included North Central, Minnesota, Nebraska, Armour Tech, Valparaiso, Missouri State, St. Louis, and Arizona. The Demons have scored 304 points while limiting the opposition to 217.

Probable lineups:

DE PAUL.		WESTERN STATE.
Barskis	F	G. Miller
Gorsky	F	Binkley
Weston	C	Perigo
Adams	G	J. Miller
Linskey	G	Leiphan

LOYOLA MEETS ST. LOUIS

Loyola and St. Louis universities will renew basketball relations after a lapse of four years when the Ramblers play at St. Louis tonight. It will be the first of three road games Loyola will play in the next four days.

The two schools met eight times between 1924 and 1929. Loyola won the last six games played after losing in 1924 and 1925.

Hal Motz, center and leading scorer, who was out last week with an infection that threatened to keep him off the team for a month or more, will start against St. Louis. Eddie Angsten, diminutive sophomore guard, has displaced Bearnard Ash in the starting lineup. Capt. James Hogan, Joseph Schuessler, and Joseph Fritsch will be the other Loyola starters.

26 LEGISLATORS SILENT ON MOVE TO REOPEN FAIR

Fail to Answer Query on Their Stand.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Twenty-six members of the Cook county legislative delegation—11 of its nineteen senators and 15 of its 57 representatives—have remained silent on the question of where they stand on the proposal for legislation to permit the reopening of A Century of Progress this year.

Telegrams of inquiry were sent to all members of both chambers of the legislature last Monday night. Up to last night they had had four days in which to reply. Some of the legislators are outside of the state. Others are said to be ill. But, so far as is known, the large majority of the silent ones received the messages directed to them.

With one exception, that of Charles J. Jenkins [Rep., 3d], a Negro member of the house who raised the color issue, the eight senators and the 42 representatives who replied were highly favorable to the plan to reopen the Fair. Surprise was expressed at the lack of interest manifested by those who ignored the queries sent to them.

PLAN FOR 125TH ANNIVERSARY OF LINCOLN'S BIRTH

Many Civic Groups to Take Part.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Chicago is making the most extensive plans since the Lincoln centennial for the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the great emancipator's birth next Monday.

Civic organizations, schools, museums, business concerns, dramatic groups, churches, and others will participate in the celebration. Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen announced yesterday that carrier, financial and contract stations of the postoffice will close at 1 p. m. Monday in celebration of Lincoln's birthday. All day service however will be maintained by the general delivery, special delivery, and retail stamp departments.

Woman's Club Program.

One of the larger gatherings among the civic organizations will be the program to be given at 11 a. m. Monday by the Lincoln good will committee of the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, president of the club, will introduce Lewis Bernays, British consul general, Dr. Louis L. Mann, the Rev. Father William J. Plunkett, Mrs. Wendell Green, and William J. Bogan, superintendent of the Chicago public schools.

The successful contestant in the Lincoln Good Will essay contest in the senior high schools, sponsored by the club, will be heard. Dr. Albert W. Palmer will make the principal address. A chorus from the Carl Schurz High school, directed by LeRoy Wetzel, will sing.

CHEMIST AWARD TO DISCOVERER OF 'HEAVY WATER'

The Willard Gibbs medal of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society has been awarded for 1934 to Prof. Harold C. Urey of Columbia university, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Lee F. Supple of Lewis institute. Dr. Supple is chairman of the Chicago section.

Presentation of the medal will take place in Chicago in the spring in the presence of a national gathering of scientists.

It is awarded annually to a scientist who has accomplished some notable step in chemical research. The award is determined by a national jury of scientists.

WALTER WILSON, CHICAGO REALTOR AND BANKER, DIES

Stroke Kills Former State and City Official.

Walter Herbert Wilson, banker and head of the La Salle street real estate firm which bore his name, died yesterday in the North Shore Health resort at 9:45 a. m., following a stroke which came suddenly after a thirteen day illness. Mr. Wilson was city controler of Chicago from 1907 to 1911, and later was a member of the Illinois commerce commission.

Mr. Wilson was 77 years old. He had been in business in Chicago since 1879 when he came here as head of a branch office established by the wholesale crockery and glassware firm of French, Potter & Wilson. Ten years later he sold his interest in the concern and entered the real estate business.

Active Till 3 Years Ago.

At the time of his death, in addition to his real estate business he was a director of the Personal Loan and Savings bank. He had been active in business until three years ago, when failing health forced him to curtail his duties. Until his death, however, he maintained his office in the Rookery building, 209 South La Salle street.

On Jan. 28, upon the advice of his physicians, Mr. Wilson left his home at 209 Lake Shore drive and entered the health resort for special treatment. His health, however, continued to decline steadily until the stroke occurred.

Mr. Wilson is survived by his two sons, Walter and Lawrence, by two daughters, Irene and Mrs. Marjorie Fisher, of Bronxville, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. Elvy Clement of Boston. Mr. Wilson's wife, Mary B. Otis, died a score of years ago.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning in the Graceland cemetery chapel. Interment in the cemetery will follow.

Married in Chicago.

Born in Boston in 1856, Mr. Wilson was educated in the public schools and later prepared for entrance to Harvard. His schooling was interrupted in 1873, however, when he entered business. His marriage took place nine years later, and three years after he removed to Chicago.

Mr. Wilson was a member of several La Salle street brokerage concerns during his career. From 1912 until 1922 he was a member of Harris, Winthrop & Co. In 1901 Mr. Wilson was a member of the syndicate which formed the Union Traction company. He was appointed by Gov. Emmerson to the Illinois commerce commission.

A SLOT MACHINE SLICKER FAILS TO IMPRESS COPS

Benjamin Level, 28 years old, of San Diego, Cal., who described himself as a "slot machine slicker" and said that his nickname was "Jack Pot," was locked up at the detective bureau yesterday after he had been detected taking two dresses from a department store.

"I can beat any slot machine in the country," boasted Level to the police. "I'm the Jimmy Valentine of the slot machine business. I've made more than $15,000 in nickels, dimes and quarters out of slot machines in the last five years. I once worked in a slot machine factory and know how to play them so that I can't lose."

Although refusing to reveal his secret, Level offered to play any machine which might be found and to guarantee any one financing him half of the profits. Up to a late hour last night no policeman had accepted the offer.

STOCKS CRACK; TRADERS FEAR CONTROL BY U. S.

Selling Wave Sends Prices Toppling.

Air Stocks Crash

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Aircraft stocks broke rapidly on the exchange here late today under heavy selling precipitated by cancellation of all airmail contracts at Washington. The announcement came after the New York market had closed.

United Aircraft, which finished here yesterday at $31.50, dropped to $24.25 and closed at $25.25. The close in New York today was $29.12. Aviation corporation finished at $7.25 today, compared with $9 yesterday and today's New York close of $8.50.

The drop in aviation shares finally spread to other issues, the entire list reacting moderately.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 9.—Speculative Wall street suffered an attack of nerves today over the proposals to regulate the stock exchange, and share prices were sold down from 1 to more than 3 points. The President's message had not been transmitted to congress up to the close of the market, but most brokerage houses had some sort of summary of the bill later introduced in both houses, and the knowledge of the proposed restrictions thus disseminated was anything but comforting to those who "follow the market."

In addition there were disquieting rumors that the move toward regulation might ultimately result in the elimination of marginal trading or the requirement of a minimum margin requirement of 60 per cent of the purchase price, in addition to the prohibition of pool operations, regulation of brokers' borrowings to finance speculation, and drastic curbs or the elimination of short selling.

Fear Curtailed Trading.

Commentators generally expressed the fear that such proposals might seriously curtail trading. Evidently this concern was far from being confined to the so-called professional ranks, for the market was the target of a steady stream of selling orders which seemed to gain somewhat in volume as the day wore on. Pressure was not especially pronounced, except for an interval in the forenoon, and some of the outstanding targets of the liquidation braced up to close slightly above their low prices for the day. The turnover ran to around 3,337,000 shares, as compared with 3,217,000 yesterday.

There was a sizeable file of more or less bullish news, but it was ignored in the general worry over the regulation bills. The weekly trade reviews told of further business gains and the carloadings were somewhat higher on the week, but neither of these factors had any appreciable influence.

Double Holiday a Factor.

Things were not helped any, moreover, by the impending double holiday. This in itself was sufficient to have induced considerable realizing and evening up.

The selling was without much group distinction. Higher priced issues naturally suffered the worst treatment in point losses and the so-called pool pets were noticably weak.

Aviation stocks were hard hit by liquidation based on rumors of cancellation of mail contracts. United Aircraft dropped more than 2 points and Wright tumbled 3½. Douglas was sold rather freely.

Gold and silver issues had a rather bad day. United States Smelting gave up 3⅝ points of its recent gains, and Homestake dropped 3.

The decline in grains reacted against the farm stocks, and Case was one of the outstanding weak spots of the day.

Chrysler Nets $2.78 a Share; Pays $1 a Year

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Net profit of the Chrysler corporation for the year 1933 amounted to $12,129,119, equivalent to $2.78 a common share, it was announced today by Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board. This compares with a net loss of $11,254,232 in 1932.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER.

Directors resumed regular dividend payments and placed the stock on a $1 annual basis by voting a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable March 31 to stock of record March 1. On Dec. 30, 1933, a dividend of 50 cents was paid, and in September, 1933, a special distribution of 50 cents was made.

Sales Increase Sharply.

Sales to dealers in 1933 amounted to 451,734 units, with an aggregate value of $238,675,951, as compared with 222,512 units valued at $136,546,522 in 1932. The 1933 figure eclipsed the peak reached in 1929, when sales amounted to 450,543 units.

In the balance sheet as of Dec. 31 inventories were listed at $34,556,769 contrasted with $18,377,464 at the end of 1932. Cash and marketable securities totaled $37,369,975.

During the year the corporation reduced its funded debt by the purchase of $2,304,500 of the 6 per cent bonds of Dodge Brothers, a subsidiary.

Trade Improvement Cited.

In his report to stockholders, Mr. Chrysler stated:

"In part, the more satisfactory financial results for 1933, as compared with the three preceding years, reflect the material improvement in business generally which began last spring. But that is not the only factor responsible.

"Engineering research has continued to improve the quality of the cars produced and manufacturing facilities have been developed to keep pace with the progress of the times. The whole organization has sought successfully not only to secure a larger share of the available business but also to realize immediately on any improvement in business conditions."

DETROIT BANKING QUIZ ENDS; U. S. ACTION DEFENDED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The senate banking committee late today completed its prolonged investigation of the Michigan bank collapse.

The committee now will turn to a thorough study of the testimony taken during the hearings and decide what legislation, if any, it will recommend as a result of its findings.

Three men in governmental authority at the time the Michigan banking holiday was called last February told the committee in its last session today federal government agencies did all in their power to lend assistance to the Detroit banks.

In testimony that brought the prolonged inquiry to a close Arthur A. Ballantine, undersecretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration, who participated in the discussions immediately prior to the holiday proclamation, defended the government's attitude toward the Michigan situation.

He characterized the declaration of the moratorium as sound.

PRIMA COMPANY EARNS $1.30 ON COMMON IN '33

Net income of the Prima company for the twelve months ended Dec. 31, last, totaled $342,268, equal to $1.30 a share on 151,691 common shares, after all charges and preferred dividends. This compares with a net of $89,134 in the preceding year, or 71 cents a share on preferred stock.

Current assets as of Dec. 31 are shown at $1,523,335 and current liabilities at $498,474, against $1,129,789 and $132,109, respectively, a year earlier.

Goodyear Lifts Tire Prices 3%; Says Costs Increase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 9.—An increase of 3 per cent in the prices of automobile tires to dealers, or probably 5 per cent to the public, announced by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company today was caused by wage increases due partly to NRA compliance and steadily advancing costs of raw materials used, according to P. W. Litchfield, president.

American Sugar Refining Advances Wholesale Price

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The American Sugar Refining company today advanced the price of wholesale refined sugar one-fifth of a cent to 4½ cents a pound, effective at the close of business today.

News of the introduction of bills in congress yesterday providing for stringent control of stock exchange trading is printed in the main news section of this paper, pages 1 and 10. The measures have the backing of the Roosevelt administration.

SIX CODES PUSH UP RAIL SUPPLY COMPANY COSTS

But Chicago Firm Has Less Loss in Year.

Higher costs of operation caused by six different codes in which the Chicago Railway Equipment company is participating erased a slight profit the company might have earned in the last six months of 1933 and resulted in a net loss, A. C. Moore, president, says in his message to stockholders in the company's annual report.

Loss for the year after charges and taxes was $115,935, against loss of $380,371 in the preceding year. Current assets on Dec. 31 last were carried at $2,095,004, and current liabilities at $81,717, against $2,200,455 and $69,884, respectively, at the end of 1932.

Commenting on the national recovery act Mr. Moore says:

"We are making every effort to cooperate with the President in his efforts to promote recovery and have complied from the start with labor and other provisions. But we are confronted with the necessity of participating in the setting up, organizing, and operation of six different codes thus far. The costs, particularly higher expenses of operation have been considerable.

"Much division of thought exists as to whether the NRA is accelerating or retarding business recovery, and the weight of opinion favors the theory of larger volume of production rather than higher costs and higher prices. However, there are evidences of real improvement from operation of natural forces with which it is hoped our public policy will more closely cooperate."

CORD CORP. LIFTS DIVIDEND BASIS TO $1 ANNUALLY

The Cord corporation yesterday increased its yearly rate to $1 through declaration of 25 cents quarterly, payable March 15 to stock of record Feb. 28. On Sept. 1, 1933, 20 cents a share was paid, while the disbursement previous to that amounted to 10 cents a share, paid March 15, 1933.

An extra dividend of 50 cents a share was ordered on common stock by directors of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, payable March 1 to stockholders of record Feb. 20. The extra, it was announced, will be paid together with the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share declared recently.

A. E. Staley Manufacturing company voted a 100 per cent common stock dividend and cleaned up arrearage on preferred by authorizing a payment of $3.50 a share. The company has 21,002 shares of $100 par common outstanding of an authorized issue of 50,000 shares.

Dollar Holds Steady Against Pound, Franc

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 9.—The American dollar today showed more stability than for any day since the country's return to a modified gold bullion basis. Comparative stability also prevailed between other principal world currencies. The quietness and order of the markets after the turbulent movements of recent days appeared to dealers and traders very much like the work of official controls.

The pound closed a quarter of a cent higher at $5.02, while the franc, after touching a new high of 6.47½ cents, closed at 6.44 cents, the same as yesterday, equivalent to a discount of 2.8 per cent from its "par" in United States gold.

Political Crisis Cools.

The steadiness of the franc against both the pound and dollar was seen as partly due to the quieting down of the French political situation and the Bank of France action in raising its rediscount rate.

Meanwhile the flow of gold toward the United States continued, according to advices from London, where it was reported that underwriters were somewhat concerned over the large risks they were taking and were reinsuring part of their business. In some instances reinsurance rates ran as high as 40 shillings for 100 pounds of gold, or 2 per cent.

The price of gold in the London open market today was advanced 7 pence to 137 shillings 4 pence, equivalent to about $34.47, on the basis of a value of $5.02 for the pound.

Reserve Reports Efforts.

The daily gold statement of the federal reserve bank reported the first results of the wave of the gold tide racing across the ocean. The bank's statement showed total imports of $15,376,900 gold, a gain through release of gold was held under earmark for foreign account of $1,351,100, and $22,153,900 of "gold released from earmark for foreign account in New York against gold delivered abroad which was previously acquired and included in the monetary gold stocks of the United States.

The last mentioned item constituted something of a revolution in reserve bank reporting of gold movements in that it plainly stated what had always previously been left to inference. This repatriation by the treasury of gold bought abroad, through a "swap" with a foreign central bank, was the seventh such transaction since late in December, but it was the first to be plainly identified.

Swap $75,274,000 Gold.

The total of gold brought home by the treasury through this economical method of "swapping" has now reached $75,274,000, but after giving effect to the reductions in earmarked gold reported today there is estimated to remain only $13,320,106, indicating that this avenue for the repatriation of treasury gold bought abroad is nearly ended.

The $35 an ounce price for gold here, acting as a magnet upon the precious metal supplies in England, France, Holland, and even India, has also diverted the $5,000,000 monthly flow of Canada's new production to this city, it was learned today.

FREIGHT MAKES GAIN OF 16½% OVER YEAR AGO

Total Also Up 2,532 Cars for Week.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Revenue freight handled on American railroads last week aggregated 564,098 cars, which was an increase of 2,532 cars, or one-half of 1 per cent over the immediately preceding week, and 78,039, or 6½ per cent above the corresponding week a year ago.

Miscellaneous freight contributed an increase of 36,005 cars over the corresponding week, while shipments of coal came next with a 26,218 car advance, and all classes of commodities except live stock showed gains. In the live stock movement the decrease from last year was only 412 cars, the total last week being 15,625 cars.

Gain for Year to Date.

Total loadings for the year to date were 2,741,660 cars, as compared with 2,410,267 cars in the corresponding weeks a year ago, and 2,840,694 cars in the corresponding period two years ago.

Miscellaneous freight loaded during the week of Feb. 3 was 189,670 cars, a decrease of 3,581 below the preceding week, but 36,005 above 1933; less than carlot merchandise, 162,237, increase 397 and 275; grain and grain products, 31,360, a decrease of 334 below the preceding week, but 5,836 above 1933; forest products, 20,178, decrease 442 below the preceding week, but an increase of 5,723 above 1933; ore, 2,471, a decrease of 721 below the preceding week, but 1,051 above last year; coal, 133,600, increase 8,842 and 26,218; coke, 8,962, increase 1,266 and 3,343, and live stock, 15,625, a decrease of 2,895 below the preceding week and 412 below 1933.

WEIRTON STEEL FLOUTS U. S. PLAN TO POLL WORKERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Weirton Steel company today denied the national labor board's request for a pay roll list for use in taking a poll of employés to determine their attitude toward a new collective bargaining election.

The refusal was contained in a letter from Earl F. Reed, counsel for the company, to Milton Handler, counsel for the labor board, who asked for the pay roll list earlier in the week. Pointing out that the company held an election for selection of collective bargaining representatives last December, Reed said:

"For the company to coöperate in the holding of any further elections in Weirton until the next regular election under the employes' representation plan would only be to stir up trouble, and if the company should recognize any one chosen at a subsequent election it would be a repudiation by it of the representatives who are now functioning."

Illinois Life Dissenters to Get Partial Payment

Federal Judge Stone has authorized the Illinois Life company receiver to make a preliminary distribution to 6,500 dissenting policy holders who declined to come under the reinsurance contract by which the Central Life of Iowa took over the Illinois Life business. The disbursement amounts to 10 per cent of the net equity as of Nov. 29, 1932, less the cost of insurance, and 3½ per cent interest for such time as the policy was in force according to the reinsurance contract.

Steel Leader Declares NRA Prevents Control of Costs

Del Monte, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Joseph V. Smith, steel executive of Pittsburgh, Pa., declared in an address before the steel industries conference here today, "Industry in this country cannot continue to take it on the chin; if consideration is to be given to the wage earner and consumer it must also apply to the industrialist and merchant."

"I can see much of merit in the NRA, but I believe some of its points must be clarified before full benefits of its operation will be felt.

"I would like to emphasize that under NRA acceptance of minimum wage and maximum working hours industry has been asked to sacrifice one element of operation which has heretofore been under its own control, and I mean regulation of production costs.

Sees Bar to Prosperity.

"I cannot conceive how industry can possibly prosper if unrestrained and destructive price competition is to continue with no permissible flexibility by industry in determination of its cost.

"The outstanding problem of industry today is to advance commodity prices from the ridiculously low point to which they descended in many cases up to a point where profit might reasonably be expected."

A gradual but encouraging increase in business conditions throughout the country was predicted by W. A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel corporation.

Expects Greater Activity.

"In the last six months there has been a definite indication toward recovery, not only in steel but in all lines of industry and business," Irvin said in an interview.

"The United States Steel corporation has been operating at about 28 per cent capacity, but I believe that we will get up in the next few months to between 40 and 45 per cent of capacity.

"Already thousands of men who have been out of work for many years are being reemployed in our various plants."

Head of International Chamber Here

Stabilization Is Greatest Need Says World Trade Leader

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Stabilization of currency is the first problem in the stimulation of world trade and the first necessary step in this direction is permanent stabilization of the American dollar, in the opinion of F. H. Fentener Van Vlissingen of Utrecht, Holland, president of the International Chamber of Commerce.

He arrived in Chicago yesterday and was guest of Silas H. Strawn at a luncheon at the Chicago club. With Mr. Van Vlissingen was John T. Gregg of Washington, manager of the American committee of the international chamber, which embraces representatives of 44 nations.

Stabilization First Need.

"The first problem in building up world trade," said Mr. Van Vlissingen in an interview, "is stabilization of currency, and next, liberation of foreign trade and stabilization of commerce. There is a vicious circle of unstable currency and trade barriers. We believe that it is impossible to arrive at freer international trade if currency is not stabilized, for the reason that many nations have established trade barriers with a view of protecting them against devalued moneys.

"The question is where this vicious circle best can be cut. We believe stabilization of currency is an easier approach than to urge greater freedom of trade as the first step. Stabilization might be attained by the United States, Great Britain, Japan, and the six European nations in the gold bloc—France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Holland, and Germany," he said. "These nations could stabilize, while, on the other hand, to attempt to break the vicious circle from the angle of greater liberation of trade, would require agreements by many more nations—64 countries were represented at the London economic conference.

Cites American Situation.

"It is of interest to the United States that its present monetary policy works towards an unstable currency. The system can work only as long as the gold bloc exists. If the present policy is maintained, the eventual result, we believe, would be to force the gold bloc off its standard.

"The key to the situation is held by America. No international conference is in prospect at present. So long as the government of the United States takes the position that it is not ready at this moment to stabilize their dollar permanently, there is no use for a conference," Mr. Van Vlissinger asserted.

Mr. Van Vlissingen, who was elected last year at Vienna as president of the international chamber of commerce, is head of the rayon union in the Netherlands, and is interested in three rayon plants in Tennessee and North Carolina. He is interested in coal production and shipping, and is a member of the board of the United Steel works of Germany.

Last night he spoke before a private session of the Commercial club.

Reports U. S. Trade Gains.

Latest reports on America's world trade, as shown in a report brought by Mr. Gregg of the American committee, show that in the final nine months of last year exports of 61 of 102 leading commodities increased in quantity over 1932, while 68 of 105 leading imports also showed quantity increases. There is still a long road to travel, however, to reach the averages of the five years 1928 to 1932, for America is still 59 per cent behind that period in value of exports and 55 per cent behind in value of imports, he pointed out.

The report reveals that one of the most striking examples of improvement in American foreign trade was evidenced in the increased exports of automobiles, parts, and accessories. The value of these products rose from $61,795,000 in the first nine months of 1932 to $65,389,000 in the first nine months of 1933, a gain of almost 6 per cent, despite lower prices. September exports of 10,994 cars and trucks were the largest monthly shipments in 29 months.

American aircraft and engines, the report says, are finding markets in all parts of the world. Exports of airplanes and other aircraft totaled 325 in the first nine months of 1933, as compared with 155 during the first three-quarters of 1932. This was a slight increase over the five year average, while 2,076 aircraft engines were exported, more than five times the five year average.

WIEBOLDT SALES MAKE 16.3% GAIN OVER YEAR AGO

Additional evidence of expanding retail demand in the Chicago area was furnished yesterday in a sales report of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., which shows volume for the quarter ended Jan. 31 in excess of $17,800,000, a gain of 16.3 per cent over the corresponding period a year previous.

Final quarter earnings are not yet available, but a substantial net profit will be shown according to E. F. Wieboldt, president.

Successive improvement was shown in sales through the year. A decline of 17 per cent was registered in the first quarter, a loss of 3.4 per cent in the second, a gain of 14.7 per cent in the third, and an improvement of 16.3 per cent in the last, resulting in a net increase for the year of 2.6 per cent.

J. L. MARKS & CO. SURRENDERS ITS BROKER LICENSE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—J. L. Marks & Co., of Chicago, announced today that it desired the cancellation of its registration as dealers and brokers, "without prejudice to our rights." The registration was canceled and Attorney General Kerner was asked to abandon a proceeding before the Supreme court which involved the right of the company to do business in Illinois.

The case has been pending since last August, when Secretary of State Hughes ordered the company's license canceled on the ground that it had violated the securities act by making false representations in the sale of stock.

The Marks company appealed to the Circuit court of Sangamon county which entered an order vacating Secretary Hughes' cancellation. Hughes appealed to the Supreme court where the case was pending when the company asked the license cancellation.

ROOSEVELT AIDS PLAN LOANS FOR BUSINESS, CITIES

U.S. May Underwrite Banking Credits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—A modified type of federal lending through which billions of dollars of easy money loans will be poured out to private industries, exporters, and cities is being whipped into shape by President Roosevelt's advisers, it was learned today.

The new system, it was understood, will call for the government to underwrite bank loans to cities, including Chicago, and to businesses. By indorsing the loans the government will make itself liable for as much as an 80 per cent repayment of them in the event of a default by the borrowers, according to present plans. Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation revealed one phase of this new program today when he announced that he would favor limited loans to cities by the RFC.

Chicago Slated for Loan.

Naming Chicago specifically as one of the cities which could qualify for a federal loan, Mr. Jones said that the RFC might make the loans directly to the cities or underwrite bank loans to cities.

Plans for having the RFC underwrite loans to exporters have been under consideration for some time, especially as a means of facilitating Russian trade. Mr. Jones announced today that the RFC will soon set up a bank in which the RFC will own all the stock and this bank will underwrite the export loans.

The suggestion that the RFC also indorse bank loans to private industries is emanating from the NRA. Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside, who has been studying the credit aspects of the business under NRA codes, is reported to be ready to advocate government-guaranteed loans to industry as a means of saving the small businesses which are experiencing hard going under codes.

Roosevelt Approves Export Loans.

Thus far, it is reported, President Roosevelt has approved only the proposal that the government underwrite loans to exporters. The suggestion that business loans be indorsed by the government has not yet been submitted to him. Before the RFC could underwrite business or municipal loans legislation would have to be passed broadening the corporation's powers. Many such bills are now pending before congress.

Chairman Jones admitted today that he would not oppose legislation giving the RFC power to make loans to cities as long as the loans are kept "in modest volume." He said the loans should be restricted to cities which have made an honest effort to balance their budgets. The total amount of municipal loans, Mr. Jones said, should not be so large that they would force the RFC to ask congress for more money.

Mr. Jones previously has declared that to supply all the money which all the cities would like to borrow would force the government into printing press inflation.

Says Chicago Could Borrow.

Chicago, Mr. Jones said, could qualify for a loan either on the basis of its tax anticipation warrants or on some of its real estate holdings. He also said he believed that New York could qualify for a loan on tax warrants.

Mr. Jones said nothing about the RFC endorsing loans to private businesses. This plan is still in tentative stages among the research experts of the NRA. It would be one of the most revolutionary steps taken by the government.

Banks would be empowered to make industrial loans under certain regulations laid down by the RFC and the government would automatically put its guarantee behind repayment of a large share of the loan, perhaps as much as 80 per cent of it. The bank would have to take the risk on the rest. An attempt would be made to keep the loans small and the total volume under a billion dollars.

This plan, its NRA advocates hold, would free the huge stores of idle credit now lying in banks.

DOLLAR'S VALUE IN THREE CHIEF FOREIGN MONEYS

The following table shows the value of the United States dollar in the principal capitals of Europe at the close of exchange trading yesterday, both in terms of the dollar and of foreign units:

IN LONDON—One pound sterling was equal to $5.01½; one dollar was equal (approximately) to 4 shillings.

IN PARIS—One franc was worth $0.0645; one dollar was worth 15 francs 50 centimes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 9.—All classifications of bonds on the exchange closed irregularly lower today, despite a late rally, in which some of the earlier severe losses were retrieved. The trading pace slackened materially on the decline, with the turnover amounting to $16,165,000, compared with $19,276,000 the day before.

United States government long term bonds were extremely dull, the turnover of $558,000 being the smallest in many days. Final prices were generally lower. This group, unlike domestic corporation bonds and foreign loans, closed at or near the lows for the day, off 2-32 to 8-32 point.

Industrials Weakest.

Although many domestic corporation issues lost a point or more today, the averages for the industrial, utility, and railroad obligations were only slightly lower and in the order named. On the other hand, there were a number of issues which climbed one or more points, some of them in fairly active dealings. Amusement issues showed especial strength.

Cuban issues were outstanding features of uniform strength. Virtually all bonds directly or otherwise connected with Cuban industry were in demand as a result of President Roosevelt's sugar proposals. It is believed that if the President's ideas are carried out, prospects would be improved for a return to the earnings level at which most Cuban bonds were issued.

Foreign Loans Uneven.

Other changes in foreign bond prices were of particular significance. French government and municipal loans dipped 1 to 3½ points, with the exception of City of Soissons 6s, which were up a point in sympathy with the late decline of the franc against the dollar. United Kingdom issues were uneven and Dutch East Indies loans and Swiss government 5½s showed fractional variations. German bonds were irregularly higher in quiet dealings. South American issues showed no definite trend.

Curb bonds drifted irregularly lower with a noticeable lessening of activity on the decline.

HOLC BONDS.

Bonds of the Home Owners' Loan corporation were quoted yesterday at 96 bid, 97 asked.

Grand Union.

Investors' Guide: Please give me some information about Grand Union stock.—K. H. R.

Answer—Grand Union company is a retail distributor of grocery products. Distribution is effected through stores and by wagon routes. The company operates about 675 stores, mainly along the Atlantic seaboard. Its wagon routes extend from Utah to Maine. Most of the products distributed in this manner are staple, nonperishable commodities.

Sales followed a definite upward trend from incorporation of the present company in 1928 through 1930, but since then they have slipped. In the first 26 weeks of 1933 sales were sharply under those reported in the corresponding 1932 period. A narrowing of the difference in the remaining months of 1933 in comparison with 1932, with some months actually showing slight gains, enabled the company to finish the year with total sales of $27,832,000, down 6.3 per cent from sales of $29,693,000 for 1932.

Sales of $20,493,000 for the first nine months of 1933 produced net income of $239,000, which was only two-thirds of preferred dividend requirements. For the corresponding 1932 period sales were $22,634,000, and net income was $590,000, which was 1.62 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to 81 cents per common share.

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Sales.	Net inc.	Inc.per com.sh.
1932	$29,693,000	$ 602,000	$ .43
1931	35,640,000	1,034,000	1.86
1930	38,117,000	1,104,000	2.24
1929	36,943,000	1,021,000	2.04

At the close of 1932 current assets, including cash assets of $1,008,000, totaled $5,324,000 and current liabilities were $994,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 159,550 shares of $3 no par preference stock and 282,617 shares of $1 par common. Dividends are being paid on the preferred, but not on the common. The directors on Sept. 26, 1933, voted to set aside 50,000 common shares to be issued to voting trustees, officers and employés of the company at not less than $2.50 a share.

The preferred is only medium grade. The common is speculative.

SILVER FUTURES

Silver futures were strong early yesterday, but the sharp break in stocks led to profit taking and increased pressure and the finish was a net losses of .14 to .25 cents lower, a rally coming toward the last from the inside figures of the day. Foreign bar silver was ¼c higher at 44¾c, and new domestic unchanged at 64½c. Sales of futures aggregated 8,800,000 ounces. February closed at 44.71c; March, 44.70@44.72c; May, 45.50c; June, 45.65c; September, 46.10@46.20c; December, 46.91c.

CHICAGO RESERVE BANK IS HOLDOUT IN RATE SLASHES

Indicates Reduction Is Not Merited.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The directors' committee of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago met yesterday but failed to take action toward reducing the present rediscount rate of 2½ per cent. Failure of the Chicago bank to follow the lead of the New York bank and the six other reserve institutions that have cut their rates in the last ten days again emphasizes the reluctance of directors here to establish what they appear to regard as an abnormally low rate.

When the New York Reserve bank cut its rate ten days ago the action was heralded as a step toward easing money market conditions and facilitating the floating of the billions of government bonds scheduled in the next few months.

Sign of Cheaper Money.

Traditionally a cut in the rediscount rate, the figure at which member banks borrow from the reserve, means a recognition of easier credit conditions and cheaper money.

In some quarters, however, the significance of the rate cut has been minimized because the big banks in a number of important banking centers, including Chicago and New York, have no current loans at the reserve banks.

It has been a disputed question whether the member banks would borrow at the cheaper rates to buy government issues. The member banks have shown no hesitancy about taking the new treasury issues, but the buying has been done on "credit." In other words, the government left the money on deposits at the banks.

U. S. Deposits Heavy.

This has been shown in the New York member bank figures in the last two weeks when new government deposits offset purchases of governments. The New York member banks had over half a billion dollars in government deposits.

What the government does with this money will govern the country's most important money market. If these funds are drawn down, which seems unlikely, it will tend to tighten money there. In other words, the treasury is in a position to regulate the New York money market to suit its wishes.

Excess reserves of the New York banks now stand at 40 millions against the huge deposits of the government which may be withdrawn at any time.

The situation in Chicago contrasts sharply with that in New York. Here member banks' excess reserves stand at 199 millions while government deposits amount to only 65 millions.

The latest reserve bank to cut its rate is Atlanta. Directors yesterday reduced it from 3½ to 3 per cent.

WHEAT BREAKS ON PROSPECT OF NEEDED RAINS

Other Grains Also Move Downward.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Prospects of rains in the dry sections of the winter wheat belt started prices on the down grade yesterday. The bearish sentiment was intensified later by a sharp decline in the stock market and it was not until the May option had declined to 89⅝ cents, or 1⅝ cents under Thursday's close, that the break was checked.

Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down with local and outside longs selling freely. In the last few minutes of the session buying by houses with eastern connections made its appearance, causing a rally, but the close was at net losses of ⅞ to 1⅛ cents. May closed at 90 to 90¼ cents and July at 88⅞ to 89 cents. The latter sold at 88⅛ cents at the low, and equaled the lowest price of Thursday, 4 cents under the high on Monday.

Rain and Snow Forecast.

Forecasts indicated rain for parts of Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas and snow in the northern sections of the belt. However, complaints of dry weather were received from a new quarter in the Red River valley in North Dakota. Severe dust storms were reported.

Considerable uneasiness was indicated over Washington reports of new regulations for the grain exchanges, and there was some evening up in anticipation of President Roosevelt's special message to congress.

With all American grain exchanges closed Monday the trade looked for further evening up today.

Other grains were affected to a considerable extent by the weakness in wheat. Liquidation developed in both corn and oats. May corn sold down to 50¾ cents, or 1½ cents under Thursday's finish, the lowest price since Jan. 4. All grains rallied later but corn closed ¾ to 1 cent lower with May at 51⅛ to 51¼ cents.

Oats Down ¾ to 1 Cent.

Oats lost ¾ to 1 cent, May at 36¾ cents. Rye was 1 to 1¼ cents lower. May at 60⅝ cents. Barley declined 1¾ cents, May at 50 cents.

Rye traders were inclined to regard reports from Washington suggesting that imports of this grain were necessary due to the crop being 15,000,000 bushels below domestic needs as somewhat inaccurate.

It was pointed out that on July 1, 1933, the beginning of the current crop season, there was a total of 10,500,000 bushels in the visible supply and additional quantities were held on farms. The aggregate carry over was almost equal to the amount alleged needed to take care of the domestic demand.

PRICES DECLINE FOR LIGHT HOGS; OTHERS RECOVER

Receipts of Small Swine Prove Excessive.

Too many light hogs in the receipts yesterday were responsible for a narrowing in the wide spread between light and heavy hogs. This marked the first time that the trend had been in that direction since the advance got under way a fortnight or so ago.

Federal and shipping orders were not broad enough to absorb all the light hogs at quotations of the previous day, and prices weakened 5 to 15 cents on anything weighing 225 pounds and under. The bulk of the 250 pound averages and heavier weights were about in line with Thursday. However, late in the day there was a decided pickup in the demand for the heavier hogs, and some of the heavy butchers went to the scales at 5 to 10 cents higher quotations.

Packers Seek Supplies.

Yesterday was the first time since the "bull movement" got under way that packing houses have shown any real interest in hogs at current costs, and there was a good clearance for hogs carrying weight. This was significant because heretofore local big packers have been light buyers, preferring to let government buyers and small killers set the pace. Packers have been receiving comparatively few hogs direct lately but have ample stocks of pork in storage. Their chief concern has been to meet the demands of the fresh pork trade and to keep their killing crews busy on government hogs.

Yesterday's top of $4.80 was off 5 cents from the previous day. The general average at $4.35 was likewise 5 cents lower. Not many sales were made above $4.65, which was what government buyers were paying for most of their selected light hogs and light butchers. A scattering of 180 to 200 pound averages sold at $4.70 and $4.75, and one load and a small lot reached $4.80.

Cows Bought for Relief.

Buying of canner and cutter cows for the Federal Surplus Relief corporation featured the trade in the cattle market. Five local killers with combined orders for 1,000 head a day have had a hard time this week to get quotas filled. Farmers are not responding to the opportunity to dispose of low grade cows and are sending in not much more than the usual number at this time of year. As the result, low grade cows advanced about 75 cents this week and sold up to $3.25 yesterday.

The fact that low grade cows are bringing within $1 per hundredweight of some overweight long fed steers is causing considerable comment. Too many big steers kept prices down to a range mostly of $4.25 to $5.25, while light weight steers were active and strong to higher.

Another day of light lamb receipts gave sellers the upper hand. Lambs sold strong to 15 cents higher as demand continued good. All interests paid $9.50 for lambs. Some averaging 98 pounds sold at the top. Aged sheep ruled firm at $5, the high point of many months. Although the top was unchanged at $9.50, the average lamb price moved up to $9.25, a gain of 15 cents.

GERMAN NEWSPAPER LASHES U. S. MONETARY PROGRAM AS FUTILE

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—"The futility and ineffectiveness of the financial policy adopted by the American government is most clearly illustrated by the fact that gold is being rushed to America as fast as ships will carry it," writes the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, organ of a group of German industrialists, which in most financial crises and especially in the days of German inflation displayed financial shrewdness. "The American government seems not to understand what is happening.

"American officials assert the gold influx is only due to the return of capital which fled from America. In reality it is due to the fact that Washington set the price of gold too high, making it worth while for speculators to rush gold to America."

It compares the "would-be" financiers in Washington to the men who at the height of the German inflation in 1923 asserted there was no inflation because the gold reserve was worth more than the paper currency flooding the country.

"The influx of gold to America would be still greater if insurance companies would allow ships to carry more than $10,000,000, which the average ship is transporting now," the article said.

The Zeitung fears the vagaries of the dollar will lead to new disastrous speculations and instability.

It is learned from a well informed source that Czechoslovakia is preparing financial changes to adapt the value of the Czech crown to the dollar.

LARD OFFERINGS LIGHTER; PRICES REGISTER GAINS

Lard is attracting more attention from speculative and consuming interests. With lighter offerings, the market yesterday acted independently of grains and closed with net gains of 2½ to 7½ cents.

Cash lard was in better demand at $6.15, 7½ cents higher; loose lard was up 10 cents to $5.5½, and leaf 12½ cents to $5.62½. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d higher.

Trade in bellies was limited, with the close unchanged to 5 cents lower. Cash bellies were unchanged at $7.50.

Hog receipts have fallen off in numbers and weight so much that the manufacture of lard is reduced, but liberal stocks have been made in the last few months. Prices:

BUTTER SAGS AFTER FIRM OPENING; EGGS STEADY

Butter futures opened firm on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, but closed %@%c lower. Eggs also opened firm and closed ¼c lower to ½c higher. Potatoes were unchanged.

Cold weather helped both butter and eggs at the start, but selling set in in the last few minutes of the session, largely produced by weakness in stocks and grains. March butter dropped $192 per car from the opening. Storage withdrawals totaled 898,000 pounds more than last year. Egg news was of little interest. Receipts continued moderately heavy, with storage withdrawals slightly under last year. Sales: butter, 28 cars; eggs, 23 cars; potatoes, 3 cars. Prices:

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today on further covering and continued buying of July and September by local trade interests, promoted by the strength of crude oil and the firmness of lard. Final prices were 1 to 5 points net higher on active positions. Sales, 58 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal. March closed 5.12c, May 5.29c, July 5.50c, and September 5.69c.

COTTON TRADING HEAVY; SPOTS AND FUTURES RISE

Active trading which has featured the cotton market in recent weeks continued yesterday. Advances brought out profit taking; slight recessions met with large buying orders. The Bankhead bill has furnished the basis for bullish sentiment.

Reports from Washington were that the senate would indorse a bill to spend $150,000,000 for cotton goods to be distributed among the needy.

Profit taking sales were readily absorbed. Futures in Chicago were 5 to 9 points net higher, with May cotton the favorite, closing at 12.41 cents. New York advanced 6 to 11 points and New Orleans 2 to 6 points.

Spot cotton gained 5 points at New Orleans, to 12.30 cents; New York gained 10 points, to 12.55 cents; Galveston, 10 points, to 12.25 cents, and Houston, 5 points, to 12.20 cents. Prices:
